Would Free Viet Troops For Fighting

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department announced Saturday night that 3,500 Marines are being sent to South Viet Nam to protect the Da Nang Air Base.

A spokesman said two battalions of Marines will take over the job of insuring the security of the air base complex.

LIMITED ACTION

Terming it a "limited action," the Defense Department said the Marines were ordered in after consultations with the South Viet Nam government which requested the action.

The troops will "relieve government of South Viet Nam forces now engaged in security duties for action" against the Viet Cong, the Defense Department announcement said.

The Marine contingent totals two battalions. The Defense Department did not reveal when the Marines would land, however.

The Marines apparently will be drawn from existing strength in the Southeast Asia area.

There is a Marine division deployed at Okinawa. This is the Third Marine Division. Its strength is approximately 20,000 with part of it deployed at sea with the fleet. There is another Marine air wing in Japan with 12,000 personnel. The First Marine Brigade is stationed at Hawaii with about 7,700.

The addition of the 3,500 Marines in Viet Nam brings American military strength in the area to approximately 27,000.

"After consultation between the governments of South Viet Nam and the United States, the United States government has agreed to the request of the government of Viet Nam to station United States Marine Corps battalions in the Da Nang area to strengthen general security of the Da Nang Air Base complex.

The limited mission of the Marines will be to relieve government of South Viet Nam forces now engaged in security duties for action in the pacification program and in the offensive roles against Communist guerrilla forces."

This is not the first time American Marines have gone ashore in the Southeast Asia area. During past Laotian crises, they were stationed across the border from Laos in Thailand.

In recent Viet Cong guerrilla raids on American bases in South Viet Nam, government troops were criticized for poor handling of security.

Last month, on Feb. 10, terrorists destroyed a U.S. Army billet at Qui Nhon, northeast of Saigon. Earlier the same month, in an attack on the American base at Pleiku, eight Americans were killed and 108 wounded.

Both of these installations were policed by South Vietnamese troops.

The Da Nang Air Base is nearly 300 miles north of Saigon. It is equipped with a 10,000 foot runway and is by far the most important base for U.S. jet bomber and fighter raids on North Viet Nam.

It also has a Marine helicopter unit, and has recently acquired a 500 man U.S. "Hawk" anti-aircraft missile battalion.

BLASTS MOSCOW

China's Charge Brings Red Ties To Tense Point

MOSCOW (AP) — Relations between Moscow and Peking plunged to a new low Saturday as China accused the Soviet Union of using violence on Asian student demonstrators at the U.S. Embassy Thursday.

A Chinese protest made the "demand that the Soviet government acknowledge its error and apologize to the students who took part in the anti-American demonstration."

At the same time, Chinese authorities unleashed an apparently peaceful demonstration against the Soviet embassy in Peking protesting what China called "the brutal suppression" of the students.

QUARREL GROWS

It was described as the first anti-Soviet demonstration in Peking during Communist rule.

The actions brought the quarrel between the two Red giants to the point of fantasy.

The Peking demonstration and demand for an apology came as Communist sources in Moscow said earlier Chinese criticism of Russian policies had pushed a meeting of 19 Communist parties into adopting a tougher line on the Moscow-Peking dispute than originally planned.

The parties ended a meeting here Friday that was boycotted by China and its allies in the divided world Communist movement.

The official New China News Agency said that the demand was made in a protest given to Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko by Chinese Ambassador Pan Tzu-li.

About 2,000 students — few of them Europeans — attacked the U. S. Embassy Thursday to protest bombings of North Viet Nam. A few hundred of them returned later and battled Soviet police and troops on guard there.

The Chinese protest said 30 of these were injured, nine seriously, and accused Soviet authorities of evicting them from the hospital where they were taken.

The Chinese protest reportedly defended the stoning of the American Embassy as a legitimate reaction to U. S. bombing of North Viet Nam.

PENTAGON SAYS

Reds Don't Have American's Body

WASHINGTON (AP) — The body of a U. S. Air Force pilot shot down last month during an air strike in Laos is buried in a military cemetery in Louisiana and is not in the hands of the Reds as they claimed Saturday, the Defense Department said.

The Pentagon declared it is positive of this.

The claim to have found the body of Maj. Robert Francis Ronca of Norristown, Pa., was made in a North Viet Nam broadcast monitored in Tokyo.

Ronca flew on a mission against targets in the Communist Pathet Lao controlled portion of northern Laos Feb. 19. His F100 jet fighter-bomber was seen by other pilots in the attacking formation to have been hit and to have crashed into a hillside in the rugged, forest-covered region.

BURIED AT ALEXANDRIA

Three days later the Defense Department announced his body had been found and was being sent back to the United States. Ronca was buried at Alexandria, La., near England Air Force Base from which his outfit went overseas.

The Red broadcast said that documents were found "on the body," including an identification card.

The serial number for the card, as given by the Reds, checked except for one digit with that issued to Ronca. The card number, the Pentagon said, was 4334309; the Red broadcaster read it as 334309, omitting the first digit.

These cards actually have two numbers, the one on the face being the serial number for the card. A second number on the reverse side is the service number of the individual, Ronca's being 41457A.

The Reds claimed to have found other documents, including military maps.

Air Force headquarters here said that identification of the man buried at Alexandria was certain, that it "included a fingerprint check by the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

This is part of customary procedure in cases where any doubt might exist. In addition to fingerprinting, comparisons are made between the teeth and the dental records of a man and other physical measurements made.

The system by which the United States manages to recover airmen downed in the Communist region of north Laos, most of them alive but in at least this instance dead, is not discussed by the military.

At Norristown, Pa., Ronca's home, relatives said they do not know how his body was found or returned to this country.

Even if the Pathet Lao Reds do have the "ID" card for Ronca, that would not necessarily mean that they have had his body at any time. One assumption here was that the card, together with other material, may have been found in the aircraft wreckage by Pathet Lao searchers.

Three Children Burn To Death

VANCEBURG, Ky. (AP) — A fire blamed on an overheated stove killed three young children and badly burned a fourth Saturday as it destroyed a two-room cottage in rugged country 16 miles south of this Ohio River community.

Firemen said the scene of the blaze in Lewis County was reachable only by foot. Up to three inches of snow covered the Cumberland Mountains foothills.

The dead are Denver Duke Gilley, 5; Terry Dell Gilley, 3, and Debbie Jo Gilley, 2, officials said.

The victims' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Denver Gilley, were chopping firewood when the blaze started. Gilley smashed the windows of the cottage bedroom and snatched 3-month-old Rodney from a bed.

Officials at the University of Kentucky Medical Center, in Lexington, where the burned child was taken by his parents, said Rodney was in critical condition Saturday night with second and third-degree burns.

Gulf Dockers Accept Pact; Get To Work

Monday Should See Operations Back To Normal

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — West Gulf Coast longshoremen Saturday started returning to their jobs after voting overwhelmingly to accept a new contract.

Most piers in Galveston, idled since Jan. 11, were humming with activity by mid-afternoon and all other ports from Brownsville, Tex., to Lake Charles, La., were expected to be back in full operation by Monday morning.

HEAVY APPROVAL

Ralph A. Massey, district International Longshoremen Association president, said returns from the some 7,000 longshoremen in the district were "98 to 99 per cent in favor of accepting the contract."

In Washington, President Johnson was described as very pleased that the strike had been settled.

Voting by the membership started early Saturday in the Galveston-Houston area where more than half of the longshoremen in the western Gulf Coast district are employed. Longshoremen at Beaumont, Port Arthur and Orange ratified the new contract Friday night.

Although a scattering of longshoremen in the district returned to work Saturday, shipper interests in the Galveston-Houston area said it would be early today before calls were made for many of the idle workers.

Union officials said any work Saturday or today would be on an overtime weekend basis.

Both union and shipper officials have said the first work would be the loading of grain ships bound for India. Forty-eight of the ships are in the district. The loading is already under way at Corpus Christi and Port Arthur.

CHIPPED ANTIQUE

Lost Lincoln Plate Returned To Shelf

WASHINGTON (AP) — A chipped dinner plate missing from the White House for about 60 years was returned Saturday to take its place in the glass-enclosed display of crockery once used by Abraham Lincoln.

The Lincoln plate was mailed to President Johnson by Nicholas G. Morgan Sr., 80, an attorney from Salt Lake City, Utah, who explained how it disappeared in the first place.

During the administration of Theodore Roosevelt, Morgan wrote, an uncle named James Morgan visited the White House and, commenting on the beauty of the dishes, said, "My wife certainly would be thrilled to own one of those plates."

Roosevelt, according to this account, stepped over to the china cabinet, removed a plate from the lower left-hand corner and gave it to Morgan, longtime editor of the Boston Globe and uncle of the Salt Lake City lawyer.

Nicholas Morgan wrote that after the death of James Morgan, "his widow, Aunt Helen, presented the plate to me."

He said he was returning it to the White House because of Johnson's "kindness to our beloved President David O. McKay." McKay is president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, which has headquarters in Salt Lake City. Johnson visited with McKay twice during last fall's election campaign, once making an unscheduled stop in the city after learning that McKay was ill.

Nicholas Morgan once was secretary to William Howard Taft when Taft was secretary of war.

House Chiefs Fear For Bill On Education

WASHINGTON (AP) — House leaders are pushing urgently for a vote on President Johnson's school aid bill while the fragile coalition supporting it holds together.

Although there is no sign the coalition is cracking, administration strategists are worried about giving opponents too much time to explode the church-state controversy lying quietly in the bill.

SHAKY BACKING

Protestant and Roman Catholic religious leaders and public school officials, long at odds over the government's role in education, are now backing the bill and veterans of past school bill wars find it hard to believe that this can last.

The urgency displayed by the leadership also reflects pressure from the White House for speedy action on the bill, which Johnson regards as a centerpiece of his legislative program.

The House was convened last Friday just to gain one day in the race to get the bill to the floor. Five legislative days must pass after a bill is approved in committee before the Rules Committee can be asked to clear it for a vote. By meeting for a few minutes Friday — when sessions normally are not held — that request can now be made Tuesday instead of Wednesday.

Rep. Howard W. Smith, D-Va., chairman of the Rules Committee, is no friend of the bill and there is a possibility of a delay of two or three weeks before the Rules Committee acts, a possibility the bill's supporters view with apprehension.

They are already upset by what they regard as three weeks lost in the Education and Labor Committee. The bill was given a jet-propelled start there, with hearings beginning two days after Johnson's State of the Union address and continuing on weekends and late into the night. A subcommittee produced a slightly altered version of the administration bill in three days.

Then for three weeks nothing happened. Chairman Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., suspended action until the House approved the committee's operating budget, which it did last week.

Hunted Slayer Takes Own Life Before Caught

CORNING, Calif. (AP) — A mill worker, sought in the killing of a woman and two boys and the savage beating of another woman and two small girls, killed himself with a shotgun blast Saturday.

Sheriff's Deputy Robert Shirley said Paul Lucero, 38, killed himself in an olive orchard about 200 yards from the spot where his abandoned car had been found.

Lucero died about a mile and a half from the farm home where his estranged second wife, Alberta, was dealt a smashing blow on the head with a rifle stock as she entered the house Friday night. The stock was shattered.

Slain in the farm home were Dolores F. Gifford, 21; her son, Everett Ray, 3, and her brother-in-law, Terry Lee Gifford, 13.

Mrs. Gifford's daughters, Betty Jean, 2, and Rebecca Dee, 1 month, were beaten with a skillet and left lying in blood pools.

Undersheriff Don Phillips of Tehama County led the posse of 25 sheriff's officers, California Highway Patrol officers, and Corning policemen in the hunt tracking down Lucero.

Officers said they were closing in on a hideout area of tall grass around the olive trees when Lucero killed himself.

Mrs. Lucero, 38, had told officers her estranged husbnad was the man who clubbed her with the rifle stock.

Two Killed In Bastrop Area Wreck

BASTROP (Special) — Two persons were killed Saturday night in a two - truck collision on Hwy. 2 just inside the Morehouse Parish line west of the Boeuf River bridge.

L. J. Hovarter, 60, and Myrtle Hovarter, 38, both of Oak Grove were pronounced dead at Morehouse General Hospital.

TRUCKS COLLIDE

State police officials said a truck driven by George G. Conway, 24, of West Monroe was going east, when another truck driven by Elmer Hale, 54, of Pioneer was attempting to back out of a driveway to head east. The two trucks collided when Hale's truck got out into the highway.

Conway told state police investigating the accident that he saw no lights from the other truck and another car going west had just passed him when he hit the Hale vehicle.

State police said Hale would be charged with driving while intoxicated and negligent homicide.

Conway was alone in his truck, and was reported to have escaped injury.

Passengers in Hale's truck were the two deceased: Thomas Crosby and his son, Timmy Crosby, 17, both of Bastrop; and Joseph James Lebrun, 20, of Oak Grove, who was reported in critical condition at Morehouse Parish General Hospital. Young Crosby sustained multiple fractures and abrasions.

The accident occurred about 10:15 p.m. Saturday.

CITY-WIDE EFFORT

Campaign Starts On Beautification

"A cleaner, more attractive city" is the goal of a two-month, city wide campaign being kicked-off today, according to Mrs. John Mullens, president of the Monroe Beautification Board.

The board is sponsoring the campaign, which will continue through March and April.

Members of the "Keep Monroe Beautiful" committee are Mrs. DeWitt Milam, Mrs. John McCarter, Mrs. Kent Breard, Mrs. John Sherrouse Jr., and Mrs. Mullens, who will serve as coordinator.

ALL CAN AID

"During the campaign," said Mrs. Mullens, "we hope to make all citizens more aware of litter in their community and in their own yards. We also urge everyone to paint and fix up so that more pride and respect can be derived in all property in the city."

The Monroe Chamber of Commerce is cooperating with the beautification board and will line up area business and professional people behind the campaign.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is furnishing litter bags, which the board hopes to get boy scouts to distribute.

Girl scouts will deliver posters, prepared by local school children, to certain strategic areas of the city.

Mrs. Mullens said a speaker's bureau will be provided. Local residents interested in the promotion of beautification will be available to speak before civic, social and school groups. Mrs. Breard is in charge of this section of the campaign.

Northeast State College is also taking an active interest in the program, according to Mrs. Mullens. The winning slogans in the "Keep Monroe Beautiful" contest will be set to music by members of the music department and presented on television and radio. The NLSC student council will promote beautification projects on the college campus.

One of the classes at the Sallie Humble grade school has written a play, centering around anti-litter, which will be produced sometime in March.

Mrs. Mullens said other plans include awarding plaques to the most enthusiastic supporters of the campaign, distribution of "Keep Monroe Beautiful" placards to business firms, and conducting a window display contest to be judged for the best original exhibits on beautification.

Mrs. Mullens said that response to the campaign already has been "wonderful" and she is confident that with this continued support "our campaign cannot fail — Monroe will indeed be a city of beauty."

EDUARDO FREI

Today's Voting Key To Chilean's Power

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Eduardo Frei, a moderate leftist Christian Democrat, puts his reform-minded program on the line today in congressional elections that are vital for U.S. industrial interests in Chile.

Some political quarters predict Frei will gain sufficient strength to pursue his program despite opposition from the far left, but probably will have to work with a coalition. If he loses, however, power and prestige would be restored to Salvadore Allende, the Communist-led Popular Action Front candidate defeated soundly by Frei last September.

Frei, 54, took over as president Nov. 3 and tried to push some of his economic and agrarian measures through a rebellious lame duck Congress. Strong opposition forced him to withdraw them, however, and stake his political future in today's elections.

The United States agrees that Frei's sweeping proposals will benefit the eight million inhabitants of this ecenomically unstable nation. U.S. interests affected are reported generally satisfied with the program that includes:

—Acquisition of up to 51 per cent or a controlling interest in the Bradden Cooper Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of the U.S. Kennecott Copper Corp.; and 25 per cent interests in two new U.S. mining ventures.

IN TENSAS PARISH

Tulips Preview Tour Conducted

By JIMMY HATTEN
State Editor

NEWELLTON — Tensas Parish previewed its tulip and historical extravaganza for the press Saturday, with E. W. "Ed" McDonald's newly-constructed Dutch Gardens as the showpiece.

According to McDonald there were approximately 30 publications represented, including several national magazines.

McDonald's Dutch Gardens, conceived after favorable public response to his original four-acre plot of tulips, hyacinths, pansies and other flowers along U. S. Hwy. 65, consists of 12 acres.

On this 12 acres, McDonald has constructed brilliant orange and green exhibit buildings, two replicas of Dutch windmills, 1800 vintage, and tracts of various kinds of flowers, with tulips as the primary type.

Dutch Gardens will open on March 15, according to McDonald, and it is expected the flowers will reach full beauty around April 1.

In addition to the tour of the gardens, the press, with the most representation from Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas, was treated to a Dutch lunch, a tour of remodeled St. Joseph, and plantation homes in the area.

With Dutch Gardens as the main draw and the surrounding historical countryside as a backdrop, McDonald said he is looking forward to an influx of "about 100,000 tourists this spring, summer and fall."

The windmill replicas, he said, will soon have an original to join them — a windmill disassembled in the Netherlands and brought to the United States. McDonald said it is now at Holland, Mich., and that he is working to get it down south.

Inside the exhibit buildings at the gardens, McDonald has placed imported Dutch candies, pipes, soap, cheese, wooden shoes, and other items for tourist consumption.

On the walls are Dutch - type paintings and murals. The murals were done by Louis G. Sicard of Shreveport. They show Dutch countryside scenes — one shows Dutch maidens milking cows in a lush field — and another shows a waterfront scene with workmen loading cheese onto boats.

McDonald, former Tensas Parish police jury president, and noted in Louisiana for his work in conservation, wildlife and highway beautification, has poured thousands of dollars into his project.

To obtain the most minute authenticity in the project, McDonald has on hand a Dutchman, Edward T. Schilpzand of Sassenheim, Holland, as an advisor.

His dedication to Tensas beautification was noted at the luncheon with Robert Lancaster, president of the police jury, presented McDonald a golden spade bearing the inscription, "To Mr. Ed of Tensas Parish — the Tulip Man — He gets in there and digs."

"We are blessed with beauty and history," in Tensas Parish, McDonald said. Among the historical sites on the tour were these plantation homes: Linwood, Marydale, Wavertree, The Burn, Goldman's, Melwood, Myrtle Grove, Highland, the Myers home, and others.

The pre - civil war couthouse, with its unique courtroom fixtures should be a tourist draw, he said.

Other sites on the tour included Grant's March, and the site of the river crossing made by U. S. Grant during the Civil War at Hard Times Landing.

At this spot, according to District Attorney Thompson Clark, Grant's success in ferrying an army of 45,000 men across the Mississippi River was until that time the largest amphibious operation in history.

McDonald has other ideas for developments of the area as a tourist attraction. He noted that Dr. Stephen Williams, professor of archeology at Harvard University, is presently engaged in a study of Indian culture in the area.

He said there is the possibility that three Indian mounds, constructed possibly around 700 B. C., can be restored. He said this Indian culture, possibly a forerunner of the Tensas Indians, and evidently not unlike the famed Poverty Point culture at Epps, which is the oldest known in the United States, was of an advanced nature and still presents a mystery to students of history.

At tulip time last year, approximately 6,000 visitors viewed sites in Tensas, McDonald estimated. He said the visitors came from 40 states and two foreign countries.

Bankers, businessman, utility companies, garden clubs and homeowners have joined the Tensas project, and the press was shown that flowers will soon be dotting the countryside in practically every spot imaginable.

The Tensas project has been designated a pilot model for community and highway beautification.

Tensas residents are counting on the beautification projects such as Dutch Gardens, coupled with the plantation homes and the town of St. Joseph — which has been partially remodeled to resemble a riverboat town of the 1850's — and the natural attraction of the abundant hunting and fishing, to put their section of Louisiana on the tourist map.

Adding spark to that hope, is the possibility that Tensas promoters may convince the operators of a Mississippi River tourist showboat to make St. Joseph a stopping point.

Lee Berwick's Delta Downs, a racetrack for quarterhorses, was also on the agenda. Berwick explained that the quarterhorse is the fastest horse in the world for short distances.

He said that quarterhorse races will be held during the summer months, strictly as a testing ground for the animals.

Pakistani Chief Tells How China Against Conflict

TOKYO (AP) — President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan declared Saturday that Communist China does not foster "conflict and war" and expressed belief all nations can live in peace.

"It has been said that China fosters conflict and war," the field marshal said at a banquet he gave in Peking for President Liu Shao-chi, Premier Chou En-lai and other Red Chinese leaders.

"As a neighbor of China, our experience has been to the contrary. And now after the sincere and cordial exchange of views that I have had with the leaders of new China, I am convinced that it is possible for all nations to live under the umbrella of international peace and harmony."

Ayub Khan said Pakistan is "prepared to collaborate with China and all other nations to strengthen the fabric of peace."

"They lost everything except what they were wearing," Collins explained. He said the Swartz Lions Club has arranged to rent a house for the Davis family, but that furnishings are needed.

Measles Dangerous Disease; Shots Available

By CAROL BRAXTON
World Staff Writer

When the word "measles" is mentioned, do you conjure up a picture of little, red blotches, or do you know that it is really a serious and dangerous disease?

Most people think that measles is such a common disease that there is very little if any reason to become alarmed—the disease is considered a natural part of growing up by most parents.

However, in recent years, the alarming facts about the side effects of the disease have come to light. Vaccines have been developed during the past decade to ward off or lighten a case of the measles.

In a pamphlet obtained from the Ouachita Parish Health Unit, figures are given which show that every year measles kills almost twice as many people as polio now does. More children died from measles than from any other childhood disease.

ONE IN SIX

One child in six develops some kind of complication such as pneumonia, ear disorders or brain damage. Researchers have found a positive relation between severe measles and such things as behavior problems, personality changes and dulling of mental ability. For example, children are often a little cranky and somewhat slower to learn after a recent bout with the disease. Of course, some of this may be the result of less attention after getting well, however, scientists warn that brain damage should not be ruled out.

All of this can be prevented or avoided by a quick visit to your private physician and an, inexpensive inoculation for your child.

Scientists have spent years researching the disease to produce effective immunizing agents. The newest vaccine was licensed only Feb. 9 by the Food and Drug Administration.

Dr. Roy Kelly, president of the Ouachita Parish Medical Society, said that the vaccine only arrived in his office Thursday. Dr. Kelly said that there are three types of vaccines available — two live ones and one killed virus vaccines. He explained that the killed type is administered in a series of three shots, three months apart and offers temporary immunization.

One of the live virus inoculations now available, Dr. Kelly reported, is made from the Edmondson strain and was put on the market about three years ago. A little gamma globulin is given along with this shot in order "to lessen the child's reactions to it."

"Immunization is supposedly for life," the local pediatrician said, "however, it hasn't been on the market long enough to be sure of this."

The second live virus is made from the Swartz strain and calls for one single injection, according to Dr. Kelly, with no gamma globulin required. It, too, possibly offers immunization for life.

Shots of either of the three types are available from physicians in the Twin Cities, he stated, for less than $10. "They cost more than the other immunizing shots," he said, " but in the long run, it is still cheaper than having to worry with the measles and possible complications."

"These vaccines are effective only against the red measles, also known as rubeola," the doctor asserted. "they are not effective against other measles, such as the German or rubella disease," Dr. Kelly added.

He said that the vaccines are not given to any children under eight months of age, because children eight months old or younger are still somewhat protected by maternal antibodies acquired from the mother during her pregnancy.

COMMON DISEASE

"Measles is so common a childhood disease that 90 per cent of our children get it before their 15th birthday," explained Dr. Luther Terry, U.S. surgeon general.

"Nevertheless," he went on to say, "it is not the harmless illness that most mothers seem to think it is."

According to statistics released by the U.S. Public Health Service, an average of 4,000,000 children a year in this country contact the disease.

The most severe and dangerous effects of the disease are encephalitis or inflammation of the brain. Figures on the occurence of encephalitis as a result of measles indicates that one in 400 to one in 1,000 are attacked.

One fourth of the victims of the disease die and a third are left permanently paralyzed or mentally retarded.

The illness usually runs its course in from seven to ten days but complications such as bronchopneumonia may prolong the illness or even cause death. Bacterial infections may also attack the child who has been weakened by a case of measles.

Recently doctors have discovered that half of all persons with measles develop an abnormal electroencephalogram (EEG) or brain-wave reading during the course of the disease. It usually clears itself up in about ten days in most cases.

CONFIRMED FACT

Doctors at Royal Free Hospital at London, England last year confirmed the fact that "emotional instability, psychiatric symptoms of reduction of intellectual power may be a final result" of slight encephalitis, based on abnormal EEG recordings which subsequently become normal.

There is also the possibility that there is some connection between measles and emphysema with polio and heart disturbances.

A pamphlet entitled, "Why All These Shots?", released by the parish health unit here, states that it is possible to prevent measles if a large dose of gamma globulin is administered as soon as possible after the child is exposed. However, the protection only lasts a few weeks, and Dr. Kelly said it is no longer effective after four weeks to eight weeks.

If gamma globulin, the pamphlet reads, is given too late, or if a smaller amount is used, it will not prevent the disease but the attack will be milder.

An attack of measles usually protects an individual for life.

Dr. Sydney S. Gellis, chief of pediatrics at Boston University Medical School, said, "The public simply does not have the fear of measles that it had of polio in the past, and experience has already shown that a universal immunization program is not as likely to be successful."

The live virus vaccines are prepared from specially processed, weakened measles virus. Although the virus has been considerably weakened it is still capable of producing durable immunity like that acquired after a natural case of the disease.

Booster doses are not necessary.

"After the child has been exposed to the disease," Dr. Kelly said, "the vaccines will do no good. Gamma globulin is used after exposure to prevent or modify the disease."

Only your physician can tell you whether your child should be vaccinated against the disease. He can also advise you about a suitable time for vaccination.

Your child can receive the shots or run the risk of infection and resultant complications.

Whites March In Selma; Crowd Spits Angry Jeers

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — A hostile and angry crowd of white persons jeered other whites protesting alleged discrimination against Negroes on Saturday at about the same time Gov. George C. Wallace announced that his troopers would halt a planned march by Negroes from here to Montgomery.

"Go home you nigger-loving . . . .," the crowd shouted at about 60 white persons in downtown Selma.

The planned 50-mile march to the Alabama capital, looked to by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. as the focal point of his efforts to dramatize the Negro voter situation in Alabama, was scheduled to start this afternoon.

Wallace said it would not be allowed.

The governor at a special news conference in Montgomery said such a march is not "conducive to the orderly flow of traffic and commerce within and through the State of Alabama. The additional hazard placed on highway travel by any such actions cannot be countenanced."

His statement added: "Such a march cannot and will not be tolerated."

The decision was reached, he said, in conjunction with the State Department of Public Safety, which would use whatever measures necessary to prevent it.

In Selma, Saturday's mile and a quarter march from a church to the Dallas County Courthouse was the first such action by white persons. The group, called Concerned White Citizens of Alabama, included professors, businessmen, housewives, school teachers and other professional people.

When the taunts came from a crowd of about 500 persons, Public Safety Director Wilson Baker worked his way through the mob in an attempt to disperse it.

He arrested one unidentified man on a charge of disorderly conduct. "I told you to quit cursing and I mean it," Baker said as the heckler was led away by two police officers.

The march from the Reform Presbyterian church in a Negro section came off without incident.

The citizens group, led by the Rev. Joseph Ellwanger of St. Paul's Lutheran church in Birmingham, stopped at the courthouse steps for about 15 minutes while the minister read a statement which outlined the groupJs aims.

Among these was a call for law enforcement officers in Alabama to stop alleged police brutality and intimidation—which officers have denied—and to make it easier for Negroes to register to vote. The voter registration drive began Jan. 18.

On another corner adjacent to the courthouse a group of about 900 Negroes voiced their support for the citizens group while the Rev. Mr. Ellwanger read his statement. The group sang "America the Beautiful," then walked the mile and a quarter back to the church.

King had said earlier that today's major march was designed to place emphasis on the right-to-vote campaign in Alabama.

BLAST SITE

Natchitoches Ruins Sifted For Causes

NATCHITOCHES, La. (UPI) —Teams of investigators representing the federal government, officials of private firms and state and local authorities, today probed the scene of Wednesday's pipeline explosion near here, searcing for the cause of the blast.

Seventeen people, nine of them children, died in the explosion and the fire which followed.

Four engineers from the Federal Power Commission, two from the U.S. Bureau of Mines and more than a dozen officials of the Tennessee Gas Pipeline Co., from Houston joined local officials in Saturday's investigation.

A short distance from the site of the explosion, the last nine victims of the tragedy were buried in simple ceremonies. Eight others were buried Thursday.

A company spokesman said it would be "at least several more days" before a cause could be determined. "And perhaps we will never know," he said.

He said many of the men from Houston had been brought here to help survivors of the blast and families of the victims with such things as temporary housing and financial needs.

The pipeline company, an operating division of Tennessee Gas Transmission Co., owners of the ruptured line, requested an independent metalurgist to conduct an investigation of the disaster.

A four-man team appointed by Gov. John J. McKeithen was also expected to conduct an investigation.

The 24-inch pipeline, one of four running thhrough a small residential area about 1.5 miles north of here, burst at dawn Wednesday and sent a wall of flames into a row of small frame houses.

Four houses and a house trailer were destroyed. The dead were trapped inside or caught by the rushing flames as they tried to flee.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Van Meter, their three children, and Mrs. Lawson Antlee were buried yesterday in one ceremony. Louis Gilcrease was laid to rest in another, and Mrs. William Ammons and her infant son in a third.

Roman Catholic Bishop Charles P. Greco of Alexandria said a Requiem Mass for all 17 victims today, even though none of them was Catholic.

The blast Wednesday dug a crater 15 feet deep where the pipeline had been and flattened the hilly area around the line. The firm said 120 feet of pipeline had to be replaced.

Burned-Out Boat Believed To Be From Louisiana

TAMPICO, Mex. (AP) — A fishing boat believed to be the "Dewey" of New Orleans was found gutted, burned and drifting about 60 miles north of Tampico Saturday. Three crewmen believed aboard were missing.

A widespread search was under way for the crew by U.S. planes and Mexican Coast Guard boats.

Officials said they believed the boat belonged to E. W. Cateora of New Orleans.

It was said to have sailed from Port Isabel, Tex., on Feb. 19, and had been unreported since. Investigators said the fire, which apparently broke out in the kitchen, occurred around last Monday or Tuesday.

It was speculated that the three unidentified crewmen drowned while trying to escape raging flames which caused severe damage to the boat.

Port Captain Jose A. Ramon Sanchez and U.S. Consul Leland A. Warner were cooperating in the search.

When found drifting about two miles from shore near Sota la Marina, about 60 miles north of here, the ship was full of shrimp and red snapper. Investigators believed it was heading back for Port Isabel when the fire broke out.

The boat was pulled into Tampico Saturday as the search intensified.

DIPLOMATIC SWITCH

Soviet May Try French Alliance

PARIS (UPI) — Russia may offer French President Charles de Gaulle a new Franco-Soviet alliance if moves to improve relations with the United States fail, responsible diplomatic sources said Saturday.

They said this may be the real significance behind Moscow's switch of ambassadors in Paris and its decision to send Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko here for talks April 25.

Diplomats and French officials saw a significant change developing in Soviet foreign policy following disclosure this week that Sergei Vinogradov, who has been Soviet ambassador here for nearly 12 years, will be replaced soon by a leading diplomatic troubleshooter, Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin.

Zorin is regarded as second only after Gromyko himself in Moscow's diplomatic hierarchy.

French officials said his assignment here in place of the popular, relatively "Westernized" Vinogradov can mean only one thing—that Moscow wants to launch serious political negotiations with France.

A hint that something of the sort is planned by Moscow was given by Vinogradov in an interview published this week in the Gaullist weekly, Notre Republique (Our Republic.)

"Our two countries, which up to now have maintained very good relations of a cultural, scientific, technical and economic nature, now are entering into a period of political relations," Vinogradov said.

The ambassador did not expand on this. But French officials interpreted it as meaning some form of political pact is in the making.

De Gaulle and the late Josef Stalin signed a 20-year alliance in December, 1944. It was denounced by the Russians themselves in 1955 immediately after the French parliament ratified the Bonn Treaty that made West Germany a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

French officials said it is improbable the Russians would propose simply reviving the old alliance. But they said it seems more than likely that Russia may suggest some new form of political pact with France.

Solon Still Bent On Aiding Those Who Use Credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., said Saturday his "truth in lending" bill, which he says would be a boon to credit buyers, appears to be boxed in again this year but he is far from giving up hope on it.

Douglas told a reporter that what he regards as a highly unfortunate decision by the Senate leadership to change the Banking Committee's membership to an even number had made it harder to win approval for it.

The senator has been pushing for the measure since 1960 but never has succeeded in getting it out of the banking group and onto the Senate floor for debate.

He and other sponsors had considered its chances good this year because of the bigger Democratic majorities in both Senate and House.

President Johnson endorsed the measure in his January economic message, just as President John F. Kennedy had previously.

WHITE HOUSE WATCHES

Steel Sessions Reopen Tuesday

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Long-delayed negotiations in the basic steel industry resume Tuesday under the watchful eyes of the White House and the nation's business community.

The talks get under way in an atmosphere of real drama underscored by an onrushing May 1 strike date.

That gives negotiators for the United Steelworkers Union and 11 top steel producers, who set industry pattern, only 53 days to reach agreement on some of the broadest proposals in the history of their collective bargaining.

But the steelworkers are still reeling from a bitter election contest that forced a recess in the basic steel negotiations last January shortly after they started.

Only slight progress was reported in that effort, a portentous sign that negotiators will need all the time they can get. Three times, the union has refused to extend its strike deadline.

Economists have been predicting for months that unrest in steel is an ill omen for the soaring national economy. President Johnson has let it be known he wants a quick and responsible settlement.

The companies are anxious to get the talks over with and to get back to business as usual. Steel has been pouring from the mills at a thunderous rate with users stockpiling against a possible strike.

They are also concerned over rising foreign imports, another important source for edgy steel users. Foreign competition means jobs and revenue irretrievably lost.

The union, too, is casting a wary eye toward the postsettlement period when business dips and layoffs are sure to follow.

Added to this there's already been one strike involving steelworkers that has been blamed on the struggle for the union's leadership. The union struck the nation's two largest can companies last week and its chief negotiator said a quick settlement would have been possible only "if this union was united."

Even as the talks resume, the union's international tellers will be busy a few blocks away preparing to hear protests in the voting for top officers.

The contest pitted David J. McDonald, 62, the silver-haired incumbent president, against his long-time friend and ally, I. W. Abel, the union's secretary treasurer.

Abel, 56, and a rock-jawed product of the mills, polled more votes but the issue remains in doubt.

The last steel strike was in 1959. It was a ruinous, 116-day shutdown that produced a settlement giving steelworkers contract improvements estimated at 40 cents an hour.

Subsequent contracts in 1962 and 1963 produced far less for the workers and their demands this year indicate they are out to get more.

The union has announced it wants wage increases, settlement of all local issues and enactment of a broad, five-point program of total job security.

There has been no estimate of the money demands by either side but published reports have put it at more than 25 cents. This would be far more than the two per cent the industry says it is willing to accept.

Board Blasted By Area Solon On College Fees

JONESVILLE (Special) — State Rep. David I. Patten of Jonesville Saturday blasted the State Board of Education's decision to raise tuition fees in state colleges and universities from $40 a year to $150.

Patten issued a statement. Here is the text: "I think it's ridiculous. I am shocked that the State Board of Education would make such a decision at this time when the new administration had worked so hard and passed the student loan program, making it possible for any student regardless of financial status to attent college.

"This raise will greatly hinder the program. The results of this tuition raise would be to keep poor people from attending college, those that are making the greatest sacrifice.

"Unless this decision of the state board of education is reconsidered and changed, I feel that it will be necessary for the upcoming session of the Legislature to take action against this measure."

LORD MORRISON
. . . Atlee's Deputy

Lord Morrison, Boy From Slum, Dies At London

LONDON (AP) — Lord Morrison of Lambeth, the Cockney errand boy who rose to deputy prime minister in Britain's post-World War II Labor party government, died Saturday night of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 77.

The elder statesman and peer of the realm died at Queen Mary's Hospital at Sidcup in Kent. He entered the hospital three weeks ago.

The son of a London policeman, Morris became deputy leader under Prime Minister Clement Attlee in the 1945 election landslide that ousted the late Sir Winston Churchill's Conservative government. He had served under Churchill as home secretary during the war.

As the Labor party's master administrator, Morrison played a key role in bringing Attlee to power. He once called it the fruit of 30 years' work.

Morrison also became foreign secretary for seven months in 1951 after the death of Ernest Bevin.

In 1955, he was passed over in favor of the late Hugh Gaitskell as the Labor party's new leader. He also lost his job that year as deputy leader of the opposition in the House of Commons.

Morrison quit the Commons in 1959 and was elevated to the peerage as Baron Morrison of Lambeth.

When Herbert Stanley Morrison was an errand boy in London's slums, a phrenologist — one who claims to read fortunes by feeling the bumps on a person's head — told him he might one day become prime minister. The fact that he never quite made it was one of the greatest disappointments of his life, but the phrenologist started Morrison on his road to fame.

A self-made man who quit school at 14, Morrison became attracted to the Labor party before he was 21. He entered Parliament in 1923, lost the following year, but became transport minister in 1929 in the first Labor government. He was defeated a second time in 1931 but returned to the Commons four years later.

Under Churchill, Morrison was responsible for organizing Britain's civil defense. He was a member of the war Cabinet although he had been a registered conscientious objector during World War I.

Growers Apply For Insurance In Catahoula

JONESVILLE (Special) — Catahoula cotton and soybean growers are now filing applications for Federal Crop Insurance, it was announced by Frank Wiley, local representative for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

Catahoula and Concordia parishes were approved by the federal agency for the insurance in time for the 1965 crops. This now brings the number of Louisiana parishes included in the FCIC program to 20 parishes.

"This indicates strongly that an increasing number of Louisiana farmers are recognizing the need for effective protection of the money they must risk each year to produce their crops," Wiley said. "This cooperative program for farmers helps them take a more businesslike attitude toward the problem of protecting their investment," he added.

"When crop failure strikes through drought, insects, freeze or other causes, it hurts everyone including the merchants, bankers, equipment dealers and others. Every business and profession feels the impact of the loss also," he went on to say.

Among the first to sign up for the insurance in Catahoula parish was Albert Huff, a cotton producer of Harrisonburg.

Cotton and soybean farmers in Catahoula and Concordia parishes may now protect their crop production investment with the federal crop insurance, Wiley went on to explain.

"Cotton growers are guaranteed their crops will reach a specified number of pounds of lint net. If their crop falls short through one of the insured causes of loss, the insurance pays the difference at a dollar rate of coverage chosen beforehand by the farmer himself."

The Federal All - Risk crop insurance program covers both cotton and soybeans against drought, freeze, excessive moisture, plant disease, insects, fire, hurricane, tornado, hail, windstorm, frost, flood or any unavoidable causes, it was explained further. The soybean rate of coverage if figured by bushels rather than pounds of lint as on cotton.

This year the number of crops in the state covered by this voluntary self - help program was up 15 per cent from 1963 when over $4.5 million in crop production expenses on more than 62,000 acres of Louisiana farmland were protected by federal crop insurance.

"Federal crop insurance does not insure — profit — it insures farm production investment costs," Wiley stated.

"Federal crop insurance losses," he added, "are paid from the premiums paid in by the farmers who grew 450,000 crops during 1964, many of whom have been in the program since it started. It is just like putting money away in the good years to take care of the bad years."

PHILIPPINE REACTION

Lone Japanese Shell Burst Sets Off Universal Tremors

EDITOR'S NOTE — A Japanese shell that never went off has exploded into a crisis in American-Phillippine relations. The "Yankee go home" signs are up, but cooler heads on both sides are attempting to repair the breach between the United States and its oldest ally in Asia.

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

MANILA (AP) — The rich Philippine soil of Luzon is dangerously imbedded with corroding shells of World War II, just waiting to go off.

Last December one of them, about the size of a beer can, finally "exploded" in a manner beyond its Japanese manufacturer's wildest dreams. Its echoes still reverberate in Manila, Washington and Peking.

The shell was found the morning of Dec. 17 a few feet from a Quonset hut classroom of the Wurtsmith School at Clarkfield, a United States base 60 miles north of Manila.

THE GUARD

The slim, neat Filipino guard who reported it, Victorio Doria, set off a chain of events that seriously clouded the friendship between the United States and the Philippines, its staunchest Asian ally.

In the county where Gen. Douglas MacArthur has been revered as a liberating national hero, Uncle Sam was burned in effigy. A handful of youthful demonstrators raised the cry "Yankee go home" although, as Finance Secretary Rufino Hechanova said, "The demonstrations here tended to be magnified when printed abroad."

That shell and the demonstrations it caused, altered, perhaps forever, what one longtime American resident called "the easygoing and probably overcomplacent friendship of the past."

The change has been 20 years arriving. Responsible Philippine and American officials agree that it surfaced at a critical time — with the islands embroiled in a bitter election and beset by financial worries, government corruption and unstable Asian neighbors.

There is no possibility the Philippine government will ask for removal of the American bases — only a handful of the Filipinos want that. Both President Diosdado Macapagal and his opponent, Senate President Ferdinand Marcos, are aware their country is deeply sympathetic to the United States — and they ask no more than revision of the treaty governing United States bases in the Philippines.

RED CHINA

But, eyeing the growing influence of Red China, many Filipinos are also seriously weighing their long-cherished "special relationship" with the United States. One respected editorialist wrote "more will be demanded of the relationship and if more does not materialize, the neutralist cause will gain."

Such thoughts began seriously to concern Filipinos about the time American fortunes started downhill in Viet Nam and Indonesia's President Sukarno began preaching of the "new emerging forces." Sukarno's line has convinced few Filipinos. However, it has a certain appeal to some who feel racial ties with the Indonesians. And it is stronger among the young people whose wartime memories of liberation from the Japanese are dim.

Against this complex background, 21-year-old Airman 1C. Larry Cole borrowed a .22 rifle last Nov. 25 and went bird hunting on the Crow Valley gunnery range of Clark Air Base. It was late in the afternoon and he was off duty. He said he saw several Filipinos scavenging scrap metal and fired some shots to frighten them. One of those shots killed Rogelio Balagtas, 16.

A few weeks later two Marine guards at Subic Bay, a U.S. Navy base, spotted a small boat edging toward a beach near an ammunition dump. A warning shot fired into the shallow water evidently splintered and a fragment which ricocheted killed Gonzalo Villedo.

Immediately there were editorial demands that Philippine courts be granted jurisdiction over the two cases — although the Philippine government has never officially asked for it.

To calm the outcry raised by the shootings, U.S. ambassador William McCormick Blair Jr., a suave, soft-spoken onetime aide to Adlai E. Stevenson, called in eight Philippine newsmen for a private briefing — which they were told they could use without citing Blair as the source.

He emphasized the immense security problem at the sprawling bases. Thieves have made off with a mountain of loot ranging from cigarettes to airport runway lights. More dangerous, the devil-may-care robbers value explosives which are used, among other things, for fishing. They frequently have carted off whole 1,000-pound bombs.

Almost casually, as Blair recalls, he mentioned also that an investigation was under way at Clark Air Base. A Filipino guard had reported that two unidentified Filipinos had tossed an unexploded shell over a wire fence into a schoolyard the day before.

Two million tourists — a record number — will throng Yellowstone Park this summer.

IN SUNNY EGYPT

Cost Is Cheap Near Pharaohs

GIZA, Egypt (AP) In Egypt it doesn't cost much to live next door to pharaohs, even the most renowned of them.

Two retired Americans have proved it by setting up a "home away from home" at the foot of the fabled pyramids of Cheops, Chephren and Mycerinus. They said it has cost them a little over $200.

Jack Carrigan, 67, and Louis Miller Bailey, 63, of Hollywood, said they left California because they were tired of its "lurid industrialization." They came to Egypt in search of "a place with nothing more than sun and sand."

They roamed the Giza plateau in search of a place to settle. Giza, renowned for its 3,500-year-old pyramids, has lots of sun and sand. It also has a few tumbledown army barracks left over from the British occupation. Nobody had thought of renting them before but Carrigan and Bailey decided there was no harm trying.

They were lucky. Their request so astonished Egyptian authorities that red tape was forgotten. The Egyptian government agreed to rent one dilapidated barracks at 20 cents a square meter per year. Bailey and Carrigan wanted to buy the land and the stone building, but the authorities said they couldn't do that. Archaeological treasures might still be buried underneath.

Doors and windows had to be put in. The walls were painted and the rooms were covered with an old hand-hewn wooden ceiling.

With their Cadillac hitched to a wagon to help the donkey, Bailey and Carrigan began transporting bits and pieces bought from ancient bazaars up to their new pyramid-side "fun-house." Mirrors with arabesque decorations and armchairs with inlaid Koranic inscriptions were brought in.

The living room now is almost complete, with pharaohnic paintings, tables and chairs carved with beautiful calligraphic Arabic from the Korean and verses from Omar Khayam.

The bedroom and an 120-foot expanse of unroofed but walled hall remain to be furnished. The wagon turns up once or twice weekly loaded with old furniture.

There are still some problems. There is no running water or electricity. This doesn't bother the new tenants.

"Candles are not bad at all. They create a placid and poetic atmosphere in the house," Bailey said.

As for water, two Egyptian servants bring buckets full of fresh water from nearby. They also guard and clean the house.

A pair of carved limestone lions, claimed to be 150-year-old remnants of the Turkish occupation of Egypt, help on guard duty. Carrigan said the pair cost only $5. A $6 handwoven straw carpet covers the floor.

The two Americans luxuriate happily over weekends at their candle-lit "home away from home" while they take the fresh air of the desert and watch the superb unobstructed view of flood-lit pyramids.

Spring Is Coming Soon; Will It Save Flowers?

By ROBERT SIMONTON
World Staff Writer

Twin Cities residents have been complaining that "flowers are blooming too soon" this year. It's not that the buds are popping out earlier, it's just that our recent very inclement weather has been anything but conducive to their livelihood.

At any rate, on March 20 the sun, northbound, crosses the equator, day and night are each 12 hours in duration — and Spring will be with us at 2:05 p.m. CST. That's two weeks hence, so let's hope weather usually associated with this season comes then and we don't have to fret anymore about the well-being of the flowers and plants — as well as our own.

ON ESCAPING

Since the first cave man put rhythm to his long hunting epic, music has remained a prevalent cultural form in all societies and in all levels of civilization. It is interesting to note what a clear reflection of its time music has had down through the ages. And it is even more interesting to take note of the current trends. Is today's popular music a cultural barometer of our modern society?

During the splendid heights reached by Vienna, the waltz led a gracious and elegant train of music that perfectly fit the times. In the Old West days in America, the sad, lonesome and oft-times tragic western ballad reflected perfectly the people and the times. During the war years, each locale touched by the terrible times had its own peculiar music, denoting the tempestuous and unsettled aspects of that era.

The prevailing music today — not necessarily the best but the most popular — is the "pop tune" being recorded by countless vocal and instrumental groups here and in England. A typical example is entitled "Downtown." The lyrics advise the listener to forget all their worries, forget all their cares, and go downtown — where all the lights are bright, and things stay open all night . . . . It's clearly an example of escapism, of an invitation to leave the world of reality. Another high-riding tune today is "Love Potion Number Nine," which also suggests an answer to the problems of the day other than the usual.

Whether this type music is an indication or barometer of the times that produce them is debatable. Nonetheless . . . are not all forms of music, no matter in which age produced, merely escape mechanisms?

It was suggested in this column recently that the Ouachita Valley Museum was in dire need of a new sign for its facade. Now, it appears the museum is in need of an entire new home. It is reported that the Ouachita Valley Historical Society has been asked to vacate the building on St. John. More on this item later.

PHOTO EXHIBIT

Bruce C. Vaughan Jr., Springdale, Ark. photographer, has a collection of his work on public display in the College Union building auditorium at Northeast State College. The exhibit, which will be up through March 14, is sponsored by the North Louisiana Camera Club in cooperation with the Department of Art at NLSC.

"New Yorkers are so alienated that nobody talks to anybody on a subway platform, and there are few empty lots where women can turn into pigeons." This observation is made by critic Mary Campbell in connection with two new plays showing at the Cherry Lane Theatre off Broadway — in the "Theatre 1965, New Playwrights Series." They are "Pigeons" by Lawrence Osgood and "Conerico Was Here to Stay" by Frank Gagliano.

SIHANOUK OF CAMBODIA

Prince Sees Little Future For Indochinese Alliance

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk said Saturday Communist North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong refuse to negotiate a peaceful settlement in Viet Nam until U.S. forces pull out.

The Cambodian chief of state said he is fully aware that if the United States leaves South Viet Nam "we shall be face to face with communism, and with Vietnamese communism. That is the most terrible kind."

Thus the prince all but conceded defeat for the Indochinese peoples conference he called.

Backed by a neutralist South Vietnamese delegation, Sihanouk has plugged at the conference for guaranteed neutrality for South Viet Nam. He has not advocated prior withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Viet Nam.

Sihanouk told the Cambodian Military Academy in a speech that the North Vietnamese Fatherland Front party and the South Viet Nam National Liberation Front had refused to budge at the conference. After referring to the "terrible kind" of Vietnamese communism, he added:

"We don't live in the clouds," he said. "That is why we have pleaded for years for a political solution. If we had that solution a few years ago we would have had a perfectly neutralized South Viet Nam and south Laos."

Sihanouk stressed he meant south Laos since "north Laos is done for because of its occupation by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao."

"Now neither Communist China, nor North Viet Nam, nor the Pathet Lao, nor the Liberation Front accept negotiation," Sihanouk declared.

He said the Communists were willing to go on fighting "for 20 years until victory" unless the American forces left unconditionally.

Tran Van Huu, former South Vietnamese premier who heads a neutralist delegation of South Vietnamese, was surprised at this statement. He said he knew nothing of North Vietnamese attending the conference refusing to negotiate. He noted that the conference, scheduled to close Tuesday, had yet to draft a resolution on South Viet Nam.

In his address, Sihanouk refused to concede that the conference was a complete failure. He said it "served to demonstrate to the United States that I was right when I said in 1962 that unless you neutralize South Viet Nam now it will be too late. Now we are in 1965 and it is too late."

"Even in case of an American departure from South Viet Nam, we shall never turn toward the Americans," Sihanouk said. "We shall not receive one rifle not one shell from them.

"The Viet Minh (North Vietnamese) here has its own fifth column in the Red Cambodians, but they can't do anything against us nationalists as long as we don't accept foreign aid. We shall not accept U.S. aid. It is not when the United States is beaten that we should turn to the Americans."

SILVER WATERS COUNCIL

Girl Scout Week To Begin In Twin Cities Area Today

Local girl scouts will join with more than three million others throughout the country to celebrate Girl Scout Week, today through Saturday.

The 2600 members of the Silver Waters Girl Scout Council will commemorate the Girl Scout Brithday in a variety of ways throughout Neighborhoods.

"A Promise in Action" is the theme of Girl Scout Week and for the Girl Scout's 53rd birthday on March 12.

March 12 is also the ninth anniversary of the Silver Waters Girl Scout Council which is headquartered in Monroe and serves the 11 northeast Louisiana parishes of East Carroll, West Carroll, Morehouse, Union, Jackson, Ouachita, Caldwell, Richland, Franklin, Tensas and Madison.

This date marks the anniversary of the first troop meeting in Savannah, Ga. Mrs. Juliette Gordon Low started the movement after returning from England, where she became acquainted with Lord Baden Powell, founder of Boy Scouting in England.

Since the first troop of 18 girls, more than 20 million members have belonged to this organization which inspires girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism, and service. It prepares them to become happy and resourceful citizens.

All members have made the Girl Scout Promise to do their duty to God and Country, to help other people at all times, and to obey the Girl Scout laws of loyalty, honesty, courtesy, cheerfulness, usefulness, kindness and thrift.

A board, elected by delegates from Neighborhoods in the Council, carries out the work of the Council. It has such obligations as organizing and maintaining troops, financing the work of the Council, providing camping opportunities, securing and training volunteers, providing an office, and employing professional staff members to help volunteers.

Adult volunteers who serve on Neighborhood Service Teams, or as leaders, assistant leaders, troop committee members, program consultants and special services people, work together with the board to provide a well-rounded program for girls from seven to 17.

These adults participate in many hours of training and preparation to offer this program of activities that is centered around the arts, the home, and the out-of-doors. The program is geared to the needs and interests of girls at each of four age levels: Brownies (grades two and three), Juniors (grades four, five and six), Cadettes (grades seven, eight and nine), and Seniors (grades 10, 11 and 12).

Officers and Board members of the Council are Mrs. D. V. Loflin Jr., president; Mrs. John Salisbury, first vice president; Mrs. Thad J. Ryan Jr., second vice president; Mrs. Cortlandt McCoy, third vice president; Mrs. Beryl C. Franklin, secretary; Francis T. McLeland, treasurer; Mrs. Patrick Siudy, program chairman; John Luffey, finance chairman; Bobby Pappas, public relations chairman; Mrs. J. Floyd Stone Jr., personnel chairman; and Mrs. John Sherrouse Jr., Mrs. H. D. Touchstone, Mrs. J. T. Spencer, Mrs. Mortimer Raphael, Mrs. Jack Holt, Judge Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. William S. Gannaway and Mrs. Jack Jaggers, members-at-large.

Local Girl Scouts have just ended their annual cookie sale. Profits from this sale go to build and equip campsites and to extend the camping program. The Council has recently secured an established camp site in Jackson Parish near Chatham. This camp will be developed with cookie sale money and with the help of businesses and individuals.

The troop and day camp, "Pinewood," is on the Ouachita River north of Monroe near the Ouachita City site. The Council operated four day camps there last summer. Plans are being made this summer for day camps in Monroe, West Monroe, Bastrop, Jonesboro, Lake Providence, Delhi and the usual one at "Pinewood."

Eighth senior Girl Scouts from the Council have been selected to attend the 1965 Girl Scout Senior Roundup July 15-28, in Farragut, Idaho. Roundup will be a city of 6,000 tents — the largest encampment for girls in the Western World.

Approximately 11,000 girls and adults, including 9,000 Senior Girl Scouts, 15 through 17 years of age, from every state and U.S. possession and 200 Girl Guides from 40 other countries will attend.

Girls from the Silver Waters Council who will attend are Janet Brown, Gay Gannaway, Kyle Gregory, Barbara Kurtz, Marianne Salisbury, Kaki Stone, all of Monroe; Becky Mann of West Monroe; and Johnette Edwards of Farmerville. Adults who will accompany them are Mrs. Norman Huckabee, Miss Mickie Varnado, both of Monroe; and Mrs. Cortlandt McCoy of West Monroe.

AGAINST PORTRAITS

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Portraits of the British royal family continue to hang in some white-run clubs, and some Zambia officials don't like it.

Andrew Mutemba, Western Province resident minister, says these clubs are "bent on perpetuating the colonial image" in Zambia, formerly Northern Rhodesia, and he plans to ask the government to take action.

West Monroyan Suffers Injuries In Car Mishap

Robert E. Butler, 21-year-old West Monroyan of Rt. 4, was reported to be in satisfactory condition at Glenwood Hospital Saturday after being involved in a one-car accident early Saturday morning.

The accident victim said he suffered severe facial lacerations and some slight bruises.

West Monroe police said the accident occurred about 1 a.m. when a car driven by Butler was headed east on Arkansas Road at a high rate of speed and ran off the right side of the highway. Officers estimated that the car went 210 feet after leaving the road, then cut back across the road and went 60 feet on the left shoulder before hitting a post. Police said the car then turned around and went 45 feet backward, knocking down several pine trees.

Butler was booked for reckless driving.

President Hopes To Finish Work On Crime Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson hopes to complete work on his special message to Congress on crime and juvenile delinquency over the weekend, the White House said Saturday.

Assistant press secretary Joseph Laitin said Johnson plans to work most of today on the message and indicated that it might go to Congress Monday.

Laitin also announced that Johnson will sign the Appalachian bill at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

This bill, the first major legislation to reach Johnson's desk this year, authorizes up to $1,092,000,000 for 360 counties in the 11-state mountain area stretching from northern Pennsylvania to Alabama.

State Guidance Conference Set In Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (Special) — The annual Spring Conference of the Louisiana Guidance Association will be held in Baton Rouge Thursday and Friday, March 11 and 12, according to an announcement made by the executive committee. The Louisiana Guidance Association is the professional organization of counselor in the private and public schools, and colleges in Louisiana.

"Guidance: Practices, Issues, and Challenges" will be the keynote of the conference. Included will be sectional meeting for elementary, junior high, senior high, and college personnel, and addresses of general interest to all groups.

Dr. Glenn A. Cole, Director of the Student Counseling Service, University of Arkansas, will address the conference on "The Challenge of Vocational Guidance," and "Some Controversial Issues in School Guidance Testing." Dr. Cole is well known for his work in guidance and counseling in Arkansas. He is a member of the American Psychological Association and the American Personnel and Guidance Association.

NEW AWARDS ADDED

Region 3 Science Fair Is Set Here

Something new has been added for the Region 3 Science Fair, scheduled to be held at Northeast Louisiana State College here on Friday and Saturday, March 12-13.

Director Emmett J. Foster said sweepstakes trophies will be awarded to schools accumulating the highest number of award points in both the junior and senior division.

"These new awards are being given in appreciation for outstanding work with the students in science," he said.

The district science fair program calls for registration from 2 to 7 p.m. on Friday and again from 7 to 9 a.m. on Saturday. Judging will be from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon. The awards assembly will be held at 2 p.m.

Also new this year are tours of NLSC science departments for Science Fair participants. The tours are scheduled for Saturday morning from 9:30 until noon.

The Region 3 fair is being held again this year in the NLSC College Union Building. The public is invited to come to the campus to view entries on Saturday morning.

Senior division contest categories are electronics, physics (including engineering, astronomy and meteorology), chemistry (including biochemistry), earth science (including geology, geography conservation and archeology, biology (including botany, zoology and human biology), social science (including history, civics, sociology, etc.) and mathematics.

In the junior division, which is for 7th, 8th and 9th graders in junior high school, the divisions are biological sciences, physical sciences and mathematics.

All first, second and third place winners in the senior division will be certified for entry in the 1965 Louisiana State Science Fair, which will be held at Alexandria on April 2-3, Foster said.

First and second place winners in the junior division will be certified.

Further information on the Region 3 Science Fair may be obtained by contacting local science teachers or by writing directly to: Prof. E. J. Foster, Physics Department, Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe, La.

COINS AND COLLECTORS

New Design Can Always Change

By JOHN BLUCK

Even after the design for a new coin has been approved and copies of the coin have been struck and put into circulation it does not necessarily mean the design is final and will not be changed.

There are numerous examples of new coin designs having been revised months or even years after the first coins were struck. A good example is the Liberty Head or "V" nickel. In 1883 the last of the Shield nickels was struck and the new Liberty series began. The obverse carried the head of Liberty within a border of stars and the date. Centered on the reverse was a large Roman numeral "V" to indicate the value of five cents. These were the major features.

The new coin was well received, almost too much so. Since the only mark of value was the large "V" it was a simple matter for enterprising con men of the day to gold-plate the new nickels and pass them for $5 gold pieces which they resembled. These so - called "racketeer nickels" caused the much needed reverse design change later in the first year of issue.

In modifying the reverse of the coin the word "cents" was placed below the "V". This made it quickly apparent that the coin was a nickel and not a gold coin of $5 value. Many of the early gold - plated coins are still around, but their value is only slightly more than for the unplated coin. The Treasury department considers these gold-plated coins as having been tampered with, making them subject to confiscation.

Another coin which did not continue with its original design is the Buffalo nickel. When first struck in 1913 the reverse showed the buffalo standing on a mound. Later in the year the reverse was changed with the base upon which the buffalo stands being made into a thinner straight line. At the same time the value "Five Cents" which had been struck in higher relief than most of the coin was lowered to the level of the coin's rim to assure that it would wear better in circulation. As in the case of the "V" nickel, there are two distinct varieties of the Buffalo nickel in the first year of issue.

There have been other instances of a design being changed to minimize the effect of wear in circulation. This happened with the Standing Liberty quarter, but the need for a more durable date was not the determining factor for the first design change. The quarter was first struck in 1916. Coins of this year and the ones struck early in 1917 are quite different from those struck later in 1917 and until 1930. This was one of the more controversial coins to be adopted by the United States, and it underwent one of the more drastic modifications.

The coin is often considered one of the better examples of the coiner's art, but it created a sensation when first issued. Designer Herman A. MacNeil created a coin with the standing figure of Liberty in the classic Greek tradition. Unfortunately, he had not taken into consideration the prudish reaction to follow when the public discovered that Miss Liberty was lightly clad in a flowing Greek robe which exposed her bosom and much of the rest of her well endowed figure.

The outcry from a large segment of the population which considered the female figure an outrage and an affront to decency resulted in a more modest attire for the shapely young lady. When the modified coin started circulating later in 1917 Liberty was no longer bare from the waist up. Instead she appeared modestly clad in a vest of steel armor from hip to shoulder, but still with bare thighs.

This change in deference to American morals and modesty was not the only modification in the original design. The stars on the reverse were rearranged and the position of the eagle with outspread wings was raised. Many of these 1916 and early 1917 coins are still in circulation, usually with dates worn off, and many of the modified version still found in circulation also have dates worn smooth.

Since the dates originally were struck in higher relief than the rest of the coin it became apparent that another change was necessary if any coins of this series were to be found with dates after circulating for a few years. Another change made in 1925 recessed the date, assuring better wearing qualities. It is for this reason that most of the coins of this series found in circulation with dates are of the years 1925 to 1930 inclusive.

Another coin design change brought about by public pressure affected the Lincoln cent. This coin was designed by Victor D. Brenner and his now-famous initials appeared on the bottom of the reverse when the cents were placed in circulation in 1909. Another outraged cry went up from an outspoken minority who thought it the height of egotism that the designer's initials should appear so prominently on a coin.

The initials were removed, creating one of the truly scarce coins in the Lincoln series — the 1909-S VDB with a mintage of 484,000! Friends of Brenner, however, were successful in having his initials restored in 1918, this time to the obverse side. But it takes a sharp eye and the aid of a magnifying glass to locate the familiar VDB initials on the under edge of Lincoln's shoulder at the coin rim.

These were not the only U.S. coins to undergo design changes. There are many others dating back to the 1790's. The examples cited are coins still possibly in circulation and which may be encountered in pocket change.

Concert Is Set At Grambling

GRAMBLING (Special) — John Schneider, pianist and airline executive, will appear at the Grambling College auditorium for a concert Tuesday under the joint auspices of the College Lyceum committee and Air France.

Schneider has an impressive musical background, developed under the tutorship of the late Dwight Anderson at Kentucky's University of Louisville. He went to Beberige Webster and the Juilliard School of Music in New York. In Gotham City, Schneider won a Fulbright scholarship in piano to the Conservatoire de Paris.

GREAT SOCIETY PROGRAM

C Of C Raps LBJ's Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Chamber of Commerce rapped President Johnson's budget as "expansionist" Saturday night and challenged what it called the federal intervention and control implications in some of his "Great Society" proposals.

While asserting there is little quarrel with objectives of the President's program, the chamber statement said:

"Yet specific proposals to implement these goals reflect repetition of familiar and oft-argued expansion of government activity into private economic life.

"Thus we see repeated calls for packaging and labeling controls, regulation of terms of credit disclosure, expansion of the role of the U.S. Employment Service in the hiring process, federal operation and funding of technical services for industry, federal credit and major influence on industrial development in 'lagging' regions, and federal planning and coordination experiments in supply of power."

The chamber's statement was prepared by its director of economic research, Dr. Carl H. Madden, for submission to the Senate-House Economic Committee.

Continuing its discussion of what it calls "some of these conventional interventionist schemes," the statement said:

"Generally, some of them imply that most businesses regularly engage in deceptive practices, that most consumers lack intelligence or knowledge to protect their own interests, and that therefore government regulation — with all its dangers of red tape, stultifying rules, and entrenched administrative interests — is to be preferred.

"This doctrinaire and conspiratorial theory of business-consumer relations seems the opposite of a spirit of business-government cooperation or freedom from coercion."

Referring to expansion of the U.S. Employment Service, the statement said:

"Even in countries with compulsory registration of job vacancies it is widely recognized that private hiring is more effective and quicker.

"Yet the U.S. Employment Service moves into the college placement field, the professional field, and other fields. And it proposes to collect job vacancy data in each major labor market apparently to enforce its service by a monopoly of job vacancy information."

The chamber said the most important problem facing the economy in 1965 is the balance of payments.

"Item by item, the possibility of further reductions in the payments drain of military and foreign aid should be explored," it said, adding:

"Before the administration moves to curb the flow of business capital abroad, it should vigorously increase its efforts to persuade our allies to share more equitably our foreign military and aid grant expenditures.

"It should also intensify its efforts to reduce tariffs and other barriers to trade, including export subsidies involving discriminatory freight-rate differentials, tax rebates, and long-term credit guarantees. In addition, further revision of the U.S. tax schedules should be undertaken to stimulate both domestic and foreign investment."

Honduras Junta Drops 3 Officers

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI)—Three high ranking air force officers have been forced to resign, apparently because the military junta government doubted their loyalty, it was reported Saturday.

The chief of staff demanded resignations from Col. Armando Escalon, commandant of the air force; Col. Marion Chinchilla, his chief of operations, and Maj. Rafael Ponce, chief of internal security.

The three men refused at first to resign, but later yielded under pressure from other officers of the air force.

No reason for the forced resignations was announced. Observes here linked it with Liberal (opposition) leader Ramon Villeda Morales' recent remark that "there are officers ... who differ with the policy of the head of the government (Col. Osvaldo Lopez Arellano)."

Madrid Student Shot In Struggle

MADRID (UPI)—One student was reported shot and another captured in a running gun battle with police and civil guards outside Madrid Saturday.

The reported incident, not immediately confirmed by authorities, was the latest in a series of clashes between police and students who are demanding more freedom.

First reports said police saw two students, one Spanish and the other Italian, distributing leaflets this morning and that an auto chase followed.

Shots were exchanged between the students' car and pursuing police near Getafe, about 10 miles outside the capital, according to informed sources.

One of the students was shot in the mouth, they said.

Sen. Ellender Dislikes Plan Of Rent Subsidy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., Saturday termed "unconscionable" President Johnson's proposal for direct rent subsidies to needy families.

"I cannot think of another program in all our government which so directly takes from those who are able to pay taxes and delivers to those in poor circumstances," Ellender said.

If the proposal is ever written into law, Ellender continued in a television address for delivery in Louisiana, "we will be pushed ever deeper on the uncharted seas of deficit spending in search of the promised land, or, to use the current expression, the Great Society."

Ellender said that as he understood the President's proposal, rent subsidy payments would be keyed to a family's income, with the government making up the difference between 20 per cent of the income and whatever the rent of the living quarters might be.

The President, he said, presented no estimate "as to what this scheme will cost the taxpayers and more than likely no reliable figure can be arrived at."

In addition, Ellender said, the recommendation has been made that urban renewal funds be made available to individuals to repair and rehabilitate their homes.

Curfew Imposed On Malay Coast

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI)—Authorities imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew on more than 100 miles of coastline facing Indonesia Saturday, apparently in anticipation of new guerrilla raids.

Security officials in Malacca and Negri Sembilan states ordered the people to keep themselves and their boats off west-coast beaches and out of territorial waters from 7 p.m. to 6 a.m. daily until further notice.

Jack Ruby Will Leave Jail Cell

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Jack Ruby, hidden behind jail bars most of the time since he drew the death sentence for killing presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, will emerge for a court hearing Monday.

His appearance may go far toward determining whether the former night spot operator is adjudged insane and thus escapes the electric chair.

Ruby will go before Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown for a hearing on a long-dormant defense request for a sanity trial. Brown scheduled it 10 days ago at the direction of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Individuals acquainted with Ruby, his family and various lawyers who have bowed into and out of the case expect the Dallas jurist to order such a trial. It could be lengthy. Nationally known medical experts are sure to be called.

Several psychiatrists have expressed informal opinions that Ruby is mentally disturbed. Some of the lawyers say there has been steady deterioration during his long months in the Dallas County Jail. A doctor gave him tranquilizer pills for what was described as "psychotic depression."

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade, in turn, promises his staff will offer evidence calculated to prove the defendant is sane. Wade said Ruby will be taken into the courtroom although the law does not make his presence mandatory.

This will bring Ruby back into public view for the first time in more than 10 months. He lacks only a few days of marking two anniversaries — his conviction last March 14 for murdering the man who on Nov. 22, 1963 assassinated President John F. Kennedy on a Dallas street, and his 54th birthday March 25.

Another factor in tte case aside from Ruby's condition is an effort by his family to fire defense lawyer Joe Tonahill of Jasper, Tex.

Tonahill, disputing the power of attorney claimed by Ruby's sister — Eva Grant of Dallas — has vowed to stay with the case through a final appeal. He and Phil Burleson of Dallas are the only legal staff members on the job throughout. At least five others have come and gone.

Relatives have delivered to the courts a signed notice from Ruby dismissing Tonahill. The lawyer contends it is invalid because Ruby is insane.

Ruby's legal staff filed what is known as an affidavit of insanity last April 27 but asked Brown in June to delay considering it. The matter was left pending while counsel worked instead on Ruby's appeal of the death sentence.

Brown set Monday's hearing after the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals told him it wants to know whether Ruby is legally sane before it hears arguments on the appeal, which had been set for March 10.

SCENES of YESTERYEAR
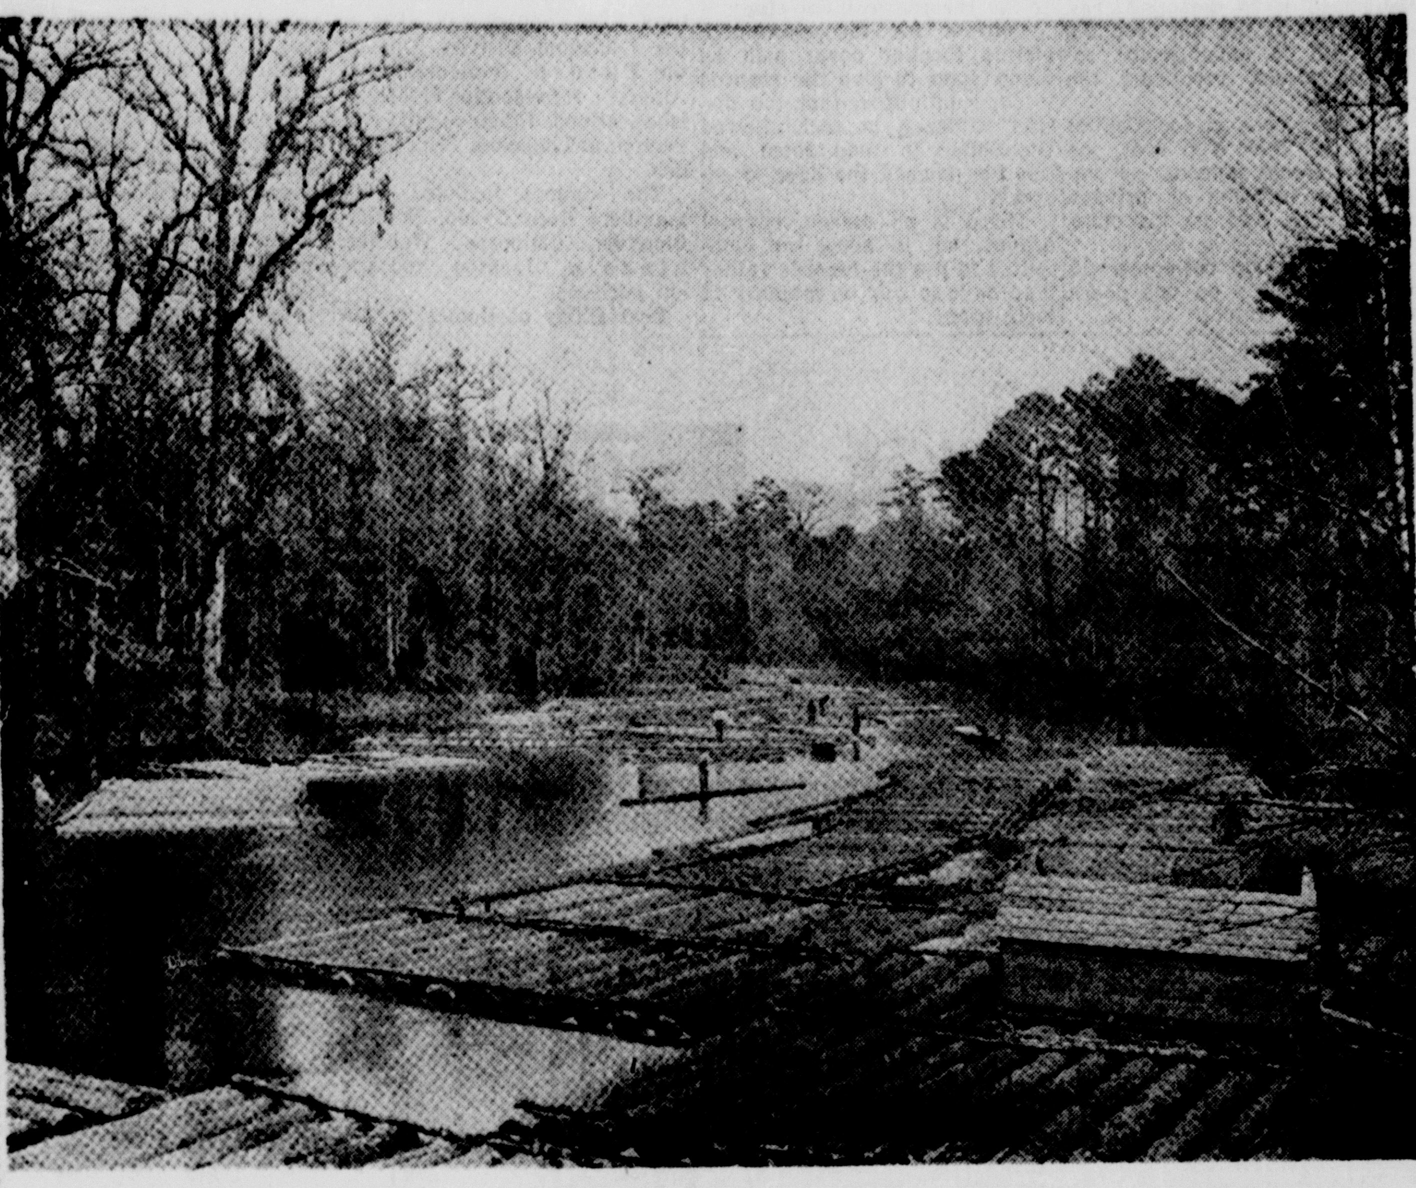
. . . in the Twin Cities



A SCENE OF YESTERYEAR, which brings memories to many of the oldtimers in the area, is this one taken on Bayou Bartholomew, but seen often along the Ouachita river at Monroe. The logs have been pegged together into rafts and were floated down the Bartholomew to the Ouachita river and down to the old Dan Breard Mill, located across the levee from the present John Fox home, 1400 Riverside Dr. In the lower right of the picture is shown a small house in which the man, or men, in charge of the log rafts lived during the trip downstream. These men poled the rafts back into the main stream when they were caught on the brush along the banks. Once at the mill, the rafts were tied up along the bank and used as needed. This was sent in by Murray Hudson.

Probers Seeking Hearing Records

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A legislative investigating committee goes into court here Monday in effort to force Dist. Atty. L. O. Fusilier, Ville Platte, to hand over some controversial records of a State Board of Education probe that resulted in the ouster of architects and engineers from a $1.2 million student center project at Northwestern State College, Natchitoches.

He claims that to do so would violate grand jury secrecy. This claim is based on the fact that the Evangeline Parish Grand jury took custody, through him, of the probe records from Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion and conducted an investigation.

A ruling by Gremillion has supported Fusilier's stand. The attorney general ruled anything being investigated by a grand jury is secret.

The committee, headed by Sen. Adrian Duplantier, New Orleans, disagrees. Chairman Duplantier says the grand jury reported it found no evidence of criminal violation in Evangeline Parish—and, in any case, the records can't forever be hidden from the legislative probers by being classified as a grand jury secret.

Twice the committee's attempts to probe further into the public construction contract and come up with remedial legislation have been blocked in court. In each instance, higher courts are expected to be asked to review the issues.

Dist. Judge C. A. Barnett ruled the interim committee lacks authority to seek contempt action against witnesses who refuse to testify.

A. B. Broussard Jr., Baton Rouge building supply house manager, and Miss Vera Pinell, vice president of the Broussard firm, won the first court round in their refusal to tell legislative investigators about their connections with a mystery firm.

A third witness who refused to answer committee questions, Miss Sharon Red, Lake Charles, executive secretary to engineer J. B. Shipp, was not served with a subpoena and never appeared in court.

The committee claims ties among Shipp, Broussard and others boosted bids by $200,000 on the NSC student center.

In a hearing last week, the committee probed a reported $4,000 campaign contribution to a political figure in this connection.

A general contractor also testified he was told ahead of time the bidding was fixed and the contract would go to J. M. Brown. Brown's successful bid was thrown out by the state Board of Education, which reported bidding irregularities.

Judge Barnett also ruled a subpoena seeking bank records of a firm called ASP Inc., was too broad, and the committee had to specify the particular information it sought from the records.

The committee issued a new subpoena it said was more specific. But counsel for the bank challenged it as defective, and said if this is not the case the bank still is under court restraint against producing the records.

Further, counsel for Capital Bank and Trust Co. said, the records would amount to unnecessary invasion of privacy of the bank and its customer relationship.

Duplantier said the court will be asked to rule on this phase of the legal tangle.

The key issue Monday will be whether Dist. Atty. Fusilier can refuse to produce the records sought by the committee.

Without the records, the committee's report to the legislature may be hurt. The report must be based on public hearings rather than secret testimony.

The committee is asking the court to order Fusilier to deliver the records to it for study.

Counsel for the committee claims Fusilier never said he didn't want to give the records to the committee, that the district attorney in fact allowed Duplantier to read them and this has opened the door of secrecy.

There is no reason, counsel argues, not to allow the committee to use the records rather than have to rely on memory in their probe.

Monroe means many different things to many different people.

However, when it comes to the one thing that can bring distinction to the city and a sense of pride to all its inhabitants, the field is narrowed down — to beauty.

These are just a few of the elements that combine to make the city of Monroe a virtual garden of elegance during the blooming seasons.

DEDICATED GROUP

Any reputation which Monroe might enjoy as a place of beauty could not have been attained without the farsighted efforts of a group of dedicated citizens.

The idea of a Monroe City Beautification Board came about quite by accident in 1938.

Mrs. J. R. Wooten, first chairman of the board, tells the story:

"I was going to be out of town for awhile and I had so many holly hock seeds on hand I just threw them out into the garden at random. When I returned, the seeds had grown into sturdy plants with lovely flowers. I suddenly had the idea that it would be nice to plant some of these holly hocks in front of the sea wall, which looked awfully bare and ugly at the time. Mr. Ruffin (C. R.) Tidwell, commissioner of streets and parks, agreed with my idea. In fact, he sent a chain gang out to help me plant the holly hock seeds. When they bloomed, the effect was perfectly beautiful."

Thus city beautification was born in Monroe.

Mrs. Wooten was urged to plant other things, and she started by setting out flowers and shrubs in front of her own home. Other residents were impressed and they began planting in other areas of the city. Flowers seemed to suddenly pop up all over.

BOARD FORMED

Tidwell, who served as commissioner in charge of streets and parks from 1938 to 1948, recommended the creation of a beautification board to the city council. When approval was granted, he asked Mrs. Wooten to select the members.

Those serving on the first board were Mrs. Wooten, as chairman, Miss Emy-Lou Biedenharn, Mrs. Armond McHenry, Mrs. A. S. Tidwell, Mrs. James A. Noe, Mrs. F. E. Black, Mrs. John Smith and Mrs. Edna Richards. Joe Ellis, superintendent of planting in the street department, was appointed to assist Mrs. Wooten in board projects.

"When we selected the board," Mrs. Wooten said, "we chose people we knew had talent for beautiful gardens. There were many problems in the beginning, but these were surmounted later because of the interest we were able to create in the program. Without the cooperation of Mr. Tidwell, none of this would have happened."

Today, Mrs. Wooten is 84-years-old, but still quite active in matters related to the improvement of Monroe.

In 1948, Tidwell, just before leaving office as commissioner, wrote to board member Mrs. J. G. Smith: "To each of you as individuals, and collectively as the Beautification Planning Board, you have worked and contributed much to the benefit of Monroe. All over our city is visible a growing tribute to your work, which will become more beautiful as the years go by. Allow me to again express my wholehearted thanks and wish you continued success."

FUNDS PROVIDED

There was little money to spend on projects in the beginning, but the city soon authorized the board to spend $1,000 per year.

Also, there was not a great deal of interest and little help forthcoming during the first years. Not only did the board serve as the nucleus for the planting and the cleaning-up, but also as the incentive to induce others to help develop the charm of the city. Gradually, others were rallied to the side of beauty and slowly, painfully the fruits of labor were evident.

Present members of the board, who have served faithfully for a number of years, recall some of these "blood, sweat and tears" years.

"The most frustrating experience I remember," recalls Mrs. Allan Sholars, "was our attempt to beautify the areas around Neville High School. We planted flowers and shrubs in the neutral ground along the boulevard. But, the area was too small and there was no curbing to keep cars from running over the things we'd planted."

Mrs. Wilson Ewing said the flower beds in Forsythe Park presented a problem — the flowers were beautiful, but there were many more weeds than flowers.

Mrs. J. W. Swift remembers the difficult task of trimming out the pine trees along Marie Place.

"We have always considered the driving hazard of things we've planted," according to Mrs. John McCarter. She explained that the board is careful not to plant where traffic might be handicapped or setting out trees that might interfere with telephone and other wires when they mature.

SPEARHEADING WORK

Spearheading beautification in Monroe through the years have been the chairmen of the local board — Mrs. Wooten, Miss Emy-Lou Biedenharn, Mrs. John Breard, Mrs. Wilson Ewing, and the present head, Mrs. John Mullens.

For 26 years, the purpose of the board has remained essentially the same — simply to make and keep Monroe beautiful.

"We are the conscience of beauty for the city of Monroe," Mrs. Mullens very aptly puts it.

However, today the scope of the organization has been broadened to include other facets of civic improvement.

"The board is trying to grow with the city of Monroe," according to Mrs. Mullens. "We want to work with the city administrators for the overall growth and progress of Monroe, not just plant flowers and trees to enhance the appearance of our city."

She said future plans call for a full time beautification commissioner, experienced in landscaping, to work with the board and the planning commission.

"Monroe is growing so fast we must plan for the future," she said. "That is why we need someone to work at this job full-time."

Almost everywhere the Monroyan — or visitor — looks today can be seen evidence of the sort of magical work woven by the enthusiasts of beauty. The tragedy is that many of these people cannot realize the tremendous improvements, because they did not know what it looked like before beautification.

IMPRESSIVE LIST

The impressive list of projects accomplished, recalled by Miss Biedenharn, include:

Bernstein Park — entrance landscaped and planted with crape myrtles, magnolias and berried shrubs; hundreds of Louisiana iris planted in waterways; and pale yellow day lilies grouped throughout the park.

Old City Cemetery — magnolias planted on neutral ground surrounding the cemetery.

Riverside Cemetery — crape myrtles and cherry laurels planted on neutral ground surrounding the four sides of the cemetery; and Paul Scarlet roses encircling the fence on all four sides.

South Grand Sea Wall — planted with thousands of oleanders and wider areas along sea wall were landscaped.

St. John Drive, center dividing areas — landscaped in azaleas and crape myrtles.

Jackson St. and College Ave. — landscaped before they were made wider and paved.

Forsythe Park — new pool landscaped; magnolias fringing the circular drive; cape jasmine planted next to buildings; holly trees and camellias flanked along entrance; from pool entrance to Riverside Drive, a wide bed of hundreds of pale yellow day lilies were planted; the drive on either side was bordered with white crape myrtles, dogwood and magnolias. Forsythe Park was completely landscaped with flowering shrubs and water lilies.

Marie Place — hundreds of pine trees planted on center neutral ground.

Small parks along Beloit St., Pargoud Blvd., and Lexington Ave. were landscaped and oak trees planted down the center of Pargoud.

The grounds of Carroll High School were landscaped and two small recreation parks for Negroes were also landscaped and planted.

Recorded events of the past also indicate the advocates of a graceful city endowed with gardens and flowering trees and shrubs were also interested in other ways to improve the overall picture.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

In 1950, the campaign was to clean-up the banks along the Ouachita.

In 1951, the board urged the restriction of cotton dusting planes that flew low over the city; they also suggested the planting of red buds from Catalpa to 6th St., and additional improvements to city parks.

"Operation Blind Corner" was inaugurated in 1954, when the board joined with other organizations to eradicate shrubbery, trees and other "blinds" which might cause accidents at corners. They also announced plans to "fill the avenues of the city with crape myrtles, red buds, oleanders, oaks, magnolias and pines."

There were big plans in 1955, when the board proposed "a beautiful beach park, complete with picnic grounds shaded by willows; carpet of green grass from the beach to the sea wall along the east bank of the Ouachita."

More recently, according to Mrs. Ewing, the board initiated the procurement of the old Central Grammar School grounds across from the parish court house as the site of a city park.

Also, the budget for operation of the board has been increased to $3,000 per year, which allows for a somewhat boarder working area for beautification than was enjoyed in the earlier days.

What about 1965? It will certainly be no exception as far as the aggressive board is concerned. This year will be highlighted by the "Keep Monroe Beautiful" campaign, which begins today and will continue through March and April.

Current members of the City Beautification Board are Mrs. Aline Banister, Mrs. John Breard, Mrs. Kent Breard, Mrs. A. R. Butler, Mrs. Wilson Ewing, Rev. Lea Joiner, Mrs. Robert Layton, Mrs. C. C. Lucky, Mrs. John McCarter, Mrs. DeWitt Milam, Mrs. M. W. Montgomery, Mrs. John Mullens, Mrs. James A. Noe, Mrs. Fred Poe, Mrs. V. H. Rivers, Mrs. John Sherrouse, Jr., Mrs. John G. Smith, Mrs. W. W. Stevens, Mrs. C. S. Swain, Mrs. Joe Wright Swift, Mrs. H. K. Touchstone and Mrs. Harold Woods Sr.; and city officials, Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard, A. G. Barker, and W. J. Wright, maintenance, and Commissioner H. W. McSherry.

Their devotion to beautification will result in perhaps as many pleasant changes for Monroe in the next 26 years as have been evidenced since it all began back in 1938.

Wise Decision On College Fees

Back in the days when getting into college was a major achievement and the average entrant looked forward as a matter of course to part-time work as a means of staying there, low registration fees reflected both the difficulty of getting in and the average cost of things as well.

But in these days the low fee of $40 charged by state colleges and universities is no concession to students and no service to education. The State Board of Education has acted wisely — though belatedly — to put the registration cost more on par with both the booming economy and the steadily increasing cost of administering college education. The Board's action in raising to $150 the registration fee for nine Louisiana colleges and universities should have the support of everyone.

Those who oppose the raise should state which of the only two alternatives available they would put into effect — higher general taxes, or a lower quality of education. The colleges are in desperate need of money — by the millions. The $5.5 million dollars from the fees increase will not meet the fiscal needs of the schools but it will help.

Even with the increase, fees of Louisiana's state colleges still will be well below similar fees in Mississippi, Arkansas and Texas and far below the national average. Talk about keeping the cost to students for college education at a rock - bottom level so that "every boy and girl can have a college education" is nonsense. Every boy and girl should not have a college education because every boy and girl is not qualified for one.

What Louisiana needs in its system of higher education — among other things — is greater guarantees that students not capable of benefitting from college will not be pushed into colleges where they merely clutter up the classrooms, necessitate bigger faculties, and in general tend to lower the caliber of education for others without any benefit for themselves or for their community or to the state.

Further, the student loan system initiated by Governor McKeithen — it was part of his campaign platform — now is functioning fully and is going far toward assuring that students intellectually worthy of college education can get it regardless of their financial condition. At present, more than 3,000 students in Louisiana's state colleges and universities are paying at least part of their way through school on these student loans.

The student loan system adds to the dignity of the students and develops their individual responsibility. Such loans are a far cry, indeed, from the old system of cash legislative scholarships. Under that system, Legislators and other state officials passed out sums ranging up to $300 — but mostly only a few dollars — per student in what were called "scholarships." Very little in the way of true scholarship was involved. Most of the legislative scholarships were simply pocket money doles provided to the Legislators from public funds to use to enhance their own political standing in their own community — all in the name of education.

The State Board of Education has been booted around a bit on a number of matters of late. This is one time where it deserves cheers instead of booting. It has taken a necessary step in full knowledge that there are always those who criticize steps of this kind.

LSU, which is operated separately under its own board, is expected soon to follow suit in raising its registration fee, too, and also is expected to raise the out-of-state-student fee to the $600 asked by other southern state colleges. The big school's current fee is $300.

The Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) pointed out some time ago that the state's college fees are by far the lowest in the nation. PAR suggested that the colleges around the state should triple their fees and LSU double its own — and noted that even then the fee level would barely approach the national average.

Aside from state help, Louisiana's state institutions of higher learning have to depend on entrance and tuition fees and on occasional gifts for operating expenses. They have no local tax support and it is not a new warning that the present crush on enrollments, plus the prospect of even greater crowding in the coming years means that the state is going to have to find much more revenue than that afforded by a rise in fees. There is considerable sentiment for greater local support of public schools — a feeling voiced most loudly by the Governor — and more college support from the state.

'This Won't Hurt You'

Although a statement by Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon that the additional tax bite scheduled April 15 won't be nearly as bad as it has been pictured sounds a great like the old-time dentist when he used to say, "This won't hurt you a bit," and then yanked a tooth without benefit of a pain-killer, there's nothing like optimistic talk to make people feel a little better. It may make people suffer less in anticipation, even though the pain at the moment of the pull is still just as great.

The squeeze will come in April or sooner for taxpayers who didn't have enough withheld to cover taxes that must be collected.

Under-withholding came about largely because of the way in which the tax cut voted by Congress was put into effect. Although taxes are being lowered in two stages — a smaller amount last year and a larger amount this year — the withholding from the wage and salary payments was dropped in one stage last year to conform to the larger reduction in withholding. Naturally, that left quite a difference — and those who are paying their incomes now not only are having to pay in accordance with what they would ordinarily pay but are having to make up the deficit.

Dillon said treasure technicians have been checking into the under-withholding situation and have found it greatly exaggerated. It looks, he said, as if extra payments will amount to something like $400 million to $500 million instead of earlier guesses of $1 billion or more.

A treasury department statement previously had said that the reduction in withholdings on last year's earnings "has been much smaller on the average taxpayer than is commonly supposed."

The treasury statement conceded, however, that many persons are not average and "many taxpayers will have larger-than-expected amounts of tax due for 1964, just as could happen in any year."

There's one cheerful way of looking at it. The taxpayers had the use of the extra money they received for quite a little while and didn't have to pay interest on it.

And remember, you can make the higher - than - usual payment less painful, for the present, at least, by repeating to yourself, "It won't hurt a bit."

Pros And Cons

Monroe, Louisiana

To the Editor:

We have heard a great deal from the Commissioner of Public Welfare, Judge Edmund Reggie, as well as from numerous pharmaceutical groups and individuals about the issue of generic drugs for patients receiving aid from the Department of Public Welfare. The pros and the cons have been flying around us like a flock of homing pigeons, but actually so far we have not been told just exactly what message these homing pigeons are carrying; that is, what the fundamental basic issues are in this particular case. And I would like to attempt to bring these issues out in the open for what they actually are.

It is quite obvious that the funds of the agency are becoming low. And why is this? Obviously the need has outgrown the supply of funds and this is exactly true of practically every program of this type. Money is appropriated by the government to be "given away". The recipients of this "free care" grow rapidly in number and requirements and far outstrip the "estimate" under which the program began. So what is the inevitable result? The program must be curtailed. And who must be denied as a result of this cutback? Naturally, the recipient, and in this case we mean the individual who is entitled to benefits of the Welfare program. But, this is not so healthy for the politician or the head of the state agency or the government worker. After all to acknowledge this may lose the votes of those who are receiving aid. So, someone else must be found at fault. The pharmacists in the State of Louisiana have been awarded this dubious honor and indirectly the physicians of this state by inference. And the saddest part of this entire situation is the fact that just because someone in power, in this case a judge, who knows about as much of the practice of medicine and pharmacy as the average layman, decrees that all people on welfare must henceforth be satisfied with "Brand X", the patient must be satisfied to receive drugs of questionable quality, questionable potency and in the case of some of our medications actually dangerous preparations. In other words, the welfare recipient is relegated to the category of a second class citizen without freedom of choice.

I hope that this is as obvious to everyone as it is to me. HERE WE HAVE SOCIALIZED MEDICINE IN ACTION. My great hope is that this program can be reorganized in such a way that all patients will be first class citizens and not be forced to accept inferior merchandise because the program is financially in distress, and "cheap" drugs will stretch the budget.

As I see it there is only one way out of this dilemma to the benefit of all concerned. The answer is very simple. To be highly preferred would be a "grant-in-aid" program whereby the Department of Public Welfare provides what benefits are available directly to the recipient in the form of a cash grant or Health Insurance policy so that he may then provide his own medical care as his conscience dictates rather than as a government commissioner dictates.

What has occurred in the State of Louisiana as regards this pharmacy problem is exactly what might be expected to occur time and time again with the advent of passage of the King - Anderson Bill, otherwise known as "Medicare". The unrest that is being perpetrated in our state will be only a token of the unrest that will occur over the nation should this bill become law. On the other hand the alternative plan of "Eldercare" as proposed by the American Medical Association will eliminate and obviate this type of government control and under it our senior citizen will still be able to direct his medical destiny as he did when he was sixty-four and younger rather than to suddenly find himself a ward of the state and subject to its ever changing edicts. Eldercare is a far superior method of providing medical aid to the aged and I commend a thorough investigation of this program on the part of every citizen and having satisfied himself of its virtues I hope that he make known to his Congressman his desire that this bill be passed. Would that the Louisiana Legislature see fit to reorganize the program along this line now.

College Fees

Monroe, Louisiana

Dear Mr. Whetstone:

I have followed the progress of the proposed increase in tuition of state colleges, and feel obliged to advise you of my opinion. I will explain my position, and ask you to multiply this one case by the many cases of working people who are attending school themselves or are sending a child to school.

I am employed by the Monroe Fire Deparment, and attend NLSC full time, with the classification of freshman. My wife also attends, and is classified as a senior. We have three small children, and our existence is of a day to day nature, with many sacrifices in the past and many expected in the future. However, we realize that the only escape from our situation is a college education; with that aim in mind, we are willing to forgo many of the niceties for the time being. Now, to our amazement, you and your board intend to negate the possibility of school attendance for us, and as small as my salary seems, I earn more than the majority of working students at NLSC; therefore you are probably putting college out of their reach also. In fact, looking at the situation from my point of view, it almost appears as if someone were attempting to prohibit the lower income people from any participation in the higher education program. You speak of $150.00 as if it were pocket change; I looked high and low before I could accumulate one-third of that amount for my children's Christmas. To come up with twice that amount for my wife's and my tuition two times a school year is out of the question; we are able to raise the present tuition only with great difficulty.

Where may we turn? In our case, we might obtain a state loan because I have six years seniority of my job and our credit rating is good. The banks are hesitant to loan money to a young person with no job and no credit rating, however, so the program is in truth not as effective as it was at first hoped it to be. If the situation is such that raising the tuition is imperative — so as to keep up with the neighboring states (and that has been the only explanation thusfar) — then the state loan program should be discarded for an effective program.

One idea worthy of consideration would be the adoption of a program smilar to the federal veterans' school bill. The state need not go to the expense of giving monthly checks to a veteran attending school, but the abolishment of tuition for any person who has been honorably discharged would be all that an adult student could ask. Or, some aid program for adult and-or married students should be considered.

It is ironic that you are restricting the very people who realize the importance of school, and who are willing to scratch with the chickens, so to speak, for an education. The people who can easily afford the increased tiution are the people out to have a good time on their parents' money.

Rock Hudson

Livermore, Calif.

To the Editor:

When it was announced recently that Rock Hudson and an Italian beauty were making an anti-communist movie, it was easy to predict a savage attack on Mr. Hudson's career by left-wing movie critics and others in an attempt to downgrade and destroy him. The attack is now on, and those who wish to ferret out these red vermin and know who they are should be on the alert.

Every American should thank God that we still have a star with guts, like Rock Hudson, who values his country above his career and his professional reputation. We urge every patriot to support Rock Hudson and the Italian actress and keep them both at the top. This should encourage more timid stars to accept pro-American, anti-communist roles.

Registration Drive

Azusa, Calif.

To the Editor:

I seem to remember that the original 1964 Civil Rights (to end all Civil Rights) Bill had a clause to give control of all elections to the Federal Government.

Was this the reason President Kennedy denounced it about a week before he was murdered by a Communist? I can't find any mention of Federal Control of elections in the Civil Rights Bill that finally passed.

Could all this voter registration drive propaganda be aimed at picking up where they left off in the original Civil Rights Bill? In other words, do the liberals really want to control elections, so they can walk off with the voting machines, and no one can investigate vote fraud? I understand a machine leaves no messy evidence, and perhaps like a slot machine can be fixed at eighty per cent for the house.

They say at Selma, Alabama, that everyone has the right to vote, even if they can't pass a test showing they know what they are doing. I doubt that even twenty per cent of American voters know enough about the workings of our Government, or what our Constitution says, to be qualified to vote.

For example, our Constitution gives certain named powers to the Federal Government, and says that all others are reserved to the several states. Since voting control is not on the list, this function belongs to the States. Ditto for control of schools.

How many voters actually know this? If they can't (or won't) master this elementary stuff, how can they understand treaty law, or what the Supreme Court is supposed to do? How about Public Law 830 (Alaska Mental Health Bill)?

A voter should pass a written test, just like a person taking an auto driving license test. A dangerous voter is much worse than a dangerous driver.

Kennan Suggests Great Surrender

FORMER AMBASSADOR George F. Kennan has done it again. The author of the "containment" policy which has long lured our State Department into believing that communism can be fenced in, rather than fought back, has reeled off a list of absurdities which, in these days of tricky titles, should be known as the Great Surrender.

In speaking to an audience of scholars and diplomats under the auspices of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions in New York, he said that we should restrict the role of nuclear weapons in the defense of Western Europe.

It is such restrictions which already have caused NATO to founder. A few more and we could well sink it.

His next point was that we should cut back on the rearmament of Western Germany, promote closer ties with East Germany and reassure the Poles that Germany won't invade.

When a man honestly feels that West Germany represents more of a threat to Communist East Europe than communism does to Western Europe there is obviously something wrong with his outlook. Following the same line of reasoning he should want to disarm the Chinese on Formosa in order to reassure the peaceful Communist Chinese on the mainland that they are safe from attack.

THE KEYNOTE OF Kennan's astounding speech was a call for a "new act of faith" in Soviet intentions toward the West. Our present attitude, he feels, is "sterile and unsatisfactory." Why? Because, believe it or not, we assume that communism is hostile to Europe.

The new faith for which he calls is simply faith that the Communists are considerably more kind than we have thought and that they will respond far more readily to sweet talk than tough actions.

Throughout the speech, Ambassador Kennan imputes to the United States a degree of belligerency great enough to cause constant qualms to communism. In short, it is our attitude, not so much the Communists', that keeps us at loggerheads.

TIME AFTER TIME Ambassador Kennan plays on this theme, showing how "no Russian government Communist or otherwise, could afford to retire" in the face of such hostility as shown by the United States and its defensive alliances. He sees all of these alliances as threats to communism, neatly forgetting the threat from communism to us which caused those alliances to be created.

Finally, his entire call for a "new act of faith" rests on a foundation so foolish as to be fatal. It is true that the Soviets at this time show no disposition to launch an armed attack in Europe. It is not true, however, that Communist violence has vanished. The Berlin Wall remains a place of bloody execution in which lives are risked and sacrificed weekly. Reports of tightened police regulations in the satellites are widespread.

But beyond Europe there are the most clear and unmistakable signs of Communist activity. The campaign to subvert Latin America has not slowed, nor has it renounced the use of violence. Africa blazes with the fires of Communist activism. British troops are in Malaya to fight actual Communist threats from Indonesia, not theoretical mutterings.

Fight Over Steel Contract Rising

IN THE NEXT weeks and months, the American public can expect to be peppered with charge and counter-charge as the steel unions and the steel industry try to bargain collectively on a new contract. Each side, it is safe to assume, will overstate its case, After all, the National Labor Relations Board has ruled that a company must make phoney and inflated claims in dealing with a union, so that it can later "compromise." Truth in collective bargaining is out until the Supreme Court has spoken.

The public, however, will listen carefully only when the price of steel is mentioned. The late President Kennedy made headlines by using some rather choice language when United States Steel tried to raise its prices, and to read the pundits, runaway inflation would result if an increase in the cost of steel were permitted. The portrait painted was one of rapacious steel companies with a "public be d——" attitude seeking to line their pockets at the expense of the national economic health.

Well, I have been reading a statement made by Roger, Blough, chairman of the board of U.S. Steel, on the subject of profits and prices. Frankly I was a little surprised by what he said. It pulverized most of the arguments used against the steel companies and offered some solid facts. Mr. Blough is, of course, an interested party. But what he says stands on its own feet — or so it seems to me.

MR. BLOUGH TURNS to two government documents for his first points. According to the Monthly Index of Finished Steel Prices, compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the price index for late 1958 stood at 102.3. In November, 1964, the steel price index stood at 102.9 in 102.3.

"This means," says Mr. Blough, "that the widely publicized price increases that took place in 1963 — increases reportedly covering 75 percent of all steel products — were offset completely by numerous and little-publicized price decreases."

A Weekly Index of Finished Steel Prices, which shows greater fluctuations, notes that the steel price index stood 102.9 in mid-January of 1965. For the corresponding period last year, the index was 103.1, demonstrating, that while the average price of finished steel rose six-tenths of 1 percent in six years, it declined two-tenths of 1 percent in the last twelve months "despite the recent price increases that have attracted so much attention."

Of considerable interest to the layman is this point: It now takes fewer pounds of steel to do a given job, so much has technology improved the product. "For example," says Mr. Blough, "it is calculated that with today's steels the Empire State Building could have been 13 stories taller without increasing the weight of the steel used in the present structure." Since steel is sold by weight, this amounts to a price reduction in itself.

ALL OF THE brouhaha has been over increases in steel prices of $5 to $10 a ton, But in the past six years, Mr. Blough, avers, "the prices of at least a dozen different stainless steel products have declined by amounts ranging from $200 to $315 per ton."

But what about profits? The outcry has been that the steel companies are making too much money — that they could hold the line on rice increases, pay higher wages, and still be far ahead of most other industries. This charge has always interested me. If true, it would mean that stronger competition in steel could bring lower prices for the consumer of steel products.

In this instance, the figures come from annual studies made by the First National City Bank of New York. Taking 41 leading industries, the study showed that in 1955 steel ranked fourteenth, and that its return on net worth was just equal to the average for the entire group. In 1963, steel dropped to thirty-eighth place, and its profit rate was now 37 percent below the average for the 41 industries, and this despite the fact that the steel industry's capital expenditures for plant and equipment had amounted to some $12 billion during that period.

Let me say here that I do not intend to be a special pleader for the steel industry. But fair is fair — and if the steel companies are being bum-rapped, the record should be set straight. Of greater importance than this is steel's role as employer. If the industry is pushed to the wall, the first to suffer will be the more than one half million employees of the steel companies. This fact is often forgotten by those who make private enterprise their perpetual whipping boy.

Sunday Poem

The boneless tongue so small and weak
Can crush and kill, declared the Greek;
The tongue destroys a greater horde,
The Turk asserts, than does the sword.
The Persian proverb wisely saith,
A lengthy tongue — an early death,
Or sometimes takes this form instead,
Don't iet your tongue cut off your head.
The tongue can speak a word, whose speed,
Says the Chinese, outstrips the steed,
While Arab sages this impart:
The tongue's great storehouse is the heart.
From Hebrew with the maxim sprung;
Though feet may slip, ne'er let the tongue,
The sacred writer crowns the whole;
Who keeps his tongue, doth keep his soul.

Four Kinds Of Church Workers

Did you know there are four kind of church workers? Look at the following and be honest and admit which one you are:

How About This One

Down lover's lane with beau and arrow:

Roses are red, Violets are blue;
Orchids are $15.95, Will dandelions do?

A friend sent us this one, but we can't guarantee its truthfulness:

Seems an American girl visiting in Paris met a charming French Girl and their conversation turned to the ever interesting subject of love.

"The Frenchman is very subtle in his love-making," said the French girl. "First he kisses your finger tips, then your shoulder, then your ear, then the back of your neck—"

About that time her American companion interrupted: "Gosh, by that time an American is back from his honeymoon."

And the last one — for this time:

A young lady in the waiting room of an airport not too far distance was crying steadily. Finally a young man went over and tried to soothe her. He put his arm around her, and when she continued to weep, he squeezed a little tighter: "Isn't there anything I can do to make you stop crying," he asked.

"I'm afraid not," she sobbed. "It's hay fever — but please keep trying."

Coincidence

How about this one for coincidence — just in case you're one of those that doesn't believe in such a thing.

Last Monday night when the strong wind struck the Twin Cities, it carried away a heavy roof off a barn owned by Johnny Bayles of West Monroe, and did heavy damage to the main structure at the same time. So strong was the wind, that it carried the roof, which weighed around 3 tons, some 500 feet and dumped it. The barn was located about six miles from West Monroe on the Farmerville highway.

As far as is known, no other buildings in either area were damaged.

All About Money

We've been wondering what was wrong with our nerves and why so much tension — despite the tranquilizers.

Then we found out what was wrong — the matter of money.

The solution was contained in a speech by the late John M. Morehead of New York, engineer, inventor, philanthropist and one of the founders and principal stockholders of the great Union Carbide Corp. Mr. Morehead was an alumnus of the University of North Carolina and over the years gave his Alma Mater some $17 million in capital funds and scholarships, grants at the rate of more than $1,000 a day.

Once he told a graduating class — and this is the quote from which we learned tranquilizers were not good — that "Money doesn't bring happiness, but it helps to quiet the nerves."

Now we know the stuff was good for something.

A Tip Of The Hat

A tip of the hat and a thank you to West Monroe Police Chief Johnny Mitchell for additional information concerning our item about the number of traffic signs on Trenton street, between the bridge and North 7th Street.

The chief pointed out that there are three speed zones on that section of the street. From the bridge to Copley street, the speed limit is 30 miles per hour; from Copley to the Highland Park Country Club it is 25, and from there to west of North 7th it is 35.

Chief Mitchell also pointed out that the street is carrying three times the amount of traffic it should, but at the same time the accident rate has been cut on that section, which is an excellent accomplishment.

Our statement was there were too many traffic signs on that section — which we realize was an unusual complaint as most people are calling in for more signs and traffic lights instead of less.

So we'll take back what we said about there being too many as they are accomplishing the purpose of traffic signs — that is saving lives and preventing accidents.

Kites Are In The Air

Kites are in the air . . . all kinds, sizes, shapes and colors. And it's good, clean fun for thousands of youngsters in this windy season . But it's one of the activities of boys and girls which, if not done properly, can be extremely dangerous.

F. C. McConnell, district manager for Louisiana Power and Light in West Monroe, points out that every year a number of serious accidents occur, as well as a few fatalities, because kite fliers fail to observe certain safety rules.

Pointing out that such accidents can be prevented, McConnell offers the following rules for safety in kite flying:

1. Always use dry string—not wire or anything metallic.
2. Always use wood and paper in your kite—not wire or metal.
3. Always fly your kite on days when there is no rain.
4. Avoid busy streets and highways while flying your kite.
5. Keep away from fallen wires.
6. Fly your kite far from electric power lines.
7. Call LP&L if your kite gets entangled in power lines—DON'T TRY TO GET IT DOWN BY YOURSELF.

Life's Other Side

MEMO TO JUDGES — In Malaya, if a husband is arrested for drunken driving, the police gets his wife and put her in jail with him. In Saudi Arabia, a driver who survives a fatal accident for which he is responsible may be beheaded . . .

PEACEFUL AMERICA — Someone gets shot to death every two hours in our law-abiding land. At least one out of every four guns purchased by mail order in metropolitan areas is bought by a person with a police record that bars him from buying one locally . . .

AND IT was Carl Sandburg, who observed, "In these times you have to be an otpimist to open your eyes when you awaken in the morning."

THEN WE LEAVE you with this — "I've given up on trying to understand people . . . Now I just let them try to understand me."

TWIN CITIES WEEK IN REVIEW

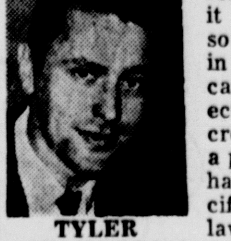
Compliance Date Unagreed Upon

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

"United States," as a name, is so frequently in print and parlance that its full significance seems often overlooked — its meaning distorted to imply that a single solution to a national problem will work equally well in every region.

In other words, it's argued that the emphasis has shifted subtly from "States" to "United," to an all-conforming one-ness at the expense of individualism and home rule.

Perhaps a like phenomenon can be found in many phases of society, but seldom does it stand out so sharply as in those occasional executive decrees which appear to have no specific base in law.



TYLER

All of which is a pretentious way to get into a rundown of developments on the so-called "voluntary" compliance agreements served up by Uncle Sam to various state, parish and local agencies. Much in the news recently, the forms were even more so last week, since the March 3 target date, deadline or whatever it was, went by the boards Wednesday.

Locally, and indeed throughout the Fifth District, the agreement turned out to be a lack of agreement, or no action at all on the matter.

Meeting first Tuesday, the Monroe School Board took no formal posture in the sense of a direct reply "yea" or "nay" to Washington, but released a reasoned credo saying in effect that it could not in good conscience sign such a document. The Ouachita Parish board later Tuesday passed a unanimous resolution stating simply that it stood by the advice of Dist. Atty. Albin P. Lassiter, its legal advisor.

Lassiter, more than a month before, submitted the opinion that local boards hadn't the power to contract with federal agencies for their funds.

REELING

This, of course, sent many minds, confused by the raft of legal maneuvers, reeling back to Monday when the State Board of Education, declining to sign its own agreement, asked the government instead to allow local boards sole responsibility for local decisions. The business of the state body then would become clearing house for federal money to localities which felt they could live with compliance.

There was still no official word from Washington by Friday, when these lines were a-borning, as to whether the state proposal would please their highnesses, though some officials were quoted to the effect that it probably wouldn't.

Local reaction to the state department's plan appeared mixed, several parish board members were heard to use the phrase "passing the buck." Local agreements were required, however, regardless of the high board's move.

There were rosier aspects to the controversy. At stake Wednesday were only Health, Education & Welfare funds, and these are not, we're told, a sizeable chunk of the local action. The parish system, for example, receives only about $10,000 a year at present, excluding consideration of deeper federal involvement proposed in years ahead.

The greater part of assistance locally, it seems, comes through Agriculture Department lunchroom programs and the prognosis was favorable for an honorable arrangement to continue such aid.

Just how long before the HEW chop was uncertain, but one official noted the need for a lot of evaluating to learn which board did what, a necessary thing naturally before the punitive ball could roll.

So probably there will be plenty of time to sit and wonder just how written assurances to obey a law became a part of the American Way and where it's likely to lead. Many in the Twin Cities were wondering.

Money was an issue in another controversy of sorts that developed during the week. The same state board meeting which dealt with compliance produced a boost in registration fees at the nine colleges under the group's sway. For regular work, the jump was from $40 to $150; during the summer it would move from $10 to $50. Comment on the action came from Rep. Lawrence Gibbs, on the attack, and Board President W. E. Whetstone and Sen. Jamar Adcock, in defense. All are of Monroe. In briefest outline, Gibbs took the position that the hike will be a burden to those of "humble means," while Whetstone and Adcock felt it the best alternative in dealing with growing costs of education — the others being a general tax on everybody, or inferior education. Adcock, chairman of the Legislative Budget Committee, said college spending is due next year.

MONROE

Speaking of rosy aspects, as we were awhile ago, just about every aspect of affairs in the City of Monroe seemed to be coming up roses.

Of course, in the broad sense of the term, Monroe is not exactly Metropolis — yet. But she's getting there. Last week for example there were really big things afoot. Consider:

The award Thursday to Jesse F. Heard & Sons of West Monroe of a $1,112,700 contract for the construction of a new city hall complex. The bid, the lowest of five, was described by Mayor W. L. Howard as "well within the money." Covered in the project, part of an $11.25 million capital improvement program, is a city hall, jail, police headquarters and city court. Another part of the "boom," a new airport terminal building, already is in operation, while still another part, a new sewage treatment plant, was listed during the week as 92 per cent complete. Moreover, it was announced that bids on a planned civic center complex will be opened April 27.

The city saves money too. Ample evidence of this was the refinancing Monday of $20.4 in Utilities Commission bonds, at an estimated saving of $1.8 million. Halsey, Stuart & Company, representing a syndicate of 63 bond agents, submitted the best of three bids on the notes, revenue bonds running from 1966 to 1992. The bid averaged 3.412 per cent, including 4.25 per cent on 1966 through 1972 issues, 3.25 per cent from 1973 through 1980, 3.30 per cent from 1981 through 1988, and 3.5 per cent from 1989 through 1992. Spokesmen said the new arrangement would cost the city Spokesmen said the new arrangement would cost the city $10,116,577.30 in principal and interest, compared with $12,020,429.50 projected from former interest rates. Deductible from the saving was around $115,000 in refinancing expenses, which seemed fair enough.

Also deductible, while we're on the subject and talking in thousands of dollars rather than millions, was last year's city bus department deficit of $101,220.16. Strictly speaking, this was not rosy, but Finance Commissioner H. W. McSherry announced Tuesday several approaches to improving the picture. Hiking fares was wisely rejected as likely to result in a loss of riders. However, he expressed hope that more than $30,000 a year will be saved through a plan for curtailment of service "during the time of day when people are just not ridding the bus," and the shifting of several employees to other departments. Besides the use of less fuel and oil, the offical said a $20,902.44 reduction in maintenance costs was his goal. Salary savings should amount to $8,830.24. McSherry said city buses are a losing proposition across the country. Monroe's 10-year deficit totals $731,081.71.

But all last week's news wasn't in Monroe. West Monroe was heard from in a big way Tuesday as the city's bustling Chamber of Commerce, a real marvel for a town of the size, banquet, featuring among other things a fire-eating address by Tom Anderson.

Anderson, of Nashville, Tenn., a farm editor and one of those rare types who'd apparently rather be dead than Red proved to be not a man to tread lightly on the issue of government pap and paternalism. His remarks were hard-bitten, to the point, and well-received, despite the general chiding for easy acceptance of edicts and the like.

Some good men were lost to the Chamber Tuesday night, among them Bert Hatten, who retired both as president and board member. He apparently left each spot in good hands however. The new officer rundown includes Ralph Reed, president, Roy Brooks, vice president, and Homer Roark, treasurer, while five new directors installed were Ewell Singleton, Louis Gruber, Richard Jones, Jim Steele and Brooks.

Mention of officers, as well as the foregoing implied refrence to the old-fashioned type of patriotism in such disrepute in some quarters, brings us naturally to the Louisiana Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The ladies, several hundred of them, honored the Twin Cities with an active three-day convention which concluded Thursday with the election of officers. Named state regent was Mrs. Joseph A. Tobin Jr. of Lafayette. Miss Carrie Dee Drew of Monroe became chaplain.

The World In Focus

High Winds And Tragedy

By John Cale

Perhaps it's a case of our seeking that which is appropriate. But shortly before the calendar turned from February 28 to March 1, the wind began to roar. While this is no particular "sign" for soothsayers, we might say that it's "true-to-form" for local weather about this time of year — the first week in March. It blew in like a lion.

Tragedy

A TRAGEDY of major proportions struck close to home early Thursday when a section of 32-inch gas transmission line exploded three miles north of Natchitoches. In the blast and the half-hour fire that resulted, 17 persons died and nine were injured. A number of homes, trucks and automobiles were destroyed in the stricken 10-acre area.

Appalachia

THUS MAJOR events of the week appeared to reach outward from a southern focal point. In connection with the President's so-called "war on poverty," much has been said about the depressed areas in the Appalachian mountains. Detailed stories have dealt with such states as West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Maryland, portions of Pennsylvania, Alabama, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia and Ohio.

But one of the first three outposts in the program to "see action" in the anti-poverty program is located in San Marcos, Texas, not far from Johnson City. One of the first recruits to arrive last week at the Gary Job Corps Training Center there was a 17-year-old Little Rock youth, James Williams. During the opening day, 229 youths, ranging from 16 to 21, and coming from 22 states arrived at the center.

WILLIAMS

THURSDAY IN Washington, a key-stone in President Johnson's "Great Society" was in place with final congressional approval of the $1.1 billion Appalachian aid measure.

The House gave the Chief Executive his first big legislative victory of the year, passing the measure on a 257 to 165 vote. The Senate passed the bill Feb. 1.

On final passage, 25 Republicans joined 232 Democrats to vote in favor of the bill; 56 Democrats and 109 Republicans voted against it.

IN AN UNUSUAL display of unity, House Democrats overrode every Republican attempt to alter the bill, passing it precisely as written by the Senate. This avoided a time-consuming conference to iron out differences between the two chambers.

MAJOR EMPHASIS of the program is on a five-year, $840 million program to build 2,350 miles of development highways and 1,000 miles of access roads. Supporters argued that a major reason for the 11-state Appalachian area's isolation is a lack of roads between the populated East and the industrial Midwest.

FUNDS ALSO ARE authorized for county health centers which would include hospitals, doctors' offices, laboratories and community mental health buildings. The federal government would provide up to $41 million in construction grants for these facilities and up to $28 million to staff and operate them.

To develop timber, a vital but neglected resource of the area, the bill authorizes $5 million to organize demonstration projects for tree farms, aid owners in the efficient management of their timber and help consolidate inefficient small wood plots.

WATER BASIN surveys to include studies of the region's many rivers, streams and lakes would be undertaken to determine how to use them better for recreation and wildlife, eliminate the nagging water pollution problem and contain flooding.

THE ONCE PROSPEROUS coal mining industry has left behind hundreds of unemployed persons and acres of scarred strip mines and abandoned mines. The measure provides for vocational education grants to help train men out of work and supply funds to fill mine shafts and reclaim strip mines on public lands.

Protest

REACTION TO THE attack in Washington reflected some righteous indignation, but did evoke a formal protest and cries from GOP leadership for a tougher stand towards the Soviet Union.

KOHLER

WHILE AMBASSADOR Foy D. Kohler was filing a formal protest at the Soviet Foreign Ministry about the mob assault by Asian students on the U. S. quarters, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and the House party leader, Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, were telling newsmen in Washington that this country is always "giving in" to the Reds.

AMONG OTHER THINGS, the GOP congressional chiefs served notice that they will oppose ratification of the pending U. S.-Soviet consular treaty until the Kremlin changes its ways. They said putting more U. S. consulates in the Soviet Union "would avail us little and only give the Communists more targets for mob violence."

Statement

BUT THE OFFICIAL Soviet statement following the incident did not give an inch in the direction of the United States:

"The Soviet Union . . . cannot pass by several other dangerous steps taken by the United States in the area of Indochina lately," the statement said.

"The United States has gone over to direct military operations against the South Vietnamese patriots with its own armed forces. The concentration of American armaments and armed forces in South Viet Nam and on the approaches to the Democratic republic of North Viet Nam continues.

"It is also reported that preparations are being made to land a party of American marines at the demarcation line between North and South Viet Nam."

"If the makers of American policy in Viet Nam think that they will frighten anyone by their bombings of North Viet Nam territory, they are deeply mistaken. Such hopes have no ground whatsoever," it added. "The present American course, if continued, will have far reaching consequences for Soviet American relations," it said. The course was called incompatible with American efforts to improve relations.

Crisis

WHILE U. S. AND South Vietnamese bombers struck at communist targets in that smoldering brush-fire war, tensions moved also to the principal capitals involved — Moscow and Washington.

Presumably reflecting their sentiments regarding the U. S. air attacks on targets in North Viet Nam, a mob of about 2,000 Asian, African, and Russian students brought through barricades and massed Russian police and soldiers Thursday and attacked the U. S. Embassy in Moscow with rocks, ink bottles, and slingshots.

It was the most violent demonstration seen in the Russian capital in 30 years.

Only a sprinkling of Russians were seen to join in the rioting which mainly pitted Afro-Asians against Soviet police and soldiers guarding the embassy.

AT LEAST FIVE policemen were injured and scores of demonstrators were seen with blood streaming down their faces during the hand-to-hand fighting that raged in front of the embassy.

The U. S. Embassy said no Americans were injured, although windows in the living quarters on the upper floors of the 10-story embassy building were smashed.

LESS THAN an hour after police and soldiers had succeeded finally in driving off the screaming demonstrators, U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler called on Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to complain that the "protection afforded by Soviet authorities was grossly inadequate."

THE NEW Moscow rioting would have surprised nobody if it had stayed within the usual bounds. What was surprising was that the mob got out of hand, bloodied the noses of Soviet policemen and cried "Fascist" at them.

In going beyond normal police indulgence for such demonstrations they produced another painful situation for the Soviet regime. It strains U. S.-Soviet relations, since the Russians had been warned that the Americans demanded protection and respect for U. S. property in Moscow.

From The Front

THE LIST OF casualties from the war-torn nation of South Viet Nam revealed that February brought the heaviest toll thus far for a month's period in the four-year-old conflict.

According to the U. S. Military Assistance Command, the Saigon (South Vietnamese) government reported its losses at 4,140 dead, wounded and missing.

THE REPORT added that 1,730 Communist Viet Cong troops were killed in combat during the same month. The previous high casualty toll of government troops was 4,050 last December.

The government meanwhile charged that a bomb blast early Thursday which killed four Vietnamese and injured 12 other persons, including two American servicemen, was touched off by a communist terrorist.

Authorities said the terrorist tried to hurl the bomb into the Mayflower Bar near the U. S. bachelor enlisted men's quarters in downtown Saigon.

The two Americans sustained only "minor scratches," a U. S. military spokesman said.

IT WAS THE first such terrorist bombing in the capital in more than a month and rattled windows throughout the downtown area.

London Oriented

MURROW

His broadcasts from London during World War II left little doubt that the British capital was the hub of all activities that went into the far-flung pursuits of that conflict. The same newscasts left the listeners little room for doubt that Murrow had digested and prepared for the air waves all reports that were worthwhile knowing about.

FITTINGLY, QUEEN Elizabeth II last week named Murrow a Knight Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire.

The British Embassy in Washington made the announcement Thursday. It said the honor is being conferred in recognition of Murrow's outstanding services in furthering Anglo-American friendship and understanding.

MURROW RESIGNED 14 months ago as director of the U. S. Information Agency after surgery to remove a cancerous lung. He is in New York Hospital for what the institution said was a checkup.

Indonesia

RELATING TO THE agency formerly headed by Murrow, the United States announced Thursday it is closing immediately all U. S. Information Agency libraries and reading rooms in Indonesia. USIA personnel stationed there will be withdrawn.

THE ACTION FOLLOWED new demonstrations and seizure of U. S. libraries in Jakarta and elsewhere by the Indonesian government in recent weeks.

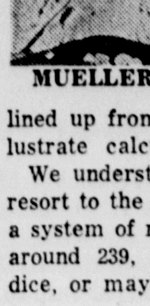
U. S. officials said all other American information activities in Indonesia, including distribution of films and magazines, were being halted. U. S. Voice of America radio broadcasts to that country will continue, however.

The announcement was made in the name of USIA Director Carl T. Rowan. It said:

"This is a decision that we take most reluctantly. These libraries have been a symbol of man's search for knowledge, and for the mutual understanding without which peace is difficult, if not impossible, to achieve."

That New Math

IF YOU CAN'T analyze the news by the printed word, you might dig into the more logical analysis of mathematics. That seems to be the attitude of Katie Mueller, who has studied the so-called "new math" for three years.



MUELLERT

As she and many other teachers and students see it, the mathematics involved is not so new, rather it's the method of presentation. In order to demonstrate her point, Katie posed for Associated Press photographers with four large stones, six medium-sized ones and one small one, all lined up from left to right. She held up seven fingers to illustrate calculations to the "base seven."

We understand if you can't think in sevens, then you can resort to the more traditional rocks in the head, arranged in a system of repeating 10's. Then Katie's 461 would add up to around 239, or else we'll have to get us a new pair of dice, or maybe a size 10 hat.

Non Compliance

THE TARGET DATE of March 3 went by last week with no parish in Louisiana forwarding a compliance form to the U.S. office of education.

The forms were called for in regards to the federal office's enforcement of the non-discrimination clause in the Civil Rights Law of 1964.

Without the forms, the office says it can approve no new programs involving the use of federal funds for state and local school activities.

AS OF FRIDAY, Louisiana, Tennessee and South Dakota had sent no compliance forms of any kind to the U.S. office of education.

Higher Dealings

Working with figures at a much higher base, former Senate aide Bobby Baker and Texas tycoon Billie Sol Estes figured again in last week's news.

Bobby Baker's wheeling and dealing has embroiled everyone from President Johnson to Capitol Hill page boys in the nation's most publicized investigation. Now he has a Republican senator and the attorney general at each other's throats.

Senator Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., set it off. He charged in a speech on the Senate floor that a Justice Department report which discredited the testimony of a key witness in the investigation was a phony.

Is The 'Great Society' The 'Promised Land'

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — In President Johnson's dream of The Great Society Americans will be happy, healthy and well-heeled.

As he sees it:

They'll drive out from bright cities, down beautiful highways and, breathing pure air, will relax or frolic on clean and lovely beaches.

They will be serene in the assurance that their country is safe from any combination of enemies.

They will take comfort in advances against disease — and never worry about the hospital bills of old age.

The children in this society will be well-schooled. The whole family will be well-housed. The people will be well-fed, from good land tended by happy farmers.

There'll be no great worry about losing their jobs, through recessions or depressions.

All this is still a dream, of course. But it is the stated dream of a hard-headed man — and with his vast powers of the presidency, Lyndon Johnson is pushing hard to make it come true.

Implicit in all of Johnson's statements is the idea that efforts to achieve the Great Society will have to continue over the years, long after he is out of office, and that concepts will have to change to meet the needs of a constantly changing contemporary society.

Here is Johnson on the subject:

"I believe that 30 years from now Americans will look back upon these 1960s as the time of the great American Breakthrough — toward the victory of peace over war; toward the victory of prosperity over poverty; toward the victory of human rights over human wrongs; toward the victory of enlighted minds over darkness."

Not everybody believes in Johnson's land of milk and honey. Some Republicans suspect a scheme to lure the people into a welfare state dictated from Washington.

Says Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana:

"How much farther down the road do we dare go before we just turn over everything we earn and look to the government for all our needs — from the maternity ward to the mortuary?"

What he wants, he sketched in his State of the Union message. In that speech, he set up shining goals:

"I propose we begin a program in education to ensure every American child the fullest development of his mind and skills.

"I propose we begin a massive attack on crippling and killing diseases.

"I propose we launch a national effort. Make the American city a better and more stimulating place to live.

"I propose we increase the beauty of America and end the poisoning of our rivers and air we breathe.

"I propose we carry out a new program to develop regions of our country now suffering from distress and depression.

"I propose we make new efforts to control and prevent crime and delinquency.

"I propose we eliminate every remaining obstacle to the right and opportunity to vote.

"I propose we honor and support the achievements of thought and the creations of art.

"I propose we make an all-out campaign against waste and inefficiency."

Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., gently scoffed at all this as "a glowing blueprint for paradise."

In the weeks since the State of the Union outline, Johnson has fleshed out the skeleton of his program with specific requests and estimates. The effect has been impressive, by any standards.

Quickly came his request for a medical care plan for the aged, tied to Social Security. It got a cordial welcome in Congress.

Milder critics speak of the Great Society as pretentious, grandiose and even corny — trying to dress up what might be more properly, if less dramatically, presented as a simple drive to improve social and economic conditions in the United States.

Most people agree the need for action is urgent. The population is growing too fast, the business of living is getting too complicated, and the blight of poverty too evident, to permit a put-it-off attitude.

A measure of the dimensions of poverty in a general prosperous nation, and an idea of the rewards that may be harvested —from fighting it, are combined in this statement by Johnson:

"We must teach skills to those who have no skills. It costs money to do this. But if the nine million families who are poor can earn minimum incomes of $3,000 a year, personal income in the nation will climb more than $11 billion a year."

The Great Society has captured the imagination of many, and last November's elections gave Johnson the votes he needs in Congress to help move the country in the direction he wants.

Johnson said:

"I believe this year is the year when, with the sure knowledge of public support, the Congress should enact a hospital insurance program for the aged. I ask that our Social Security system — proved and tested by three decades of successful operation — be extended to finance the cost of basic health services."

This message also called for the creation of 32 regional centers to provide advanced treatment for such diseases as cancer, stroke and heart disease, at a cost over six years of $1.2 billion; more federal aid to build medical and dental schools and to provide scholarship for needy medical and dental students.

Johnson laid down a series of educational programs with a $1.5-billion price tag and called that little enough "to pay for developing our nation's most precious resource."

One billion of the total would go to assist elementary and secondary schools serving children in low-income families, defined as those with incomes of under $2,000.

The assurance would be for "the benefit of all children within the area served" and would thus avoid the parochial-vs-public school barrier, since the money would not be granted on an institutional basis.

Johnson's defense message contained a Great Society theme of its own:

"Today we can walk the road of peace because we have the strength we need."

Johnson asked for $49 billion for defense, asserting that strength is essential for national security.

Johnson's great plans can't go forward unless the country prospers, and he looked confidently ahead in his economic message, saying:

"We have come to our present state of presperity without pressures or imbalances that would fortell any early end to our expansion."

He also declared:

"A time of prosperity with no recession in sight is the time to plan our defenses against future dips in business activity.

For one thing, Johnson asked quicker tax cut procedures to combat slumps.

He used his economic message, too, to ask Congress for quick action on various parts of his Great Society program, and he specified again:

An increase of 7 per cent in Social Security benefits; hospital care for the aged; doubled antipoverty appropriations; $1 billion to revive the depressed areas of the Appalachian region; extension of the minimum wage to 2 million more workers; more aid to education; improved housing and city development programs under a new Cabinet department.

Doubling of the "war on poverty" spending would mean expenditures of about $1.4 billion since Congress appropriated $784.2 million for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

Johnson figured, in his farm message, that if poor people could eat better, farmers would do better in the Great Society.

He said:

"If the income of all low-income families were brought up to the $3,000 annual level, per capita consumption of all food would rise by 2 per cent.

"Meat consumption among those low-income families would rise by 15 to 20 per cent; poultry by 10 to 15 per cent; milk products by about 7 per cent and fresh fruits and vegetables by 15 to 20 per cent.

Johnson asked for a nationwide attack on air and water pollution, and requested more parks and recreational areas.

"I am hopeful," he said, "that we can summon such a national effort, for we have not chosen to have an ugly America. We have been careless and often neglectful. But now that the danger is clear and the hour is late this people can place themselves in the path of the tide of blight which is often irreversible and always destructive.

"The open space program should be adequately financed and broadened by permitting grants to be made to help city governments acquire and clear areas to create small parks, squares, pedestrian malls and playgrounds."

Assuming that Johnson's goals are desirable, the next point to consider is how strongly Congress will join in shooting for them.

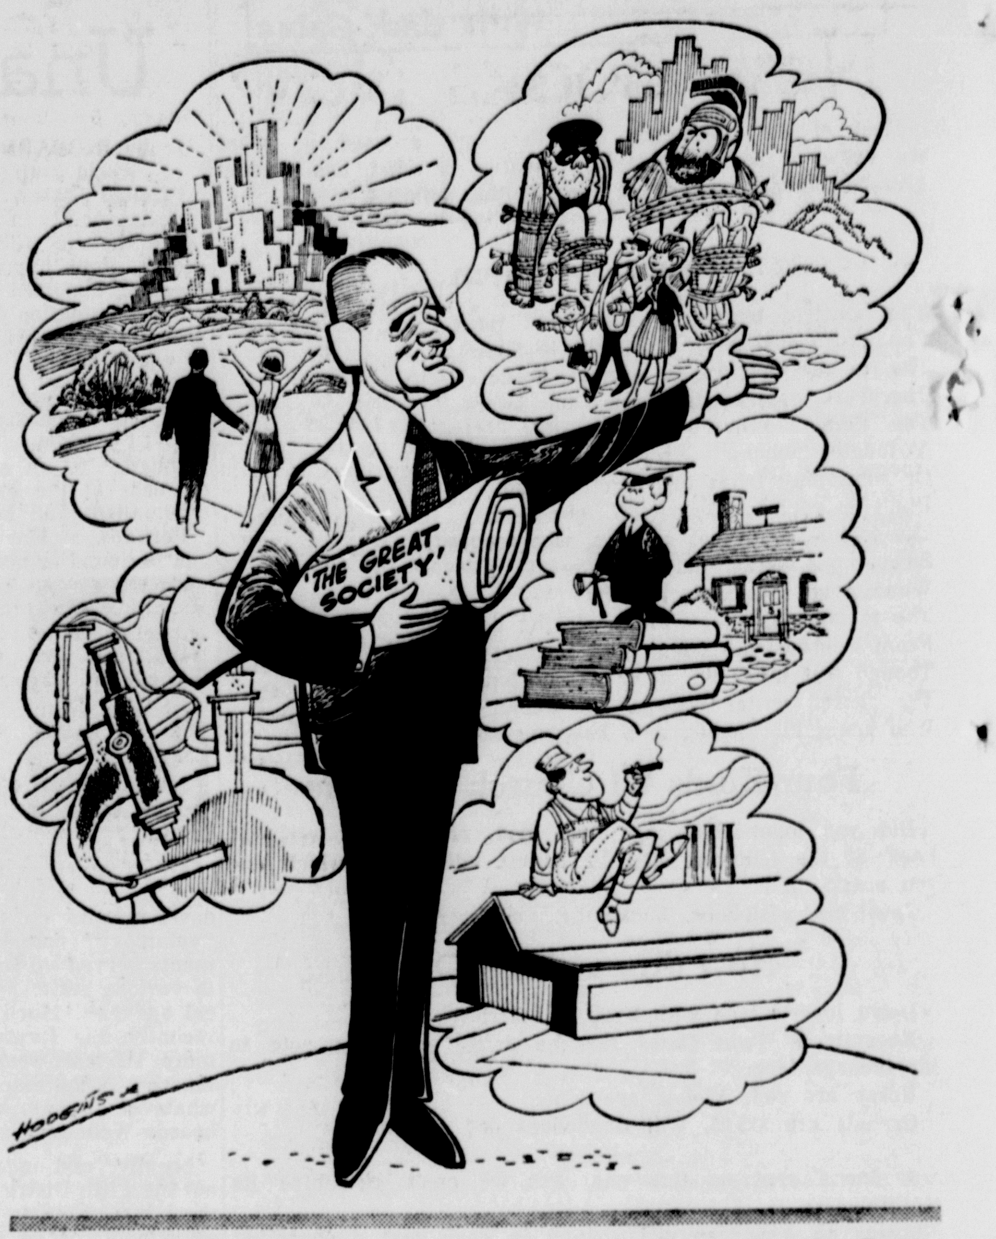
From the standpoint of numerical strength, the President should have no trouble. There are 68 Democrats in the Senate to 32 Republicans and there are 295 Democrats in the House to 140 Republicans. What's more, many members of the previous Congress who were conservatives have been replaced by liberals, more in tune with Johnson's ideas.

However heavy majorities are not always what they seem.

Individually or by groups, party members in a big majority may decide on various votes that their party loyalty is not so necessary. Also, Congress resents any rubber stamp role.

But summing it all up, Johnson still looks to be in character: too practical a man to demand the impossible, too experienced a politician to reach for more than he can grasp.

He has, to begin with, hit upon a winning slogan in "The Great Society."



The Village Physician

Doctor, Wife On 'Holiday For Humanity'

By ANN DIAMOND

Oak Ridge, Tenn., Oak Ridger

Written for Associated Press

MINAS DE ORO, Honduras (AP) — We had been in Honduras only 60 minutes when we realized we would have to shift into low gear. For the first 48 hours it was frustrating to adapt to the slow tempo of this Central American country, but after that we relaxed and enjoyed it.

For the whole month of December we saw no television, heard no telephone ring, read no newspaper and understood no radio newscasts. We were completely ignorant of what was happening in the rest of the world and it didn't seem very important.

My husband, Dr. Jack L. Diamond, had volunteered to serve as physician for one month to the town of Minas de Oro in the mountainous interior of Honduras. He was part of a group known as "Holidays for Humanity," which was started about a year ago by Dr. John Slaughter of Evansville, Ind.

On Nov. 28 we left our home in Oak Ridge, Tenn., to drive to New Orleans, where we boarded a plane for Tegucigalpa, capital of Honduras. Our car was loaded with personal luggage and three cartons of donated medicine Jack had collected over a period of months.

The next morning a truck with a crude wooden body built on the chassis picked us up for the 80-mile trip to Minos de Oro. There were 30 passengers jammed into the front of the so-called bus with boxes, luggage inside and on the roof above.

It took eight hours to travel those 80 miles. In the early evening we arrived stiff, dirty and thirsty at the clinic. We were warmly greeted by the Rev. John Newell, an American Jesuit priest who has served the town of 3,000 for over 18 years, and Sister Carmelia, a Franciscan nun from Milwaukee, who is in charge of the clinic where Jack was to work.

When we were shown our living quarters in the clinic building we knew we would be happy in this picturesque, colorful town nestled among foothills covered with lush, green growth.

Dr. Diamond and his wife, Ann, spent a month in the poverty-stricken but friendly community of 3,000. The clinic building is a brick-stucco structure built by the government a couple of years ago. It lacks electricity. Our apartment in one wing consisted of kitchen, hall-sitting room, bedroom and bathroom with up-to-date plumbing and cold running water. Water for drinking had to be boiled.

I hurried to shower and was struck numb by the freezing water that is piped in from a reservoir high in the mountains. That was the first and only time either of us used the shower. From then on we heated a tea kettle of water on our two-burner kerosene stove and used a dishpan as a standup tub.

Jack's pending arrival had been broadcast over the radio and his work began immediately. Patients from the town and villages from miles around came on mule and on foot to see the "Norte-Americano" doctor. Every day the patient load grew, as word spread from household to household and from village to village.

Most of the illnesses had their basis in malnutrition and intestinal parasites.

One universal custom made it easier for Jack to figure out the complaint, even with the language barrier. A bandana or towel wrapped tightly about the head was evidence that the patient had or was presumed to have a fever.

One day toward the end of the first week was a real heartbreaker. It started with a girl of 9 carrying a baby of 18 months. Hanging on to her skirt were two boys of 4 and 6. All had come to see the doctor. The 9-year-old was mother to her younger brothers since the death of their mother six months before.

Later that morning a man arrived astride a mule, carrying a year-old infant, followed by a young girl walking with a seven-day-old baby in her arms. They had traveled three hours from their village to the clinic. The newborn was suffering with tetanus. Massive doses of antitoxin were not available. Jack told the father to take the baby to Tegucigalpa so that it could get the life-saving serum. He shrugged resignedly. The trip was too expensive for his means. Within 36 hours the baby was dead. Another baby next year would be cheaper.

Just before the end of the day a young man of 21 was carried in on a homemade litter. He had slashed his foot through bones and tendons with a machete. Three two-man teams, working in relays, had carried him for two hours down from his mountain village to the clinic. Two poles cut from saplings rested on the bearers' shoulders while the injured man lay in a sling tied to the poles. Jack cleaned the wound, stopped the bleeding and administered antibiotics. He advised the stretcherbearers to take the patient to Tegucigalpa for orthopedic surgery. We learned later that he did not go and was lying in a house in our town waiting for his foot to heal.

We got little sleep that night. Jack paced the floor angrily asking, "How does a seven-day-old baby get tetanus? Why should a young boy have to end up a cripple or maybe lose his foot?" I could only sit and listen as he repeated and repeated these questions.

While Jack worked in the clinic I kept house. The first day I went shopping I was followed by a small crowd of kids who were fascinated by my white hair. They pointed to my head and chattered away. I recognized the word "blanca". I was delighted to learn later that my nickname was "the lady with hair like a cloud."

It is the custom to give a nickname to any foreigner who comes to live among them for any length of time. He never finds out what it is unless he has a friend among the natives who will tell him. Our friend, Donaldo Delgado, who teaches English in the Catholic secondary school, told me my beautiful name.

Our day was started early. We were awakened before dawn by the crowing roosters and barking dogs. If we managed to sleep through that cacophony, the furious ringing of the church bells before six did the job. It sounded more like a fire alarm than a summons of the faithful to Mass.

Whoever got up first — it was usually Jack — started the water boiling for coffee. That two-burner kerosene stove was a horror I never really mastered. One burner took 30 minutes to reach maximum heat and the other took almost two hours. Once the stove arrived at the point where it did some good, it couldn't be regulated. I spent hours perched on a kitchen chair reading or typing with one eye on that stove so that our food wouldn't burn. I became quite expert at juggling pots from one burner to the other. I followed a routine of filling the vacuum bottle with boiled water for the next meal's coffee, storing boiled water for drinking and reserving some for washing dishes and clothes.

I never lacked for company. My movements about our apartment were closely watched by youngsters who gathered outside the windows and followed me from room to room.

Shopping in the tiny grocery stores was no problem. There was little to choose from. Anyone with 10 feet of spare shelf space opened a store. In Dona Isabel's little shop I bought 30 cents worth of potatoes and walked out with two shopping bags full of fruits and vegetables, a gift from the plump, elderly storekeeper, because I was "bonitay buena."

Most of our evenings were spent reading by two kerosene lamps. I never was able to read for very long because my eyes soon ached from the dim, flickering light. Our 8 p.m. bedtime was the signal for scores of dogs to begin their all night howling.

The houses are mostly one or two rooms, constructed of mud allowed to harden, covered with a stucco finish and then whitewashed. The roofs of dull red tile against the varied green background presented a picture of over-all beauty. The narrow dirt and cobblestone streets run irregularly in and around the houses from one end of town to the other.

There is no vehicular traffic except the truck-buses that leave for Tegucigalpa in the morning and return the next evening. Mules, an occasional horse, and foot travel are the mode. There are no traffic hazards, but walking requires caution. There are no gasoline fumes, but the barnyard odor is strong as cows, chickens, pigs, hundreds of starved dogs and half-naked children use the streets. Sanitation is primitive.

A couple of nights a week ancient American movies with Spanish sub-titles were shown on a sheet-screen set up in the church plaza. The kids and a sprinkling of adults sat on the ground and responded to the comedy or drama much like any audience in the United States. We attended twice and saw Gene Autry triumph over the bad guys and saw a Hollywood African adventure film with actors I never heard of. When we arrived there was a rush to get us chairs to sit on.

December is the month of Christmas. There was none of the frenetic rush to prepare for the holiday in Minas de Oro. There were no decorations in the stores; no urging to shop early; there is no money. On the nine nights before Christmas the children formed a procession and visited a different house each night. They marched along singing, shooting off firecrackers, holding aloft lanterns glowing with colored lights surrounding the upraised statues of Joseph and Mary. It was a lovely sight under the full moon and star-lighted sky.

BOOKS

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

New Books Now Are Available

By FRANCES FLANDERS

There are a number of new books of fiction for the patrons of the Ouachita Parish Public Library this week. An absorbing novel is "Hotel" by Arthur Hailey. This book has for it's theme the detailed operation of a first class independent hotel. The scene is in New Orleans, which will make the book especially interesting to our patrons. "The Intruder" by Anton Myrer has it's setting in Boston and deals with the psychological impact of a tragedy upon a family. It will interest many readers, especially women. "The Fortunate Pilgrim" by Mario Puzo is a story about an Italian family living in the tenements of New York from 1928 until the second World War. It is a story rich in detail and in human values, but is not a pleasant book. Readers who want a light, pleasant love story will be happy to know that Emilie Loring has a new book called "Forever and A Day." Alfred Duggan who made himself an authority on the Middle Ages and the Crusades has left us one more fine book, which has been published posthumously. It is a story of the first Crusade and the title is "Count Behemond." It is a excellent book and one that will be useful for many years. "Late Call" by Angus Wilson is a very fine novel about old age, written as a sort of social satire, which Mr. Wilson does so well. This is a book to promote sympathy and understanding and should be read by everyone who has an elderly parent. Heinrich Boll is one of the most interesting novelists of post war Germany and he has given us a good performance in his latest book "The Clown." Not a pleasant book, it is one which the reader will long remember. Readers of mystery stories will find several titles from which to choose this week. They are; "The Visitors" by Nathaniel Benchley, "With Intent To Kill" by George Harmon Coxe, "Funeral in Berlin" by Len Deighton and "The Late Bride" by Theodora Dubois.

There is a great variety of non-fiction available this week. Louis MacNeice has written a book on a subject about which there is not much popular material, Astrology". Allan Fromme is the author of "The Ability To Love" which discusses the different kinds of love and changes in personality. It will be useful to readers who need an understanding of themselves. A lovely book on the subject of the Christian life is "Never Lose Heart" by Max M. Morrison.

An interesting new book in the field of present day economics is "The Free Enterprisers" written by Hobart Rowen. This book discusses Presidents Kendy and Johnson and the business establishment of this country. A very useful book is "The Glamour Magazine Party Book" written Eleanor Elliott. This book discusses kinds of parties and the etiquette applicable in each case. It is a little different from most party books and should be widely used. A basic introduction to the science of language is "Invitation to' Linguistics" written by Mario Pei.

Mathematics is a very popular subject today and a new and useful book is "Decimals and Percentage" written by Betty K. Friel. "The Astronomers" by Colin A Ronan is a very fine history of astronomy and of the famous men who have contributed to the development of this science. There are two new books in the field of health and medicine 'I am a Chronic Cardiac" by Lynn Poole should help those who have the same ailment and "The Savage Cell" by Pat McGrady is a comprehensive report on cancer and cancer research. "The Popular Mechanics Home Book of Electrical Wiring and Repair" written by Harold P. Strand is a practical and useful book for the person who does his wiring himself. "The Bridge" by Gay Talese is an account of the new bridge which connects New York City and Staten Island by spanning the Verrazano Narrows. The story of it's construction makes fascinating reading.

If you are one of the people who has always to make a rock garden, but has never gotten around to it, you should borrow "Rock Gardens" by Edward B. Anderson at once. This book gives details of construction and the plants which are suitable for this type of gardening. It is a fascinating book. "Hunting Dogs of America" by Jeff Griffen will appeal to many men who like to read as well as to hunt. A useful reference book for writers is "A Dictionary of Usage and Style" written by Roy H. Copperud. It contains much valuable information on the subject of composition, idioms etc.

Your Public Library will be open this afternoon from 2:00 to 5:00 at the Headquarters Library only.

Personalities Who Vie For The Top Job

DAILY AND SUNDAY. By Richard Powell. Scribner. $4.95.

Powell's novel, as the title indicates, is primarily a story of a newspaper. It is an employe-owned paper, faced with a crisis when its dynamic publisher dies. But really this is a story of people.

The question is, should a new publisher and boss be picked from the present board of directors — the major heads of departments — or should an attractive purchase offer be accepted from the proprietors of a large newspaper group?

And yet, the crux of the story is a matter of individual personalities vying for control. Although the narrative is filled with the atmosphere of journalism, the whole situation is one that might occur in any large enterprise. The drama lies in a battle for supremacy. The tang of the story lies in its characterization.

The question of the paper's future is posed chiefly to its board chairman, who feels he is not qualified to take charge because of his heart condition.

Among the candidates for the top job are the business manager, somewhat distracted by his personal problems; the secretary-treasurer, a nit-picking, automated digit-counter; the managing editor, a bemused individual who does not seek the post, and an advertising manager, a self-made young man who is pressing too hard. The other directors participating in the decision are a women's page editor, a mechanical superintendent and a young circulation manager.

Powell's story is distinguished chiefly by his interesting exploration of a variety of personalities. Aside from its technical atmosphere, which is engaging, it is a study of down-to-earth people.

Clipper Ship Mystery Told

SEA JADE. By Phyllis A. Whitney. Appleton Century. $4.95.

A romance set in the late 19th Century, this is a story of a strange family in a New England seaport shortly after the famous clipper ships had been forced into decline by the progress of steam.

It is narrated by a young woman, Miranda Heath, who returns to her birthplace in Scots Harbor because she has no means of support. Besides Miranda, the dominating figure of the story is the aged and dying Capt. Obadiah Bascomb.

Bascomb had been the key man in a shipping and ship-building dynasty, which had included Andrew McLean, designer, and Miranda's father Nathaniel Heath.

Now old Bascomb lived in a household of hatred and rivalry. It included his Chinese wife Lien, spurned by everyone; the waspish widow of his partner McLean, and their warped son Bart McLean; and finally Miranda, daughter of his other partner.

The crux of the story is that something terrible and obscured had happened in a voyage of the fast clipper Sea Jade, years earlier, when all three partners had been aboard.

Miranda has to undergo some pretty gruelling experiences as she unravels the old story of the Sea Jade crisis. The narrative has as many twists of plot as a magazine serial.

This book seems to be a nice thrill for the ladies, because it is full of those heart - throb catches you would expect to find in a costume drama.

La Farge Pleasure To Read

La Farge was one of those rare individuals whose ambidextrous gifts enable them to flourish in the two cultures — science and literature.

He began his career as an anthropologist, turned to fiction — his first novel, "Laughing Boy," won the Pulitzer Prize for 1929 — and through both fact and fiction became an authority on the Southwest and the American Indian.

This collection of 12 stories, written over a period of many years, has a common theme — the personal lives and adventures of people working in the scholarly field of anthropology, archeology and ethnology.

Most of them are connected in some way with an imaginary school, Talvert University, and a good many characters appear in two or more tales. Some of the stories are set in the rain forest and some in the Southwest. And despite the fact they are all close to the academic world, they encompass a surprising range of human experience.

There is a subtle story of a man who created a scholarly hoax and then let it change his whole life. One is a vivid study of an independent researcher's disintegration in the tropics. Another is a stirring illumination of the crucial moment in the life of a boy who is loyal to his father, and cannot accept his mother's second husband. Two tales show how the members of a primitive society protect their cultural heritage through privacy and secrecy.

Droll Jester To The Court, Psychoanalysis

TIME LURCHES ON. By Ralph Schoenstein. Doubleday. $3.95.

The man's funnay, funnay, and it's a relief to find a quipster who doesn't descend into the gutter and the sewer, a clown who isn't sick, just impertinent.

A good bit of the time he is a mild jeerer, utilizing a little burble of spoofing to infiltrate among his alienation-stuffed neighbors.

His topics include some ready-made and some custom-made targets. Such as: the idiocies of Christmas and New Year's celebrations; the quaint perversities of the old baseball Giants; Manhattan as a place to live (?); Wall Street as seen from a considerable distance; the hazards of writing, promoting and trading for the rights on books; the absurdities of today's fad for being psychoanalyzed; the excesses of cemetery promoters; the inanities of sportscasting's cliches, and the horrors of that piped music which is inflicted upon captive audiences.

In one section the humor is delicate and affectionately nostalgic, as he recalls the self-indulgent gusto of the good old days of radio — the pretelevision days of his youth. In this essay he has a tape-recorder ear for all the old, corny but fascinating programs of yesterday.

He does strain a little at times, to wring everything out of a situation. But he has a lot of drollery going for him. His cap and bells are worn with the right sort of ingratiating shrug.

AGAINST COMMUNISM

Advertising Use Needed In 'War'

By DALLAS ROPER

THE STRATEGY OF PERSUASION By Arthur E. Meyerhoff. Coward-McCann, $4.50.

The author, an experienced and noted advertising executive, proposes revolutionary changes in America's efforts to project her "image" and for winning the Cold War.

Meyerhoff would use propaganda more effectively by using advertising skills to sell our way of life and to show communism for what it really is.

In a chapter entitled "How They Fight" the author shows the communist uses of the art of propaganda and compares it to the feeble use of our efforts in the field.

The U. S. Information Agency and the Voice of America radio broadcasts come under Meyerhoff's scrutiny and fall short of delivering the goods.

"The USIA's radio, the Voice of America," he says, "should devote its resources and personnel to carrying out what is called in advertising an 'institutional campaign,' a consistent and carefully planned program that gives a constructive view of our society . . ." Meyerhoff contends in his book that if American advertising know-how can sell soap and corn flakes it can sell democracy.

He points out that public relations and newspaper personnel are hired for this selling job that, in his opinion, rightfully belongs in the hands of persons skilled in the arts of advertising.

His points are well made and, as author of the "Ugly American" Eugene Burdick says in his introduction, if Meyerhoff's answers to the problem of international communism are accurate "this is one of the most exciting books of our times. It may also be one of the most decisive."

Tells Story Of Hotel In Louisiana

HOTEL. By Arthur Hailey. Doubleday. $5.95.

The setting for Hailey's fast-moving novel is a large hotel in New Orleans, once famous but now going downhill for lack of proper management.

The major plot is built around the erratic old owner's efforts to refinance his mortgage and keep the place out of the hands of a chain operator. But the central figure is the hotel's general manager, a young man who needs to build a career and is itching to modernize the business, fire some chiselling employes and put the hotel back on a profitable basis.

There is a sub-plot involving a visiting English duke and his duchess, who try to cover up their guilt in a hit-and-run accident. There is a romance between the manager and the owner's secretary, which is jeopardized for a time by the plotting of a spoiled young debutante.

There also is a medical emergency in which the secretary saves the life of a mysterious old man. And in the midst of all these excitements and others, a hotel burglar starts making his raids. Some of the comic relief is supplied by the chain hotel man and his mistress, a beautiful but dumb starlet.

The action takes place in the span from a Monday night to the following Friday, and the reader is shown all the backstage complications of operating a large hotel.

There's nothing very literary about this novel. It's a story for entertainment's sake, and on that score it gives the reader a lively show.

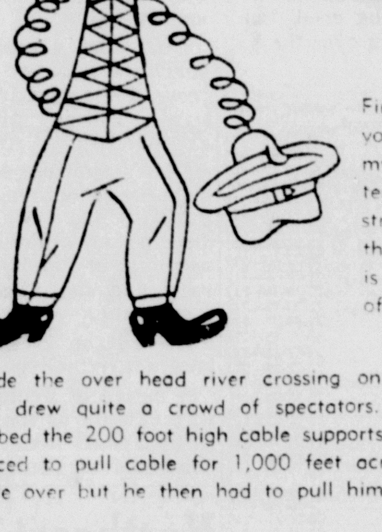
PETS ARE BIG BUSINESS

NEW YORK (UPI)—So popular are pets today that Americans are spending about $1.5 billion annually for pets, food and incidentals.

Last year they spent about $530 million for dog food alone — nearly double the money spent for baby food. F. W. Woolworth Co., the world's largest outlet for pets other than dogs and cats (which the firm doesn't sell) reports soaring sales in its 2,117 stores throughout the country.

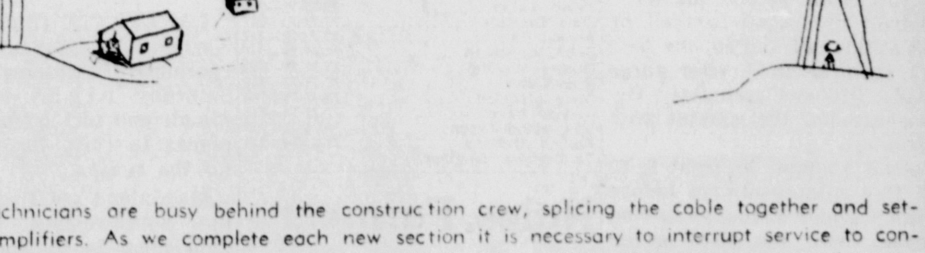


Good Morning Everybody

. . . this is K. Able Signal again

First we must appologize for the service interruptions you have been experiencing! If you recall in one of my earlier news letters, I explained that some interruptions would be necessary while we were constructing our new main line. We are happy to report that approximately 12,000 feet of new trunk line is now on the poles and approximately 6,000 feet of this is now in use.

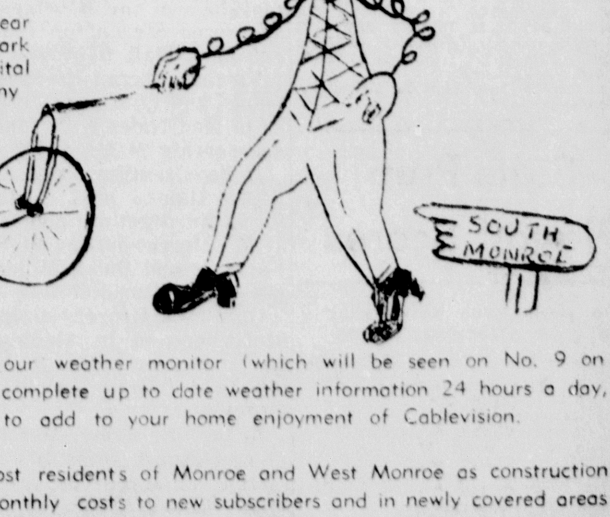
We made the over head river crossing on Sunday last and even though the weather was bad, we drew quite a crowd of spectators. There were a few anxious moments as Bud Hatten climbed the 200 foot high cable supports and set his cable car on the steel strand and commenced to pull cable for 1,000 feet across the cold river water. It is not sufficient to pull the cable over but he then had to pull himself back to strap and secure the cable to the strand!



Our technicians are busy behind the construction crew, splicing the cable together and setting amplifiers. As we complete each new section it is necessary to interrupt service to connect it to the existing system and with the very much increased signal strength the new cable gives, it is necessary to go through and rebalance all the amplifiers after it.

Pole identification and preliminary lay out plans are already in progress in South Monroe, which is our Phase 2. We are hoping to have all re-arrangements completed and ready to go as soon as we have finished the existing system.

In the next few days we will be spear heading our new trunk line down Park Avenue and to the St. Francis Hospital area . . . there are likely to be many interruptions, but when it is completed we will have a considerably better signal to work with. Our tower work has been stopped by the weather and as soon as it breaks we will continue our "phasing" of Ch. 3, 6, and 12 Shreveport.



We have also started assembling our weather monitor (which will be seen on No. 9 on your T. V. Dial). This will provide complete up to date weather information 24 hours a day, with pleasant back ground music to add to your home enjoyment of Cablevision.

Cablevision will be available to most residents of Monroe and West Monroe as construction progresses. The installation and monthly costs to new subscribers and in newly covered areas will be reasonable. You will receive several distant T V Channels, a weather monitor and FM and FM Multiplex radio stations will also be available.

'TILL NEXT WEEK THEN . . .

Sanders Takes Pensacola Lead

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Doug Sanders shot a sizzling seven-under-par 65 Saturday and took the third round lead in the $65,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament after another battle with Jack Nirklaus.

Sanders, known for his short back swing and better known for his stories and antics on the course, was 12-under-par with 204 going into the final round.

Nicklaus was only two strokes behind after a five-under-par 67 for a three-round total of 206, 10-under-par.

Bill Casper and Bill Martindale, second round leader, had seven-under-par totals of 209 for third place.

Defending champion Gary Player shot a 70 for four-under 212, in a six-way tie for seventh place. Arnold Palmer shot a 73 and fell farther back with a one-over 217.

The tournament at the 6,380-yard, par 72 Pensacola Country Club course has turned out to be a duel between Sanders and Nicklaus. They both posted a 68 in the first round to tie Kel Nagle and Dave Marr for the lead. After shooting second-round 71s, Sanders and Nicklaus were tied for second place.

Saturday, they fought neck and neck until Nicklaus bogied the 376-yard, par-four 17th and Sanders holed an 18-foot putt on the 18th to take the lead.

Interviewed after his hot round, all Sanders wanted to know was how Nicklaus was doing.

"I'm sure baby beef — a common nickname for Nicklaus — will have no trouble out there," Sanders said. "Tell him, he doesn't need the money, and save my seat here; I'll be back tomorrow."

Nicklaus, last year's top money winner, hasn't been this close to a victory all year.

"I played pretty well today," Nicklaus said. "I didn't drive as well as I had hoped. My iron game was fair. I played better the first two rounds, but I putted better today."

Nicklaus shot six birdies and one bogey.

Sanders birdied the sixth, eighth, 10th, 12th, 13th, 14th and 18th holes. On the 495-yard, par-five eighth, Sanders dropped a shot 30 feet from the green and two-putted for the birdie.

"My shoulder is better," he said. "I'm swinging good, but I find myself coming over the ball a little bit."

Willis Reed Is Guiding Light In Knicks' Win

DETROIT (AP) — Rookie Willis Reed scored the last seven points for New York as the Knicks came from behind after blowing a 22-point lead and beat Detroit 96-93 Saturday night in a National Basketball Association game.

Reed's basket with 2:16 left broke a 89-89 tie. Then he scored on a free throw and a basket to put New York four up.

After Detroit came within a point of a tie, Reed meshed two more foul shots with 15 seconds to go and sewed it up.

The Pistons, who were all but eliminated for a chance for the Western Division playoffs, spotted the Knicks the game's first 14 points. The Pistons fell behind three times by 22-point margins in the second quarter.

Detroit recovered to trail by 63-48 at the half and cut the New York lead to 73-71 after three periods. Player-Coach Dave DeBusschere led the assault with 10 points.

Detroit zoomed in front 87-83 with five minutes to go before Reed hit a pair of foul shots and followed with his final seven points.

Reed led all scores with 33 points and had 18 rebounds. DeBusschere had 23 for Detroit.

Byrd Wins NLSC Prep Track Meet

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

Excellent times in the 100 and 220 yard dashes in the intra-squad meet highlighted the first annual Northeast State High School Invitational Track meet Saturday afternoon with Byrd of Shreveport walking off with honors in the high school division.

Dalton LeBlanc stepped off the 100 in a time of 9.5, good enough to equal the Brown Stadium record, if the meet had been held under regular competition conditions.

Ronnie Fountain's 21.2 clocking in the 200 dash would have bettered the stadium mark by two tenths of a second.

The Yellow Jackets placed strong in all events to walk off with the meet, 108½ to runner up West Monroe with 56. Neville finished with 30½ and Ruston scored 13.

Neville's Johnny O'Neal took the 100 yard dash in a time of 10.1 with James Irwin of Byrd and Ken Brazell of Neville tying for second at 10.3.

O'Neal also won the 220 yard dash in 23.0. Byrd's Skipper Hardcastle took second in the event with a clocking of 23.2 and two other Byrd runners taking the other two places.

Hurdler Steve West of West Monroe won both high school hurdle events without much difficulty. He was clocked in the 120 highs at 14.4, with Byrd's Rorie taking second at 14.6.

West's second win came in the 180 lows when he finished well ahead of the field at 20 seconds flat. Billy Patterson of Ruston was in second place at 21.1 with Rorie coming in third at 21.3 and Bill Garfield of Neville finishing fourth at 21.4.

Byrd got a clean sweep of the relays with West Monroe taking second in all cases. The Yellow Jackets took the 440 in a time of 44.2, the 880 in 1:30.1 and the mile in 3:24.2. Jim Hughes, Greg Falk, Skipper Hardcastle and Dick Brooks ran on two of the three winning teams with Ron Smith filling in on the mile and Jim Roberts, Bill Irwin, and Melvin Stallcup on the 440.

West Monroe's relay squads ran a 44.4 quarter, 1:30.8 half mile and a 3:28.8 mile.

It was the first outdoor meet for West Monroe, which placed well at the Coliseum Relays in Montgomery and at the Graduate "N" Club running at Northwestern last weekend. It was also the first meet of the year for Neville.

Byrd also got the top two places in the 440 dash. Clocked at 50.7, Jimmy Hughes got the first position with teammate Falk finishing second at 51.6. Kenneth Frazier, of West Monroe grabbed third at 55.2 and Wayne Taylor of Neville got the last place at 55.3.

Byrd's Ran Smith finished well enough of the field in the 880 run to make the win look easy. Smith was clocked in 2:01.8 with West Monroe's Larry Beebe coming in second four tenths of a second later. Byrd also took third and fourth in this event. John Howell came in third at 2:02.5 and Mike Roberts finished fourth at 2:02.6.

Byrd also grabbed up three places in the mile run leaving West Monroe's Beebe, a sophomore, to take second again.

Tad Price of Byrd won the mile in a time of 4:34.3 with Beebe crossing the line at 4:36.8. Owen Self and Kenneth Webb of Byrd took the other two places well in back of the first two finishers.

In the pole vault, Neville got the first two places on the 12-6 winning leap of Larry Mullens and the 12-0 effort of Johnnie Hines. West Monroe's David Fragala, who set a meet record at Montgomery and won the broad jump Saturday, finished third and Harry Ottman of Byrd took fourth with an 11-6 vault.

Byrd's Melvin Stallcup got second and Joe Rice third behind Fragala winning 21-4 leap in the broad jump. Fragala was almost a full foot ahead of the other winners.

Stallcup returned to sweep the triple jump with a hop - step-jump of 40-4½, an inch and one-quarter ahead of teammate Randy Scurlock. Fragala finished third in that event with Daniel Gilbert of Ruston taking the fourth spot.

Mike Strange of Byrd and Scurlock tied for first in the high jump with two Ruston field men, Dan Gilbert and Steve Kirbow tying for third. All jumpers cleared the 5-8 mark with the ties decided on the number of misses.

COLLEGE DIVISION

The Northeast trackmen divided into a Maroon and Gold squad after Memphis State, originally scheduled to run against the Indians, was forced to cancel earlier in the week because of injuries.

The Maroons bettered their counterparts, 64-47.

John Linta took first place in the pole vault, long after the 1,500 fans had departed, with a vault of 14-6. It was his second time of the season to go that height. Paul Hobgood got second for the Maroons with a 14 foot even effort.

Roger Mann stepped out the 120 high hurdles in :14.1, his best time in an outdoor performance last season, and finished just ahead of Fred Vogel in that event and in the 330 yard intermediates. Vogel ran the 120's in :14.5 and the intermediates in :39.1, a full second off Mann's winning pace of :38.1.

Fountain ran second to Leblanc in the 100 at 9.7 and LeBlanc took second behind Fountain in the 20 with 21.8.

The Maroons took both relays, winning the 440 in :41.7 with the team of Mike Tabor, Cline Averett, who took the 440 dash in :49.9, Roger Mann, and Dalton LeBlanc. Roger Morgan, Eric Borgkvist, LeBlanc and Averett took the mile in a time of 3:23.2, with Averett coasting into the finish well ahead of the field.

Willis Delhomme gave Averett more of a race in the 400 dash and finished one tenth of a second off the winning pace at 50.0.

Bobby Keesler won the 880 run with a time of 1:56.9 ahead of Gayland LeBalnc at 1:58.7. Robert Harvison copped the mile run for the Maroon team in a 4:26.0 clocking, his best performance. Courtland Gray Hurdles Winner In IC4A Affair

NEW YORK (AP) — Maryland, chief challenger to Villanova's long time domination of the IC4A indoor games, held a solid lead half way through the 44th annual championships at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

With seven of the 13 championship events completed, Maryland's Atlantic Coast Conference champions had 16½ points.

Villanova, which had won three straight titles and six of the last eight, was third in the field of 59 teams with 11 points. Harvard's Heptagonal champions were second with 12. Tied for fourth with nine each were Navy and Northeastern.

Noel Carroll, the 1963 winner of the 1,000, became Villanova's first individual champion when he just edged out St. John's defending champion Tom Bauer in 2:11.5.

Sam Perry of Fordham successfully defended his 60 yard title in 6.3 and Courtland Gray of Navy won the hurdles in 7.4. Gray, former Neville of Monroe star, matched the meet record of 7.3 in the quarter-finals.

Villanova got more help than expected with two points in the field events, one more than expected by Coach Jumbo Jim Maryland was staked to its early lead by a 1-2 finish in the broad jump. It was no surprise that Mike Cole made a successful defense of his crown, going 24 feet 5 inches, but it was a form reversal when his sophomore teammate, Lew Schnetzka, took second.

WINNSBORO (Special) — Northeast roared from behind a six-point halftime deficit, reeling off 11 points in the first four minutes of the second half to take an 85-72 victory over Louisiana Tech in the finals of the Junior Varsity Cotton Classic here Saturday night.

GIRLS CLASS A

Vidalia Smashes Coushatta, 60-37

PINEVILLE (Special)—Jena dethroned defending champion Winnfield, 85-49, in the class double A finals of the Sweet Sixteen girls basketball tournament Saturday night in the new H. O. West gym on the Louisiana College campus.

In other action, Vidalia won the class A championship by coming from behind to down Coushatta 60-47. Pine Prairie stopped Washington 38-32 for the class B title and Poland nugged Chaneyville in a disputed tilt by a 57-56 margin to cop the class C title.

Winnfield, which had won the class AA crown in the two meets since the tourney began, was the favorite in this year's tourney, but someone forgot to tell Jena about it.

Jena took the lead from the start and never was headed as it romped home with ease. Pacing Jena was Mary Allen, who hit for 34 points, and Sandy Aldriedge who scored 31. Jane Green added 19 for good measure.

Winnfield got a top effort from Phyllis Love, who hit for 21 points, 15 of them free throws. Docia Dalby was right behind with 20 a tallies while Bess Garrett chipped in with 26.

In the class A battle, Coushatta pulled out in front by a four point margin in the first quarter and seemed on the way to victory when its shooting went frigid.

Vidalia, however, got hot at that time and sizzled off 19 points while Coushatta was managing a meger three tallies —and school was out. Vidalia breezed in after that.

Aaronette Eifling was the star for Vidalia with 37 points while Judy Poole provided a big hand by scoring 15. Dinna Crawford's 15 tallies paced Coushatta and Bobbie Penny contributed 14 more.

Win Streaks Go On Line Monday

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Some of the season's longest winning streaks in college basketball go on the line Monday when the major teams get down to the serious business of playing post-season tournaments.

Five teams which can boast winning streaks ranging from 10 to 19 games are scheduled to appear on the same court in one section of the first-round National Collegiate Athletic Association playoffs.

The NCAA tournament was reduced to 23 teams this year. As a result, three first-round games will be played at Philadelphia and two at Texas Tech Monday, and two more at Western Kentucky Tuesday.

The winners of these games will go into four regional tournaments Friday and Saturday, from which will emerge four teams to fight it out for the NCAA title at Portland, Ore., March 19-20.

The National Invitation Tournament, which no longer gets the champions—except its own—opens its 28th stand in Madison Square Garden Thursday with a field increased from 12 to 14 teams. It also ends March 20.

Also on this week's schedule are the two small college tournaments—the NCAA College Division finals at Evansville, Ind., Wednesday through Friday and the NAIA championship at Kansas City all week. District and regional playoffs during the past week have reduced the field to 32 for the NAIA and eight for the NCAA.

The match-up of winning streaks takes place in the NCAA first round tripleheader at Philadelphia. Princeton, which won its last 10 games en route to the Ivy League championship, meets Penn State, 13 straight, in the opener. St. Joseph's, 15 straight and 25-1 for the season, meets Connecticut, 14 straight and 22-2, in the second game. For the windup it's Providence, which won its first 19 games in a 21-1 season, against late-starting West Virginia, winner of the Southern Conference tournament.

The doubleheader at Texas Tech, combining the first-round games for two regionals, sends Oklahoma City against Colorado State University and Notre Dame against Houston. The first game winner moves into the Far West regional and the second winner into the Midwest regional.

Tuesday's games at Western Kentucky, qualifying two teams for the Mid-East regional, are DePaul vs. Eastern Kentucky, the Ohio Valley Conference champion, and Dayton vs. the winner of the Mid American Conference title—either Ohio University of Miami of Ohio.

Sites of the four regionals next weekend are the University of Maryland, Kentucky, Kansas State and Brigham Young.

The NCAA tournament automatically takes the champions of 15 conferences and, as usual, several of these races weren't settled before the final weekend of the regular season. The winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament is slated to play the Princeton-Penn State win in the second round at Maryland while Vanderbilt, Southeast Conference winner, and the winner of the Big Ten titles drew the byes at Kentucky.

At Kansas State, the Big Eight champion will play the Notre Dame-Houston winner. Wichita, the Missouri Valley Conference representative, will play the Southwest Conference runner-up. Texas Tech, front-runner in the Southwest, declared itself out because of an ineligible player. San Francisco and UCLA have qualified for the Brigham Young regional by winning conference titles. The Dons will play the Oklahoma City-Colorado State winner and the Bruins will meet the Western Athletic Conference champions.

Heading the NIT field are last year's winner and runner-up, Bradley and New Mexico, and teams that are old Garden favorites. Among them are St. John's of New York, making its 17th NIT appearance; Bradley and St. Louis, 12th for each; and LaSalle and Villanova from Philadelphia's Big Five.

The others are Army, Boston College, Detroit, Fordham, Manhattan, New York University, Texas Western and Western Kentucky.

Floyd Patterson Next For Terrell

CHICAGO (AP) — Ernie Terrell's manager reluctantly agreed Saturday to have his newly crowned WBA heavyweight champion defend the title within 90 days against former champion Floyd Patterson.

"Although I have said repeatedly that Floyd Patterson has been the ruination of boxing, I will agree to the World Boxing Association's motion that Terrell defend his title against Patterson," said Big Julie Isaacson, Terrell's manager.

"Patterson doesn't deserve the title chance because he never fought the No. 1 contenders," said Isaacson. "Instead he took on such bums as Pete Rademacher, Tom McNeely and Cut and Shoot Roy Harris."

The WBA's executive committee passed a motion that Terrell, winner of the WBA's title on his decision over Eddie Machen in a tug-of-war Friday night, should fight Patterson, now it's No. 1 contender.

The WBA said it will notify Patterson immediately and give him 10 days to reply.

In line behind Patterson are Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz., and George Chuvalo, the Canadian heavyweight champion who lost a thrilling slugfest to Patterson on Feb. 1.

Big Julie said, "I think Patterson is scared stiff of Terrell. Ernie would jab him to bits. As for Folley, Ernie beat him before (July 27, 1963) and another fight would be a real stinker-rinker like last night. Folley is a clutcher like Machen. Chuvalo would be fine. That would make a great fight and some money.

"But I would rather meet the winner of the Clay-Liston fight," added Isaacson.

Clay and Liston are scheduled to meet in a return title bout May 25. The WBA stripped the Louisville Lip of the title for signing for the return bout in violation of its rules.

Sources close to Patterson here said it was highly doubtful that the former two-time champion would take on Terrell. He is awaiting the Clay-Liston outcome.

Clay favors meeting Patterson next. Patterson also may take one fight in May against Chuvalo, Argentina's Gregorio Peralta or Folley.

This was inflicted in the sixth round of the holding-marred 15-rounder which drew 6,587 and $47,465 to the International Amphitheatre.

The uanimous verdict favoring the 25 - year -old Terrell was greeted by a storm of boos from the fans. They were partial to the 6-foot, 32-year-old Machen, who was a 9-5 underdog. It was Terrell's 13th straight victory.

Machen came out the winner financially. He was guaranteed $20,000 by Terrell, or rather Isaacson. They got 60 per cent of the net purse.

"The fight cost me about $17,000 including expenses and a purse of about $5,000 that Ernie should get," said Isaacson. "Actually we figure to get nothing from the receipts. But Ernie deserves a payday. I'll make it up on the first big pay day."

DEFENDING GSC CHAMPIONS

Northeast Baseballers Open Upcoming Season March 24

Defending Gulf States Conference baseball champion Northeast State will open the 1965 season March 24 with the first of five straight home doubleheaders.

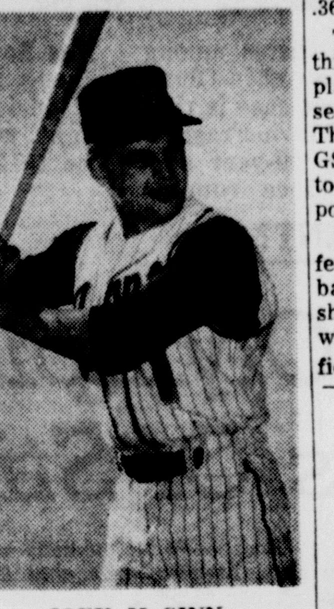
The first opponent on the schedule, announced by Athletic Director Dixie White and Coach George Luffey, is Austin College of Sherman, Tex. The Austin nine will play Northeast in a pair of doubleheaders, March 24 and 25, and will be followed by Nicholls State (four games) and GSC opponent Southeastern (two games) before the Indians play their first road game April 3 at Northwestern State.

Northeast is scheduled for 33 games in 1965, all but three of them coming in 15 doubleheaders. The three single games come during the Easter holidays on April 15, 16 and 17 when the Indians play the University of Houston at Houston.

The Indians will meet their final non-conference opponent, the University of Arkansas, in a Monroe doubleheader April 20 before finishing up against conference teams.

All home games will begin at 1:30 and will be played on the Julia Wossman Recreation Center field off Westminster Avenue.

Northeast enjoyed its best season last year, posting a 17-10 overall record, finishing atop the Gulf States Conference standings and earning Luffey "Coach of the Year" honors in the league.



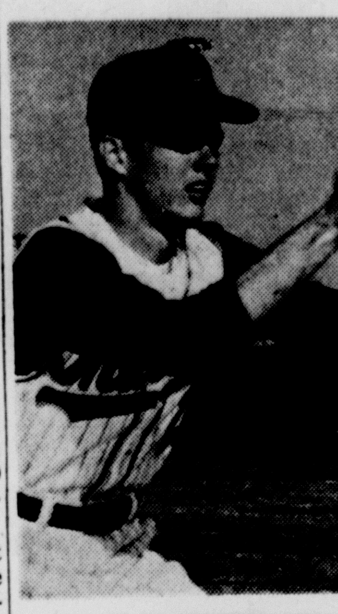
JOEY McGINN
. . . Second Sacker

The Indians had a 13-3 conference record, finishing four games in front of second-place Southwestern.

Although he has most of the members of the championship squad back, Luffey must solve several pressing problems before his team can hope to repeat.

The team's principal losses were all - GSC pitcher Floyd Murry, all - GSC outfielder John Pace, both of its platooning first basemen, Jim Caskey and Marvin Brossett, and utility man Bobby Leake.

Murry had a 5-2 record last year and was 5-0 in league play. Pace batted .302 while Caskey, Brossett and Leake all hit over .300 in conference games, Caskey .367, Brosett .321 and Leake .364 in 11 at bats.

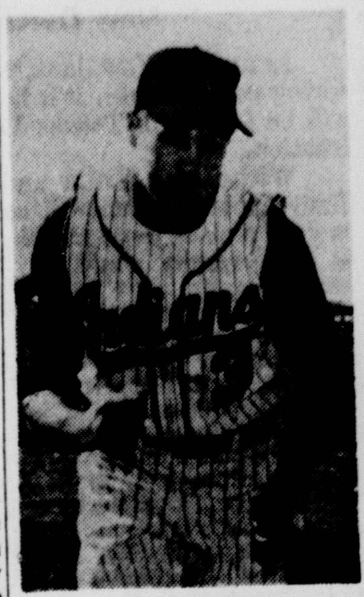


DAVID WORTHINGTON
. . . Shortstop

The returnees are headed by third baseman Charley Dykes, player, all - GSC and second second team NAIA all-America. The infielder hit .379, .396 in GSC play, and sparked the team to the pennant with his clutch power hitting.

There are six other all-conference players back — second baseman Joey McGinn and shortstop David Worthington, who made the 1964 team, outfielders Alton Thomas and John (Red) Hall, who made the 1963 team, catcher Eddie Kincaid, who made both honor clubs, and pitcher Bob Rachal, who made the 1962 team.

On the mound, lefthander Dean Bounds, Rachal, Darryl Barnes and Mike Tinnerello, another southpaw, return. Bounds, the team's leading pitcher at 5-2 and a 1.98 ERA and an all-America honorable mention choice, gives Luffey one excellent starting pitcher. Rachal gave last year's team some fine clutch relief work while Barnes and Tinnerello showed promise.



ALTON THOMAS

Tensas Tulips Plus Outdoors

With Sam Hanna

New Dutch Gardens

In another few days, when the robins go home and spring comes again, it'll be good fishing and the tulips will be in bloom. Tensas Parish will offer a double attraction.

With Lake Bruin and Yucatan and a few other likely spots, Tensas will be as good a place to go fishing as you would want anywhere.

But this spring Tensas will have more. It'll have thousands of tulips to dress up its delta countryside that's pretty to look at in its own right.

And Tensas now has the Dutch Gardens, built by E. R. McDonald Sr., a man who will never be satisfied.

Back during the deer season we visited Ed McDonald at Dutch Gardens as the carpenters sawed away in an effort to have the tourist attraction ready by spring.

It's ready now. All we we need is spring.

Located six miles out of Newellton on the Great River Road just off U. S. 65, Dutch Gardens is complete with Dutch windmills (scaled duplicates), wooden handrail bridges, and a Dutch Village with shops containing imported cheeses, candies, tobaccoes, wooden shoes and souvenirs reminescent of Holland.

And tulips of course.

Ed McDonald, the former chairman of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission and former president of the Tensas Parish Police Jury, got into the construction of Dutch Gardens after he got interested in tulips.

He believes that Tensas Parish, with all its natural resources, has something to offer for the visitor.

Ant to prove it, he built Dutch Gardens.

Now he expects the project to attract about 100,000 visitors during the course of a first year.

And as he put it, "They won't all stop in Newellton. They're going to spend money all over this district."

Ed McDonald has invested a lot of time and money in his film about tulips in Tensas and conducted an extensive program to promote Tensas, including billboards in five or six states.

All in advance of the grand opening of Dutch Gardens next Thursday. Perhaps by then some of the tulips will be blooming.

In addition, attention has been placed on Tensas history. Markers have been erected around the parish to bring out the past when Grant headquartered there before crossing the Mississippi at Hard Times Landing. That was when Norman Frisby was building his self - sustaining empire in the swamp, but its remains are too far back tourists.

For many years Tensas attracted a lot of visitors to hunt. It still does and will continue to do so, although the emphasis is shifting because of the conversion of swampland into farmland.

But Tensas still has a great supply of fresh water and in years to come fresh water will be like gold.

That's why Ed McDonald's project is an example of what other people in our area could do to combine the outdoors with enterprise to create more dollars for the economy.

Just think of the tourist business the Delta could attract if Tensas' neighbors joined in with projects of their own. That's pretty country along the Mississippi.

But if you don't like Dutch gardens, stick around awhile. Ed McDonald will do something else.

Outstanding Gun Show

If you like guns, then by all means drop by the annual gun show sponsored by the Louisiana Gun Collectors Association ending today in Monroe at the Virginia Hotel.

It'll be open this afternoon starting at 1 p.m., going until around five or six this evening.

They've got guns of all makes and sizes, and if you're in the buying mood, or the trading mood, perhaps you'll see something you like. It opened Saturday on the roof of the Virginia.

Gun collectors from out - of-state usually attend the show and we understand that several of them are on hand now. If you just want to look, you can do that too.

Admission is 50 cents for the two - day show, meaning that if you went Saturday you need not buy another admission price today.

Guns have always interested people who hunt, especially since the manufacturers are coming out annually with new models — all designed to be better than last year's model.

That's why it's interesting to look back on the weapons that were used years ago when people were hunting with success just as they are today.

Chairman Joe Herring

Joe L. Herring, the former Monroe district supervisor for the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, is the chairman of the 1965 National Wildlife Week, March 14 - 20th.

Joe is now chief of the commission's fish and game division, which is one of the key posts in the state's wildlife department operation.

And we can't think of a better man to be chairman of National Wildlife Week.

Joe Herring lives and breathes wildlife.

It goes without saying that it's an important task that Joe has assumed, because National Wildlife Week gives the conservationists an opportunity to impress on the public the importance of conservation.

The national observance was first proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt back in 1938. Each year it has served to focus on a particular problem in the outdoor field.

For instance, this year the theme is pollution abatement and the slogan is "Fight Dirty Water."

We can't think of a more timely theme than that, in view of the effort that's been made to clean up the Ouachita River right here at home.

If you want to help out with National Wildlife Week, you can pick up a kit with posters and information on the subject from the commission office in Monroe.

Little Man's Corner

It was too windy and cold for fishing and the little men had tough times making news afield.

This is that off - season time of the year for sportsmen. The hunting seasons are closed and the weather is not stable enough for fishing all the time.

But a few people are ignoring the weather and catching a few fish.

One of the nicest catches in a long time was made by young Randy Branch of Monroe. That was last Sunday. Randy caught a three-pound spec in Bayou DeSiard.

It was a pretty big white perch.

Out at Black Bayou, before the cold wave moved in Wednesday, H. L. Statham landed 12 specs and Jack Thompson of Swartz got 18. J. C. Zagone also landed 18 while James and Dick Antley got 21. James Cummings caught 18.

J. C. and his brother went back on Thursday, despite the wind and cold temperatures, and caught six good-size specs.

And, the fellow who was out on Black Bayou in the snow a couple of weeks ago diving for his watch was K. D. Creighton. He didn't locate the watch, but plans to go back with an expert diver later on.

From Ferriday, Bob and F. L. Morrison caught the limit of white perch and chinkapins in Lake St. John. That was a few days ago. Dewey Eady of Monroe got the limit of bream in Lake St. John.

And from West Monroe, O. L. White and E. B. Thomas caught the limit of white perch in the Blue Hole.

At Columbia, William T. Childers, secretary of the Caldwell Parish Wildlife Association, informs us that the Caldwell club is having a big fish fry at the Community Center in Columbia this coming Wednesday from 5 p.m. until 7 p.m.

Bill says there'll be plenty of fish for everybody and of course the club hopes to get some new members at the fish-fry. So if you're in the Columbia area Wednesday afternoon, drop by. It's a good cause.

The Ouachita Wildlife Unit, by the way, will have Nelson Cox, former director of the Arkansas Game & Fish Commission, as its guest speaker March 30th. Nelson makes a good talk.

Also, the Arkansas commission reports that the deer kill for the third hunting period (Dec. 31 - Jan. 2) was 1,410.

Bradley, 94-91

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Ernie Thompson and sub Lee Frederick steered Bradley to a 94-91 overtime basketball victory over St. Louis Saturday.

The triumph produced a second-place Missouri Valley Conference tie between Bradley and St. Louis, both headed for the National Invitational Tourney in New York.

UNJUST TREATMENT?

Many Olympians Are Victims Of Stiff Rules

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

"I am the best beer drinker in Australia," boasted Dawn Fraser.

"Swim suits are a nuisance — if I could swim nude, think I could break every record in the book," she added.

For these and other indiscretions — such as stealing a flag from the Imperial Palace in Tokyo and almost jumping into the palace moat — the world's fastest woman swimmer was handed a 10-year suspension last week by the Australian Swimming Union.

Cries of protest, some of them from such dignitaries as state governors in Australia, rippled waves all the way across the Pacific.

Dawn couldn't have got a stiffer penalty, they argued, if she'd robbed the bank of New South Wales or stuck a stiletto between the shoulder blades of her husband of a few weeks, bookie Gary Ware.

The penalty admittedly was pretty rare but hardly unique. Crackdowns on leading athletes have been both frequent and harsh since the modern Olympic Games were revived in 1896 for the purpose of creating good will among men and nations.

The good will often has been clouded by controversy. The athletes, the cream of their nation's manhood and womanhood, have been playful, sometimes indiscreet. Officials have been stuffy and unbending.

"Swimming a moat? Holy cow! I was bounced for something simpler than that — I was just drinking champagne." exclaimed beauteous Eleanor Holm when she heard of Miss Fraser's latest trials.

Eleanor was a similar victim in 1936.

Pretty, talented, the queen of America's mermaids heading for the Olympic Games in Berlin, she made the mistake of sipping some champagne on the boat crossing the Atlantic — and getting caught.

When the boat docked at the other end, Avery Brundage, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, had her booked for passage home. She was unceremoniously booted off the team.

She was 22 at the time, winner of the gold medal in the backstroke four years earlier and a favorite for her second. "I had $5,000 a week in contracts waiting for me if I won," Dawn said. "They were all canceled."

Because of the publicity of the case, however, new ones offering her $8,000 a week were offered.

One of the most tragic cases involved Jim Thorpe, a big, muscular Sac-Fox Indian who is regarded by many as the greatest all-around athlete who ever lived.

In the 1912 Games at Stockholm, this legendary figure won the five-sport pentathlon and the 10-sport decathlon, two of the most exhausting tests in the Olympics. He captured four event in each competition.

Later he was stripped of his medals and trophies because he had violated the strict Olympic code of amateurism by playing professional baseball while a student at the Carlisle School for Indians for $60 a month.

When an attempt was made to award the trophies to Thorpe's rivals, they were refused. "Thorpe won them fairly," the rivals insisted. "He is the greatest athlete in the world."

The Indian star went on to distinguish himself in football, baseball, basketball, lacrosse and finally wrestling.

For years some of the world's most influential personalities sought to have the Olympic medals return to him. The move failed. On March 28, 1953 at the age of 64 Thorpe died of a heart attack in Los Angeles, still without his medals.

Two immortal milers from the Scandinavian countries, Paavo Nurmi of Finland and Gunder Haegg of Sweden, also saw their brilliant careers cut short by suspensions on charges of professionalism.

Nurmi, the Flying Finn who won six olympic medals in 1920, 1924 and 1928 and at one time held 11 world records, got barred by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, April 3, 1932.

This action snuffed out Nurmi's hopes of winning the marathon in the 1932 Olympic Games at Los Angeles.

On March 18, 1947, Haegg, who set seven world records including 4:01.4 for the mile and 3:43 for the 1,500 meters, was given a life suspension for accepting too much money on tours of the United States in 1943 and 1945.

Set down with him was his fellow countryman, Arne Anderson, considered the world's second fastest miler.

One of the most celebrated cases in the United States involved Wes Santee, a University of Kansas miler whose war with the Amateur Athletic Union kicked up a storm in the middle 1950s.

A next-to-last finisher in a heat for the 5,000 in the 1952 Olympics at Helsinki, Sante developed into the United States' best miler and became the country's hope for the 1956 Games at Melbourne.

However, he was accused of padding his expense accounts and was suspended for life. Santee fought the ban in the courts. Injunctions and counter-injunctions. Santee lost.

The U.S. Olympic Committee has cracked down on numerous athletes but largely on minor offenses. At Tokyo last year, a wrestler was sent home for failing to report to the weigh-in.

"We try not to make too much of a fuss over these things," said Art Lentz, assistant director of the USOC.

The fabulous Miss Fraser, winner of gold medals in three Olympics and holder of every sprint record, apparently drew her stiff 10-year suspension because of failure to knuckle down to the officials' strict dictates.

They told her to wear a certain bathing suit. It didn't fit, so she wore another. They told her not to march in the opening ceremonies at Tokyo because she was to swim three days later. "I like to march and, besides, I though it was my duty, so I marched," Dawn said.

Miss Fraser, 27, has admitted for years that she didn't care for the Spartan training methods and strict discipline followed by most swimmers.

"I live bear," she said. "And I live thick steaks and ice cream. I enjoy parties and I dont' care about getting up early and swimming. That's why I've lasted as long as I have."

Besides the action against Miss Fraser, the Australian Swimming Union banned three other swimmers—Linda McGill for four years; Nan Duncan and Marlene Dayman for three.

Dawn acknowledged that after she had finished competition at Tokyo, she and some mates decided to swipe an Olympic flag at the Imperial Palace. She got the flag and headed out of the grounds on a policeman's bicycle.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

Redshirting Gives Athletes Better Chance For Degree

NEW YORK (AP) — Is "redshirt" a nasty word.

Is it fair to a college athlete to keep his nose to the academic grindstone so his grades will remain at the proper level and he'll get his degree at the end of the normal four years?

Or is it better for him to pursue a more leisurely course in the classrooms, skip one year of competition, and take an extra year to complete both the requirements for a degree and his three seasons of varsity competition?

Or, in view of developments, wouldn't it be smart to continue the practice but give it a new name — such as a five-year plan?

You can get all kinds of answers.

Redshirting in football is a practice almost as old as the rule limiting collegians to three years of varsity competition. Some coaches found it practical to hold back athletes one year to reach physical maturity and to reduce the risk of academic dropouts.

The players — usually sophomores — who were being held back often wore red jerseys when they scrimmaged against the regulars. Hence the name.

The word was added to the average fan's vocabulary this winter during a college vs. pro hassle about the premature signing of football players. The pros and the public were inclined to lump all fifth-year players as redshirts.

"Why should we pass up a good prospect because some college coach wants to stockpile a lot of players?" the pro clubs asked.

One official who acted for the National Collegiate A.A. in discussions with the major pro leagues commented: "Everyone said we shouldn't make an issue of signing redshirts. They said it wasn't a sound practice. It wasn't considered defensible."

But in some areas where redshirting is widely practiced it also is strongly defended. But there is considerable emphasis placed on a distinction between "true redshirts" and boys whose progress is delayed by injuries or financial or academic difficulties.

Jim Weaver, Atlantic Coast Conference commissioner, stressed the idea that players often redshirt themselves. He said the eight ACC colleges have about 40 football redshirts a year.

Frank Howard, Clemson football coach, brought out the same point and added:

"Many average students find it hard to graduate in eight semesters if they are at good schools. We want all our Clemson students to get their diplomas. I see two main reasons for redshirting — the boy needs more time to graduate or he is not ready to play."

In the Southeastern, Southwest and Pacific Athletic Conferences, redshirting is practiced on a broad scale. SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore agrees with coaches who feel that players have a much better chance of getting a degree if they have five years instead of four.

The NCAA five-year rule, which incidentally applies only to NCAA championships and to co-operating tournaments and football bowl games, says only that three years of eligibility can extend through five calendar years from the time the athlete first enters any college.

Only a few conferences have more stringent rules specifically designed to outlaw redshirting, among them the Big Ten, the Ivy League and the Southern Conference. Generally there are provisions for hardship exceptions.

The Big Ten rule, passed about seven years ago, limits the eligibility, period to four years after the first enrollment in college.

"Our basic approach was that the period of normal progression to a degree is four years and we wanted our rules to conform," said Commissioner Bill Reed.

The Ivy League rule specifies eight semesters of residence. If an athlete drops out of college for a semester for some good reason, that time isn't counted against his eligibility.

The Eastern College Athletic Conference, to which the Ivy colleges belong, follows the NCAA five-year rule. "Our rules don't prevent redshirting, but I don't know of any of our colleges that indulge in it," said Commissioner Asa Bushnell. "We think it is unfair to a boy to slow up his education."

Three major eastern football powers which formerly maintained redshirt squads — Penn State, Pittsburgh and Syracuse joined neighbor West Virginia of the Southern Conference a few years ago in a voluntary agreement to end the practice.

The Southern Conference is under some pressure to reconsider its anti-redshirt rule this year. Virginia Tech, for one, has high football ambitions and feels its teams are at a disadvantage when they play redshirt-loaded rivals from other conferences. There has been some talk of Tech dropping out of the SC but at present it has nowhere else to go.

The Big Ten rule created "some static" when it was first passed, according to Reed, because an estimated 30 per cent of all students take more than four years to finish college and some courses like engineering make five years mandatory.

Said Reed: "We define redshirting as 'voluntarily withholding from competition to extend eligibility' and we have hardship exceptions." Cases involving extreme family financial difficulty, injury that prevents competition and practice and sonscription into the armed forces are regarded as involuntary.

In the Southwest, there's a strong sentiment for distinguishing between redshirts, who are held back to gain experience or because there is a better player ahead of them, and the ones who missed a season for other causes. Of the estimated 100 fifth-year players in the Southwest Conference, only about 40 were deliberately held back.

Some of the hulabaloo over premature signings resulted from the decision of George Sauer, Texas end, to forego his fifth year in college and join the pros.

Duke Coach Bill Murray, who expects good performances next fall from a couple of redshirts, Chuck Drulis and Al Matuza, says he has eight other fifth-year men who would be eligible next season but have elected not to play.

The whole thing can be overdone, of course. There was the case a few years back of an athlete who ended his football eligibility, then decided to try for the track team in the spring. The college publicity department pointed out: "Although he's a senior in football, he is only a sophomore in track."

Davis, McIntosh Pace Vols Over Bengals, 83-60

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — With A. W. Davis hitting from the outside and Larry McIntosh from the inside, Tennessee romped to an 83-60 victory over Louisiana State Saturday night in a Southeastern Conference basketball game.

The triumph assured Tennessee of at least a tie for second place in the conference race. The Vols have an 11-4 league mark and 19-5 over-all with one game remaining.

Louisiana State made a real scrap of it for 32 minutes, but in the last eight minutes the Vols turned what had been a close contest into a romp. McIntosh, who charged in for frequent layups, was Tennessee's high scorer with 23 points. Davis got 22 and Ron Widby 17.

Dick Maile was a standout for the Tigers, scoring 24 points and playing a fine floor game. Brad Brian was the only other Tiger in double figures, getting 10 points.

The score was tied six times in the first half and Tennessee went to the intermission with a 34-33 lead. Soon after the half Davis and McIntosh began hittings and the Vols slowly pulled ahead to 54 - 49 with eight minutes left.

St. Joseph beat Monterey, 69-66, and Natchez trimmed Jena, 65-61, in the semifinal games.

Selected to the all-tournament team were Jim Crigler, Davidson; John Nix and Jack Bennett, Natchez; Dwayne Roark, Jena; and Jack Crain, Monterey.

FSU Wins 85-83

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Florida State barely withstood a second-half surge by Georgia and finished out its season with an 85-83 victory Saturday night.

Spring Training Briefs

Mantle To Be First

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Manager Johnny Keane of the New York Yankees said Saturday that for the first two weeks of the exhibition season Mickey Mantle would bat No. 1, followed by Roger Maris and Elston Howard.

By the time the regular season starts, Keane said he felt Tom Tresh would take over the lead-off spot.

Knocked Cold

CASA GRANDE, Ariz (AP)—There was a moment of anxiety in the San Francisco Giants' training camp Saturday when high-prices bonus rookie Ken Henderson, trying to make an impossible catch in the outfield, knocked himself out.

Come Along Slowly

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Slugging star Henry Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves apparently will have to bring himself along slowly this spring after missing 19 games last September because of an ankle injury.

Player Found

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — For weeks the New York Mets have been searching for Larry Elliott, a left-handed hitting outfielder who played with the club in 80 games last season but now is on the roster of the Buffalo team in the International League.

Elliott, who hit nine home runs and batted .282, was sought because of a shortage of left-handed batsmen on the Met squad.

Reds Have Drill

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds went through a three-hour drill Saturday that included their first infield work out.

Deron Johnson, who played first base last year, was at third base, and coaches Jim Turner and Reggie Otero said they were impressed with the way he scooped up ground balls.

Impressive Performers

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — First baseman Jim Gentile and pitcher Jim Dickson were among the most impressive performers Saturday in the Kansas City Athletics' curtailed spring training workout.

Manager Mel McGaha had planned to test the condition of his players in extensive sprinting, but the weather was cold and windy and he called off the project because of the danger of pulled muscles.

Gentile, recovering rapidly from a sprained ankle, hit several deep smashes to right field.

Steals Show

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Jimmie Hall stole the show with a long home run Saturday in the Minnesota Twins' first intra-squad play of the spring training season.

Cold and wind marred the workout in which a squad led by third baseman Frank Kostro won 8-6 over a unit headed by catcher Jerry Zimmerman.

Three-Run Homers

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Outfielder Doug Clemens and Harry Bright, 35-year-old first baseman, made his three-run homers Saturday as the Greys and Whites played a 5-5 deadlock in the Chicago Cubs' first intra-squad game, a 5½-inning match.

Edgerton Injured

Just a week ago, outfielder Dick Scheinblum severely sprained his ankle and second baseman Gordon Lund was hit with a pitched ball that broke his nose and cheekbone. Both will be out for at least another week.

Edgerton, who was pitching batting practice to Max Alvis, was struck with a line drive on the ring ringer of his pitching hand. Dr. Vic Ippolito, the club physician, called the injury a chip fracture of the first joint and expects Edgerton to be sidelined for at least three weeks.

Should Speak Out

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Red Schoendienst, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, believes his coaches should speak out instead of acting as yes men.

To make this clear, Schoendienst hung a motto on the wall of his office at the Cardinals' spring training field in St. Petersburg, Fla.

The motto reads: "No one of us knows as much as all of us." Schoendienst said this means he wants his coaches to feel free at all times to offer advice.

Making Impression

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Rookie right-hander Jim Lonborg, former Stanford star, is making a big impression on Red Sox Manager Bill Herman.

The 22-year old Californian had a 5-7 record last year at Seattle. But so far in spring training, he has been knocking the bats out of the hitters' hands.

"Most of the younger pitchers look good," said Herman Saturday, "but Lonberg looks exceptionally good. He's got a tailing fast ball that breaks in on a right-hand hitter and it's really something."

Practice Canceled

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Manager Gene Mauch of the Philadelphia Phillies called off Saturday's workout because of cold, damp and blustery weather.

Mauch took the action after first putting it off from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

"It's getting worse instead of better," he said as he dismissed the squad in Jack Russell Stadium.

Ten players stuck around to do some running around the field. They included pitcher Ray Culp and catcher Gus Triandos.

"We've been down here since Feb. 24 and we've only had one good day to train," said Mauch. He scheduled an intra-squad game for Sunday.

Astros Intrasquad

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Young Normal Miller was the hitting star Saturday in a Houston Astro spring training intra-squad game.

Miller, a 19-year-old infielder, hit a 380-foot home run and a single and knocked in three runs in leading a team coached by Jim Busby to an 8-3 victory over one coached by Jimmy Adair.

The game also had a standout in young pitcher Danny Coombs who pitched three innings, allowing only one bloop hit and fanned three despite a chilling wind.

Dodgers Intrasquad

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Speedsters Maury Wills and Willie Davis each scored on a double steal Saturday but it still wasn't enough to win the Los Angeles Dodgers' first intra-squad game of the spring training session.

An infield single by Wills and a walk to Willie Davis gave the Preston Gomezes runners on first and second base, lining up the first inning double steal. Wills scampered home on rookie catcher Tim Young's high throw to third base and Davis raced across the plate from first base on shortstop Tommy Dean's high relay.

Demons Release Baseball, Track Slates For Year

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — Northwestern's 1965 baseball squad will play seven non-league foes in addition to a full Gulf States Conference slate, according to a schedule released this week by Bert B. Boyd, athletic council chairman, and Athletic Director Jack Clayton.

Clyde Lee Stars As Vandy Beats Greenies, 85-62

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Vanderbilt's Southeastern Conference basketball champions rolled to an 85-62 victory over Tulane Saturday.

Clyde Lee led the scoring with 22 points as every Commodore in the line-up contributed to the total. Vanderbilt racked up its 14th league victory against a single loss.

The Commodores were in command of the situation from the middle of the first half. A driving layup by Wayne Taylor broke a 14-14 tie and the Commodores moved to their easy victory.

Ahead by 14 points after five minutes of the second half, Vandy went into a scoring slump and failed to produce a point for five minutes.

FORMER PLAYER

Red Schoendienst Has Problem Being Boss

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Red Schoendienst faces an age-old problem in his first year as manager in that he must be boss to men who knew him best as a player. He must draw the thin line between the role of "one of the boys" and the lonely post of command.

In Schoendienst's case, however, the problem is not too acute. From 1961 to 1963 he was a part-time player and coach. Last season he concentrated entirely on coaching the St. Louis Cardinals under Johnny Keane.

Keane resigned last fall the day after the Cardinals defeated the New York Yankees in the World Series, then switched to the Yankees. Schoendienst was named his successor as St. Louis manager.

"The big thing is handling men," said Schoendienst. "I think I know how. We will have a curfew, 12 o'clock down here, about the same as John. He was lenient and believed in giving the boys enough time during the season to eat and relax after a game. If a fellow wanted to have a beer it was all right but he was due back in his room two hours after the game.

"I'm not going to be running around town or looking out the hotel window trying to catch anybody. I never was fined for being out or breaking training rules and I don't believe others will break the rules.

"I'm not going to hide in bushes, climb trees or sit in the lobby. If I want to make a check, I'll get on the phone. I played for Fred Haney and he fined lots of players but nobody ever knew about a fine except Fred and the player."

"The players will understand me," Schoendienst continues. "I always was close to all the men I played with on the Cardinals, Giants and Braves.

"The boys are supposed to be in uniform at 10 o'clock every morning. If not, I will want to know why. There will be no golf and I advise against poker games even if the stakes are small."

From time to time, Schoendienst spoke of something that Haney had done when he was managing the Braves. Is he planning to pattern himself after Haney?

"No, I'm not going to pattern myself after anybody," he answered. "I was very much impressed by Haney, though."

"When people talk about a manager being tough, what do they mean? These players are pros, not high school kids. They know what is right. I don't believe in raising the roof in front of everybody. You call the player in and talk to him. That is what most of the managers I have played for have done.

"I'm not going to fine people. They are going to fine themselves if they don't follow the rules. They'll be hustling because they like what they did for themselves last year."

As far as strategy goes, Schoendienst plans no radical moves.

"Handling pitchers is the most important job of a manager, I am going to have Joe Becker, my pitching coach, sit on the bench with me. Bob Milliken will be the bullpen coach. Maybe, if one pitcher goes a little stale, I'll skip his turn and let somebody else pitch. Everybody gets in a slump, even Ty Cobb. Pitchers can get in slumps, too."

YMCA Basketball

YMCA shot past West Monroe Blue, 43-38, in a high school league game in YMCA basketball Saturday behind the 38 point performance of Freddie Poe. Jerry Davis netted 18 for West Monroe.

Ouachita trimmed West Monroe Gray, 38-34, with Bill Vallery, Roger Crawley and Jerry Garlington each hitting nine points. Buster Knox scored 11 for the losers.

The Lakers dropped the Hawks, 11-4, in a Green league contest. Lambert scored six for the winners while Bolton netted two for the losers.

The Broncs busted the Bandits, 12-10, as Loflin scored eight markers. Kilpatrick scored four to pace the losers.

In a White league fracas the Vikings ripped over the Royals, 20-8. McDougal and Blake each scored nine points for the Norsemen, while Holmes tallied four to lead the losing effort.

Jan Beaver scored eight points to pad the Colts to an 18-9 victory over the Lions in Blue league action. Bob Brown netted five for the Lions.

The Tigers clawed their way to a 12-4 victory over the Redskins with Robbie Marx dropping in eight points. Wally McMakin scored four to lead the Redskins.

Jack Vennable dropped in 10 markers to pace the Eagles to a 23-12 win over the Panthers. David Salley scored six points for the losers.

The Packers raced past the Bearson a 41-12 count in Red league action with Doug Brown scoring 12 points. Pat McCathony tallied five for the losers.

The Giants stomped the Cowboys, 28-5, behind the eight points of Mike Lary. Paul Gaskins tallied two for the losers.

ALIAS ERNIE BANKS

Chicago Politician Not To Run Again

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Ernie Banks, Chicago ward politician, chooses not to run again.

Ernie Banks, Chicago baseball player, will not be able to run much longer.

So, Ernie Banks has grappled with every ballplayer's problem — what to do when he retires — and reached a somewhat startling decision.

"I'd like to coach," he said Saturday, "but I don't want to manage."

Just a coach?

"That's right," he emphasized. "In managing, you're handling a whole body of men and you don't have the opportunity to handle players on an individual level. You can do that as a coach. It's a creative-type position, something like teaching."

The 34-year-old Cubs' first baseman, only player in National League history ever to win the Most Valuable Player award two consecutive years, said he had started forming his ideas when he threw his baseball cap in the political ring — and found it stepped on.

"In 1962 I ran for alderman in Chicago — that's like the city council — in a district with about 93,000 people," he explained. "I really didn't have anything big in mind like being a senator. I just thought I could serve the community. But I lost.

"People knew me only as a baseball player. They didn't think I qualified as a government official and no matter what I did I couldn't change my image. Besides, it's always hard for a new face to get in — there are so many pros you have to be helped.

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Rayville Couple

A candlelight ceremony solemnized Saturday, March 6 in Rayville Methodist Church, united in marriage Miss Mary Lynne Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Adams and Dewey W. Senn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey V. Senn, all of Rayville.

White cathedral candles lined the bridal aisle and formed a background setting on the altar for pedestal baskets of white gladioli and pompons.

Dr. H. R. Herrington performed the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. assisted by Rev. R. E. Walton. Traditional wedding music was presented by Miss Mary Jane Joyner, organist and Mrs. Jane Wroten, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of bridal satin featuring a cathedral train. The bodice of Chantilly lace was styled with long sleeves tapering to lily points over the hands and Chantilly lace formed side panels over the billowing skirt. Her cathedral length veil of Chantilly lace was worn mantilla style with a veil of illusion headpiece. She carried a white Bible belonging to her grandmother, crested with a bouquet of white butterfly roses and white orchids.

Candles were lighted preceding the ceremony by Bill Landrum and Todd Landrum, both of Rayville.

Attendants were Mrs. James Copeland Adams III, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, Miss Regena Senn, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Nancy McChristy, Stonington, Illinois, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaids and Miss Dawn Marie Adams, sister of the bride, as junior bridesmaid. They wore floor length gowns of rose peau de soie satin with jackets of matching Chantilly lace. Short rose net veils were attached to their bridal ring headdresses of rose peau de soie and long white gloves completed their costumes. They carried garlands of Sterling silver roses.

Don R. Senn served as best man for his brother and groomsmen were Robert L. Adams, brother of the bride and James "Red" Mayo, Rayville. Junior groomsmen was Joe Senn, brother of the groom and serving as ushers were James Copeland Adams III, brother-in-law of the bride and Kenneth Rayburn of Monroe.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Adams wore a gown of aqua lace over satin with matching hat and an orchid corsage. The groom's mother, Mrs. Senn, wore a blue silk linen dress with black patent accessories, an iridescent white hat and an orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Fellowship Hall of the church. Standards of greenery formed a background setting for the bride's table which was centered with a white Bisque epergne filled with pink roses and white gypsophila, flanked by matching candelabra. The tiered wedding cake was served by Miss Ann Robinson, Rayville and Miss Sue Wells, Logansport and presiding at the punch bowl was Miss Nancy Beasley. Miss Linda Payne was in charge of the bride's book at a table, which held a memory candle, based with pink roses.

For travel when the couple left on a short wedding trip the bride changed to a three piece ensemble of ice blue silk with white accessories and the orchid corsage from her bridal bouquet. They will be at home in Rayville.

The bride was graduated from Rayville high school, and attended Northwestern State College and Ouachita Valley Vocational School. Mr. Senn finished Rayville high school and was graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College.

Out-of-town guests were in attendance from Stonington, Illinois, Jackson, Mississippi, Winnsboro, Shreveport, Tallulah, Logansport and Monroe.

Colorful Shoes Part Of Total Femininity

Through the centuries, the use of color on a shoe has indicated the status of the wearer. In ancient Rome a senator's sandal was red, while patricians could wear only black. Later, the luxurious purple shoes carrying rich ornamentation became the hallmark of kings and emperors . . . and so the expression "born to the purple."

Spring and summer 1965 bring a feast of color, color that rockets across the fashion picture. Color as soft as a bouquet. Women of every age are offered a fling with colorful shoes, part of the committment to total femininity.

Fashion, says the National Shoes Institute, likes the staccato of black and white, experiments with pattern and texture for new excitements. White snake is stamped with tiny black flowers; giant black dots liven up white ponyskin; diminutive white checks regiment soft black kid.

The tenderest tones are the pinky blues, the dusty roses, the periwinkles and the shrinking violets. Bold blues are good too. So are the turquoises, the deepwater shades, the iced pales.

Fashion likes a rage of red this season and it likes the coolness of pale gray. Neutrals take in popcorn, platinum, safaris, white wines and hot sands, pale snuffs and mushrooms, the warm camels and curries.

There are succulent shades of tangerine, ripe peach, mango and persimmon; sun - brights on the wild side such as chrome yellow, coral and stinging green. There are lush greens, yellowed, whitened or deepened with blue.

1965 Is Year Of Tiger In Fashion Circles

1965 will be "the year of the tiger" in fashion circles. This daring, feline idea first began in the masculine world of gasoline, tires and other hard goods, then stealthily moved into the realm of cosmetics. And the new and fashionable tiger's - eye make-up, daring and striking, creates a natural foil for eyeglass frames.

The Fashion Eyewear Group of America, a newly - formed organization interested in helping Mr. and Mrs. America (and all the little Americans) look their very best in glasses, reveals the extent of the tiger influence in eyewear.

'Barely There' Look For New Shoe Fashions

The news this season in shoe fashions is "Low-Down and Barely-There". Women will be stepping out in low, sling-backed pumps, delicate T-straps and criss-cross sandal styles. Heels have sunk to their lowest heights in years.

Texture, too, plays leading role in shoe styles this season, with both gleaming smooth pale leather and richly-toned reptile effects sharing the spotlight. And, the textured look in stocking fashions is loosely woven and patterned by day, becoming delicately webbed or super-sheer by night.

"Famous Personalities," theme of the ball at Bayou DeSiard country club inspired a group of unusually ingenious costumes. A large crowd attended the annual Mardi Gras celebration in the club ballroom last Saturday evening. Master of ceremonies was BOB LEWIS, who was dressed as Uncle Sam. Bob announced the presentation of the court, with AMANDA COBB as queen; HENRY BIEDENHARN, JR., as king. Maids of honor were daughters of club members in their first year out of high school. The court assembled on the dias in the ballroom, which was designed to duplicate the portico of the White House.

Bob also announced winners for most original costumes. Chosen as best lady was BARBARA RIVERS, who was dressed as the Statue of Liberty. Man's winner was McVEA OLIVER as that most famous personality, Santa Claus. He wore the authentic red suit trimmed in white fur.

Dressed as a poodle dog, SALLY MARTIN was led on a leash by husband LESTAR ... BLANCHE OLIVER impersonated Mae West, FLORA POTTS, Grandma Moses .... PAUL TENNIS dressed as Castro ... EDMUND BROWN came to the party dressed as Frank Buck, with Bitza as the native he brought - back - alive .... The WILLIE McGOUGHS wore Spanish costumes, she a senorita, he a bullfighter.

Members of the committee which had decorated the club bar to resemble Pat O'Brien's in New Orleans dressed as a group of Irish colleens and waiters. □ □ □

Before the ball, ANN and CARLTON KEMP, NANCY and BUD WARDLAW entertained at open house at the Kemp residence. The Mardi Gras theme was highlighted with a black mask, outlined in sequins, which served as focal point of the floral arrangement. A silver candelabra epergne held a spring bouquet of iris, tulips, and stock in pastel shades. The buffet menu included shrimp remoulade, individual pizzas, smoked ham, and hot clam dip. About sixty guests were invited to call before the ball.

At this time of year, a number of our organizations are planning annual outgoings. This coming Saturday, March 13, is the date for the JUNIOR CHARITY LEAGUE's Homecoming luncheon. This is the time for installation of new officers, presentation of the new provisional class, retirement of these who have served faithfully at the League's many civic projects.

Sustaining members are invited to attend the luncheon, which is set for 12:30 Saturday at the Paragon. BARBARA McWILLIAMS and JOAN CALDWELL are luncheon chairman.

A style show entitled "Through the Looking Glass", with clothes furnished by the Palace, is being planned by BARBARA RIVERS and CAROL TENNIS.

Preceeding the luncheon, the traditional sherry party for past presidents of the League is to be held at the home of NODIE THATCHER. Co-hostesses with Nodie will be SARAH RHYMES and LOIS BERNSTEIN. This party is set for eleven a.m.

MONROE GARDEN CLUB meets tomorrow at Bayou DeSiard country club at 2 p.m. GEORGE WILKES, JR., landscape architect of Shreveport, will speak to the group on patio planning and fountains. At this time, also, members are to make reservations for the April tour of the club.

Planned for April 12, the trip by bus to Jackson, Mississippi, is to include a visit to Mynelle Gardens with a catered luncheon to be served at the home there. MILDRED HEARD and WANDA HINKLE are chairmen of arrangements. Busses will leave Bayou DeSiard country club at 7:30 a.m. on April 12, are to be back by 7 p.m.

And speaking of bus trips, members of Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society, Children of the American Revolution, are planning one to Lafayette this coming weekend. Approximately thirty members of the local society and their chaperones have chartered a bus to travel to the annual state conference at the Evangeline hotel, Lafayette. The meeting opens with dinner Friday evening, concludes after lunch on Saturday.

With all the illness that's been going around, and all the children home from school, we were reminded of Robert Louis Stevenson's poem, "The Land of Counterpane":

When I was sick and lay abed,
I had two pillows at my head,
And all my toys beside me lay
To keep me happy all the day.
And sometimes for an hour or so
I watched my leaden soldiers go,
With different uniforms and drills,
Among the bedclothes, through the hills;
And sometimes sent my ships in fleets
All up and down among the sheets;
Or brought my trees and houses
out,
And planted cities all about.
I was the giant great and still
That sits upon the pillow-hill,
And sees before him, dale and plain,
The pleasant Land of Counterpane.

Period Bedroom Effect Created By Accessories

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: Please help me to achieve a period bedroom with furniture in a Chippendale style. Walls are pink. Could I use an antique white heirloom spread? What color for curtains? I prefer cafe type. Also, what shall I use to re-cover a chair and a vanity bench and what for a throw rug?

A: An antique white bedspread is quite appropriate. Select a pink ground floral print (18th Century pattern) with white and fresh greens predominant for both the cafe curtains and the chair cover. Dust ruffle and vanity bench can be in a narrow pink, green and white stripe and rug can be green.

Q: I have an L-shaped living room. What color for walls, carpet and draperies? Upholstered pieces are black, a chair is beige and another is tangerine.

A: Paint walls beige and have a deeper beige for the carpet. If room is very modern, draperies can be solid beige too and concentrate on interesting color in accessories, toss pillows and art objects. Or, draperies can be in a beige ground print with white, tangerine, yellow and a touch of black.

Q: We are planning to redecorate our living room. It needs something to brighten it for room faces north and gets no sunlight at all. Sectional sofa is a charcoal gray, and rug is a pearl gray. What color for walls, a chair and draperies?

A: A pastel lemon yellow for both walls and draperies would help considerable to brighten the room. The chair could be in a pale gray ground print with pale and bright lemon yellow and lime. Cushions on sofa could be in the print, too, along with some in solid yellow.

MRS. GUS C. PARKER

Methodist Church Scene Of Parker-Bennett Vows

The wedding of Miss Bonita Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Bennett of Ferriday and Gus C. Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Parker of Jackson, La., was solemnized Saturday, February 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Sevier Memorial Methodist Church in Ferriday.

Rev. Jerry Means officiated at the double ring ceremony before the altar, decorated with pink roses and greenery. Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Diane C. Brakenridge, organist and Mrs. Carol Sanders, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a short gown of white satin peau de soie, styled with long tapered sleeves, and scalloped V neckline. Her veil of illusion was held in place by a crown of pearls and crystal tear drops. She carried a bouquet of pink roses in a cascade design.

Mrs. Joye Faye Synco of Crossett, Ark., was matron of honor. She wore a short gown of American beauty embossed peau de soie with matching slippers, complemented by a light pink rose hat with circular veil and pink gloves. She carried a bouquet of roses in shades of red to light pink.

Paul Beach of Ferriday attended the bridegroom as best man and ushers were Melvin Crawford and Elvin Crawford, both of Rayville.

Mrs. Bennett wore a blue mohair suit with hat to match and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink sweetheart roses.

A reception followed in fellowship hall of the church. Pink roses formed the central decor for the bride's table, covered with white net over a pink cloth. Pink candles in silver candelabra completed the setting.

Miss Jean Crum presided at the guest book. Miss Patsy Coughron presided at the bowl of pink punch and Miss Jan Paul served the tiered wedding cake. Groom's cake was served by Miss Joan Pecony.

For travel the bride wore a suit of ivory wool with brown fur trim, ivory gloves and brown alligator accessories. Her corsage was of pink sweetheart roses.

Fashion Loves Pale Colors

Pale colors, soft textures and slim styling will heighten the femininity of fashion this Spring-Summer season.

Leading designers have shaped styles to accent female grace by highlighting the narrow silhouette, cutting dresses on the bias and lengthening jacket hem lines to wrist level.

As always, the season's colors are awaited breathlessly. Almost chalk-like shades will predominate and white will prevail again.

Gray is expected to make a splash and from Paris will come peach and watery green.

'Separate' Dress Has Importance

Dresses go out on their own this spring, and they're getting along great. The dress-jacket or dress-coat costume, in recent seasons almost the only news in the "dressy dress" picture, is getting strong competition now from the "separate" dress, styled to wear under a "separate" coat or coatless, in warmer weather.

The two-piece dress is an important factor in this spring success story. It can look like a suit, a one-piece dress, or exactly what it is — two parts, often with an elongated top or even a tunic or jumper above a simple dress.

The dress costume continues strong, as a contender with the individual dresses. Coat and dress duo looks especially important; dress and jacket are very much a part of spring.

In separate dresses or costumes pleated skirts, bias cuts and soft shaping compose the silhouette news.

Waistlines slide from the high empire line to the low hipline, with many resting in between.

But that's only the beginning. The biggest excitement of the season is in skirts. They're alive, they're fun and they fit into the modern woman's active live. Ranging from the now-classic A-line to the flared and pleated stylings, the feminine look rules supreme.

Bodices take to soft blousing, or follow the slim long line. Collars are set-away, high, cowled, Chelsea-pointed, notched — or absent altogether. Scarves, bows and ruffles lend the feminine touch to many necklines.

Among the important styles are the double-breasted coat-dress and the tunic dress. Shift and skimmer dresses abound and apparently have entered the realm of the classics, along with the shirtwaist and the princess dress.

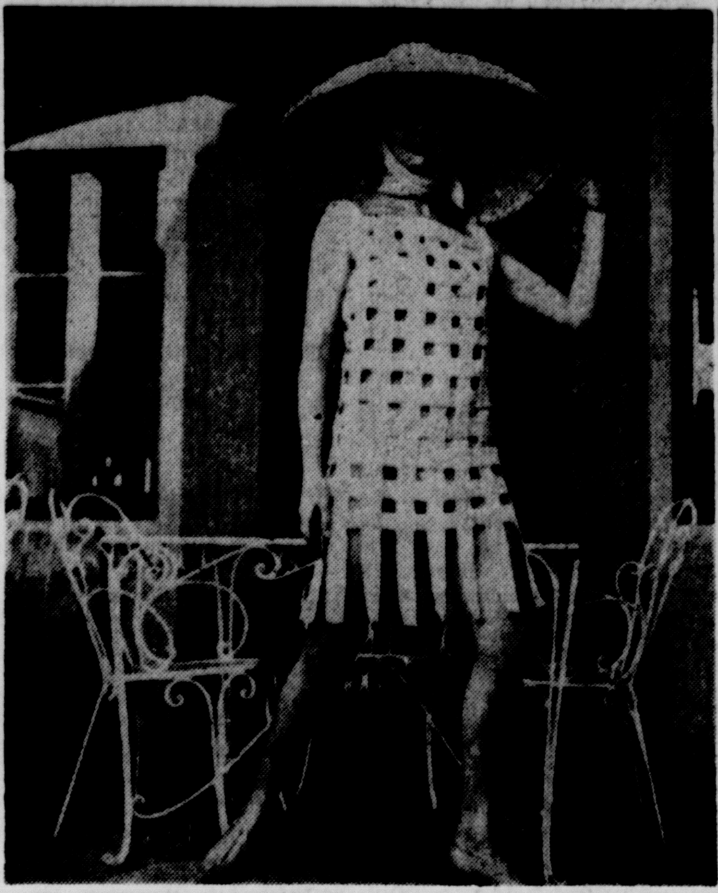
Fashion Air Gets Whiff Of Scotch

A whiff of Scotch may be in the air for fashion. Here and there the tam o'shanter has been seen, a clan plaid skirt or two, and lots of wide, fringed stoles.

Now David Kidd, top designer, is blowing the bagpipes loud and clear for spring. His collection features trews, those skinny Scottish regimental pants that look right in step with Paris. He tops them with stoles and tams. Short skirts mean kilts to him, pleated but in regular suiting fabrics.



AN ORIGINAL BIKINI cover-costume formed by pink and yellow terry cloth stripes interlaced as a blind is a creation of the Lucrezia fashion house of Florence. It is topped with a hat of Florence straw tied around the face with a pink scarf. The creation was presented at the Florence show of Italian spring and summer fashions. (AP Wirephoto)

Clair McClain Is Bride Of Clarence Norman Jr.

Trinity Episcopal Church in Pine Bluff, Ark., was the setting Saturday, February 27 at 5 p.m. for the wedding of Miss Clair Elise McClain and Clarence Norman Jr. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Tovey-McClain of Pine Bluff and William C. McClain of Los Angeles, Calif. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William C. Norman Sr., of Crossett.

The Rev. T. P. Devlin officiated at the ceremony which was performed before the white marble altar, decorated with white hangings and arrangements of white iris and stock in brass urns. On either side stood magnolia tree candelabra with lighted tapers. Burning tapers and magnolia foliage were placed in the recessed windows of the church.

Music was presented by Edgar Ammons, organist. Acolytes were W. A. Kientz Jr. and W. H. Kennedy III.

Wearing a floor length gown of French mousseline desoie, the bride was given in marriage by her brother, William Craig McClain Jr. The wide neckline of the fitted bodice was outlined by pearl embroidered appliques of satin petals. Satin appliques and Schiffli embroidery were scattered over the swirling skirt which swept to a chapel train. Her long tiered veil of imported illusion fell from a caplet of pearls. She wore long white kid gloves and carried a bouquet of white hyacinths and orchids attached to a white prayer book.

Mrs. John Murray of Fort Eustis, Virginia, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Kay Willis, Miss Ellen McClain and Miss Beckye Hill, all of Pine Bluff. They wore identical floor length gowns styled with empire waists of willow green velvet, featuring rounded necklines and elbow sleeves. Folds of matching satin with a back bow accented the semi - sheath skirts of ivory crepe de peau. Their headpieces were of matching green velvet with green nose veils and they carried bouquets of miniature ivy cascading to the hem of the dresses. Miss Ellen Nichols was junior bridesmaid and Miss Marie Nichol was flower girl.

Mr. Norman served as his son's best man. Groomsmen were James Spellings of Dallas, Texas; John Outcalt of Cleveland, Ohio; Lucien C. Gwin of Natchez, Miss., and Talbot Benton of Pine Bluff. Serving as ushers were John H. Means III, Rufus A. Martin Jr., Stanley Cook Jr., and Howard Wichern, all of Pine Bluff. Currin Nichols Jr. was a junior usher.

A reception in the Parish Hall of the church followed the ceremony. The serving table was centered with tall arrangements of white blossoms in the bridal motif accented with string smilax. Standards of magnolia provided a backgrounds setting. For the occasion, Mrs. McClain, mother of the bride, wore a gown of ice blue peau de soie with matching hat of tulle petals. Mrs. Norman, mother of the bridegroom, wore a mist rose sheath with cutwork trim and matching accessories. Both wore white orchid corsages.

Assisting with reception courtesies were Misses Linda Sue Sheffield and Mary Zack of Little Rock; Mrs. Harold Mosenthin of North Little Rock; Mrs. Rufus A. Martin Jr., Mrs. F. M. Bellingrath, Mrs. T. Walker Lewis Jr., Mrs. C. N. Nichol Jr., Mrs. W. P. McGeorge Jr., all of Pine Bluff.

Miss Kate Terrell and Miss Ann Bartlett presided at the bride's book.

Following a Southern wedding trip the couple will be at home at 1810 Linden Street, Pine Bluff., where Mr. Norman is assistant vice - president of the National Bank of Commerce.

Fair Lady Look Is 'Demisole'

A new undergarment for girls of grammar school age is a camisole-type pullover called "the demisole".

Young mademoiselles will like the rib-cage covering top and matching panty. It is being shown in boucle - knit cotton trimmed with braid to make this undercover story a bright one.

Nautical Theme Continues Big

Chanel's nautical theme is almost as strong as it was last season, with the grade school set. Washable white sharkskin is most important here. A blazer jacket with brass buttons may become a "can't do without"! Middies come forward in

Three Piece Suits Seen For Summer

Summer comes in with a more ladylike look this year. No more "casual" shifts that often end up looking merely sloppy. Summer will mean a three - piece suit.

Of course, the suit is thoroughly cooled by its fabric and by the pleated and otherwise swingy skirts. There's nothing cool about a straight skirt. It fits too closely and it needs, more often than not, a foundation beneath. One can get away with less beneath a fuller skirt!

Jackets will not be long in summer suits, and are often shaped to be worn open. Thus the costume is tops, with its shell blouse the third piece, sleeveless for those warmest days.

Fabrics look crisp and tailored, turn out light and cool to the touch. Textured cottons, fibranne, linen and cotton blends, piques, rayon blends, printed silks, even silk crepes, make the soft summer suits.

Make-Up Hints Given Women Speech-Makers

Women who are called to speake before audiences should present their most flattering appearance.

Whether you stand before a large assembly or before a few club members, you will feel more at ease and project a lovelier image if you follow a few simple make-up techniques, suggested by beauty authorities.

A smooth, even-toned, matte finish complexion will give you a youthful beauty and keep unflattering highlights and shadows from playing across your face. If you have dark circles under your eyes, camouflage them before the make-up application. Define your features so they will project and not get lost in the distance.

Eye-liner, mascara, eye shadow stick and eyebrow pencil should be applied as though you were making up for a gala evening.

Tips Benefit Patrons Of Beauty Salons

Only 60 percent of the 25,000,000 patrons visiting beauty salons this spring will be satisfied. Failure among the other 40 percent will be due to poor communication between patron and stylist.

To improve your chances of success a professional beauticians guild offers these suggestions:

Do — be specific as possible in telling your hairdresser exactly what kind of style you want.

Do — tell her why you want to change. Example: Party, ball, job, time-factor.

Don't — expect the stylist to make you appear exactly like the photo you bring. You are an individual . . . and it's best to adapt a flattering hair-do to your own best features.

Do — tell the hairdresser how much time you plan to spend in taking care of your hairdo.

Do — allow enough time for one lengthy visit which may include a permanent and re-styling.

Tint: to color hair permanently; to penetrate with color.

Drab: to tone down "brassy" colors, especially reds or golds, that may appear as a result of bleaching.

"Miracles" are being performed every day in beauty salons — but the Guild suggests you be prepared to help them along.

Miro Book Club To Make Favors For Convention

A great leader in the International Women's suffrage alliance, Mrs. Catt lived to see the 19th amendment franchising women written into the constitution of the United States. Born in 1859, she devoted 33 years of her life to the work and built up an organization of two million women. She died in 1944 at the age of 86.

Handbags Take Fashion Cue

Handbags have taken a cue from the new feminine fashions and are favoring soft, mellow leathers, suedes and reptiles in newer smaller shapes. Many bags feature fine little dressmaker pleats and tucks, and are reminiscent of the twenties.

Shoulder bags continue in popularity, while others are dangled on short straps or chains. Often bags have both, for versatility and double duty.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM EDWARD KIRKLAND

Kirkland-Ball Nuptials Solemnized In Tallulah

Tallulah Methodist church was the setting for the wedding of Miss Rita Ball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe C. Ball of Tallulah, to William Edward Kirkland, son of Frank Kirkland and Mrs. Lucy Mae Kirkland of Shreveport. The Rev. Clark W. Bell performed the double ring ceremony Sunday, February 21.

Wedding music was presented by Mrs. E. M. Midyett, organist and Miss Pat Wright of Many, soloist.

White pedestal baskets of white gladioli and greenery flanked the communion rail which was garlanded with magnolia leaves and Spanish moss. An arrangement of white carnations and fern and white cathedral candles decorated the chancel.

Escorted by her father who gave her in marriage, the bride wore a floor length gown of white satin fashioned with round neckline, elbow sleeves and full skirt that terminated in a chapel train. The bodice was topped with a short jacket of Chantilly lace. Her fingertip veil fell from a pearl encrusted crown and she carried a shower bouquet of pink rosebuds.

Miss Elizabeth Ball, maid of honor and bridesmaids, Misses Sara and Mary Jo Ball, sisters of the bride and Miss Mary Frances Russell, wore identical gowns of pale blue peau de soie with matching veiled headdresses. Their flowers were single long stemmed pink roses.

Leroy Kirkland served as best man for his brother and groomsmen were Lane Wilson, Jerry Rigdon and Terry Russell. Serving as ushers were Ronald and Donald Everett.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Fellowship hall of the church, which was decorated throughout with white flowers and greenery. At the entrance Cora and Rhonda Ball distributed rice bags tied in blue net. Miss Jean Rosser registered guests at a table, which displayed a memory candle.

Pink and white candles centered the refreshment table with the tiered wedding cake and crystal punch service at opposite ends. Mrs. E. M. Midyett served the cake and Miss Betty Speed presided at the punch bowl.

When the couple left for their home in Shreveport Mrs. Kirkland was wearing a white wool suit with fur collar, matching accessories and a corsage of white blossoms. The bride is a graduate of Tallulah high school and attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. Mr. Kirkland was graduated from Fair Park high school and has completed military service with overseas duty in Germany. He is presently employed in Shreveport where the couple will reside.

Snood Makes Comeback With Summer Hats

At Donald Brooks' summer opening, the newest looking summer hat was the snood. Made something like a shower cap, it was done in white organdie net, somewhat thick and widely spaced, with colorful flowers at the front, and it was worn back of the head.

It looks more like a cage than a snood, and the cage look, sometimes worn under a wide-brimmed straw hat, is the summer look to watch. First of all, it neatly tucks that summer problem, hair, away without entirely concealing it. Secondly, it's air cooled.

There's lots of variety already being shown in snood hats. Some are draped and tied at the nape of the neck. Some have little bows scattered over them or are bouncy with fluttering petals.

BAKED ALASKA

Ever use those individual "indented" sponge cakes as the base for Baked Alaska?

MRS. CHARLES PRYOR HEARD, before her marriage on February 26 in Hamburg, Arkansas was Miss Judy Frances Varnado, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Varnado, 411 Beasley, Lakeshore. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Finn Heard, Elizabeth St., Monroe. Miss Linda Rester and Michael Halley served as attendants for the wedding. After a wedding trip to South Louisiana this weekend the couple will be at home in Monroe.

TILE PATIO

A steamy bathroom can be made comfortably cool if you make a door opening through an exterior wall and add an outdoor patio. If it's properly shielded by a fence or shrubbery, the terrace can be used for sunbathing and even for drying hosiery and lingerie. Of course the patio should be surfaced with a material such a quarry tile that is waterproof, impervious to temperature changes and is easy to keep clean.

Textured Hose Steps Out With New Excitement

Possbily the biggest news in wearing apparel since the fig leaf, textured stockings are stepping out for spring with even more importance — and more fashion excitement.

In keeping with the mood of the season, new textures are sheerer than ever, lacier and more delicately patterned.

Diamonds, a favorite pattern during the fall and winter season, appear in spring's textured hosiery, but the designs are fresh, new and daintier. One stocking design is in a tweedy texture, and displays a random stripe with a lacy diamond pattern.

Other spring - fresh designs feature leafy ferns, pin dots or soft shapes reminiscent of sea shells. Honeycomb pattern for still another textured stocking design has the added touch of gentle glitter for a sunny spring.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by Mr. and Mrs. John Turner Beckworth, 301 Sheridan Ave., Monroe, of the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Becky Jayne to James Dalton Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore of Pioneer. The wedding will take place March 20 in College Place Baptist Church at 7 p.m. with Rev. T. Earl Ogg officiating. Following their marriage the couple will reside in Vicksburg, Miss., where Mr. Moore is employed.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Men Encounter Lonely Women In Any Job

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband goes to school during the day and drives a cab at night. He is very ambitious and I'm proud of him. We don't have many evenings out because he can't spare the time and we must save every penny. But I'm not complaining about that. I'm wondering if I should insist that he find another job.

My husband says almost every night he is propositioned by a woman passenger. Most of them are half stiff and lonesome. He also gets women who want to pick up men off the street.

Last night when he came for me at my sister's house I found a pair of nylon stockings in the back seat. This is why I'm writing. I trust my husband but how long will he be able to resist temptation? Should I make him quit? — ALICE

Dear Alice: No. Your husband is the one who must decide what kind of work he wants to do. You should help him by demonstrating confidence in his judgment. Your husband would meet lonely women no matter what he did for a living, simply because the world is full of them.

As for the nylons, they probably had runs, which is why they were removed. (Not lady-like, perhaps, but it happens every day.) Any cab driver will tell you this is one of the less shocking aspects of driving a hack.

Dear Ann Landers: My son is a paper boy. He gets up at 4:30 every morning so he can start his route. His route is completed by 6:15.

If this sound difficult let me assure you it is easy compared with another part of the job — collecting the money.

The boy has to start his collecting on Thursday to get the money to the office by Saturday. Often he is still trying to collect on Monday. Some people ask him to come back three or four times for as little as a quarter.

Millions of people read your column, Ann. Will you please print this letter as a service to thousands of good kids who work awfully hard to make a few dollars? Thank you very much. — AN OBSERVER

Dear Observer: Every week I receive a handful of letters expressing this kind of complaint. I have printed several letters on the subject and I will continue to print them (hopefully). C'mon folks, be fair. Have the money ready — on time. .

Dear Ann Landers: Here is the situation and we need your advice: My wife had a serious operation and is recuperating nicely. The doctor suggested she spend a couple of weeks in a warm climate. She wants to go to California to visit her sister but she insists that I take my vacation and go with her.

Our three children are 17, 15 and 13. The two older ones are girls — and very fine girls, I might add. The 13 - year - old is a boy who respects and obeys his older sisters.

Should we leave the children alone? They say yes, and they're opposed to having a hired woman stay with them. My wife feels they are trustworthy and dependable and that they don't need watching. The woman next door has offered to look in on them every day. I'm not sure that leaving them alone is the wise thing to do.

What are your thoughts, Ann Landers? — PAPPY

Dear Pappy: You wouldn't leave your jewelry or your furs unattended for two weeks, would you? Aren't your children far more precious?

Get an adult to stay with them. This doesn't mean you do not trust your children. It simply means you are taking no chances.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the boobytraps of teen - age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen - age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Velvet, Beading Add Glamor To Bath Towels

If the new "ready made" velvet and lace-trimmed bath towels and sheets are beyond your reach, why not just borrow the idea? The plainest terries and most prosaic percale can be glamorized at home by adding a few yards of nylon velvet, beading, and lace edging.

While these trimmings are as washable as the fabrics, you may prefer to make them detachable for laundering separately by hand. Just sew them on with long running stitches that are easy to rip and replace, but firm enough to hold during use.

Elegance Is Personal Quality To Be Acquired

By JUNE WILSON
Women's News Service

Perhaps you aren't young or even beautiful anymore. Maybe you, as most of us, are just a girl with a job.

As each year seems to melt into the next with maddening speed you face the fact that you will never be Miss America. Indeed, you may never even be Miss Stenographic Pool!

There is still a most coveted quality which can be yours. It has little to do with beauty, less to do with youth, and wealth, more often than not, is a stumbling block to acquiring it.

It is elegance.

Elegance is not something that pervades only the drawing room in an English manor house or stately Italian villa. It isn't a fringe benefit that comes with an expensive collection of glad rags, or a chest of jewels. It is simpler, and more complicated, this elegance.

Elegance consists of four qualities: refinement, style, imagination, grooming.

Refinement is the fact of being gentle on the inside, gentle on the outside—and practicing it both places.

Style is the way a woman clothes herself, not the garments nor the gewgaws she wears. Imagination is wit and humor, intelligence and an open, questing mind.

To be imaginative is to be flexible, to consider new or different ways of doing many things, whether an attitude of the mind or the height of a heel on a shoe.

An imaginative woman experiments in every area of her life; she compares the new and old, and keeps the best of both.

Grooming is automatic with an elegant woman for it is simply personal housekeeping.

The basic quality that is the foundation for these four components is simplicity. It is not easy to build elegance, for simplicity is an acquired taste distilled from an assurance of personal worth and a sense of values unimpressed by glory or show or glitter.

Elegance can begin, and you can begin it, by imitating someone you admire. Finally it will become a purely personal quality, unique with you.

Thus, while beauty blooms and fades, youth glows and pales and wealth remains what wealth is —a counting house—only elegance continues to enhance itself. It is a quality of being alive and aware and because it is, it communicates itself to others so that they become more alive and aware.

Fabrics Display Womanly Ways With Pretty Face

To create that special womanly gentleness so appealing this spring, the fabric pendulum springs from the crisp to the bubbly, from the smooth to the airy.

For a coat and suit spring, the trend is to flattened "faces" for woolens and blends. Many masculine fabrics, associated with men's wear styling, are feminized, to show classical beauty in a ladylike way.

Worsteds, herringbones, diagonals, pin stripes, checks and homespun share in the trend to the smooth and flat. Their appeal to the eye comes from elegant construction and attractive coloring.

Where surface interest does occur, the fabrics still harken to the trend to flatter finishes. Mohair blends, tweeds, bubbly silks and silk-likes take on a softer, smoother air.

Bouncy boucles, twills, linens and linen looks so crisp, with surfaces barely textured. Hand in hand with crispness is supplemess, for a feeling of ease and femininity.

All-out feminine are fabrics that float in light as a feather, from silks to dainty new cottons, such as cotton georgette, dotted swiss, eyelet and pique. Crepes, in virtually every natural or man-made fiber, drape and shape gracefully to ripple through spring.

After concentrating for years on "wrinkle-free" fabrics, designers this spring have put in permanent "wrinkles." Crinkles and puckers give fabrics an effervescent, young look.

An increase in bonded, or laminated, fabrics is noted, in a range of types from double-knits to openwork sheers.

Use of stretch fabrics, although strongest in sportswear, now extends to more and more dress-up spring fashions.

Men Break Out Of Dull Shell, Dare Add Dash

By MAGGIE SAVOY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Next? Girls will form Men-Watchers clubs.

They look taller, handsomer, more James Bondier — in their rugged astrakans, dashing boots, mink-lined trench coats, slim-trim suits, colorful sport coats.

This hasn't happened overnight. Men change fashions with the pace of snails. But men are breaking out of their dull drab shells of conformity and daring to care how they look.

Coming to their defense is Betty Gardner, young double-rarity, a woman advertising agency president (Edward M. Meyers, Associates, Inc.) in the men's wear field.

"Men would look even handsomer if they'd keep their wives home when they buy suits. Eight out of 10 take their wives along. They're crazy to do it," she says.

Most men, she believes, are unsure of their own taste. They're impatient shoppers anyway; their minds are on other things.

"Businessmen are timid, afraid to be different. They equate conservatism in business with conformity in dress—Their status symbol."

But there has been progress. It was once only the millionaire, the show biz star, the beatnik, who could afford to look different. Retailers — conservative businessmen themselves—stocked only the staples, the three-button suit. They "bought safe," risked little hard cash on what the trade calls "fancies," a plaid on the bold side, a check a bit dashing.

The average man spent his money dressing the wife and kids, bought himself ¾th of a suit a year, wore it for Sunday-go-to-meeting until it was shiny, then to business until it frayed.

Today, with more leisure and money, they've found excitement breaking out of their rut. They've dared bright sport coats, colorful slacks, madras shirts for golf and barbecues.

Today's heros have made their mark, too: James Bond and Rex Harrison are none the less manly for all their dash; John F. Kennedy no less compelling because he was well-dressed.

Even the conservative man has a choice of 18 different models today, the 3, 2 or 1-button suit, variously shaped coats and lapels.

Because of the fear of being away from the too-far-out.

Many a fashion pops up and dies because off-beats grabbed it. Suede shoes, stove-pipe continentals, came in, went out fast.

Furs: the astrakan (take a bald man, put a fur hat on him and he's Instant James Bond); furlined coats (Cary Grant prefers mink).

Shoes: slip-on shoe is now in the ballroom and office; evening wear will be more dressy.

Colors: even business shirts will show color. So will suits—no screaming oranges, but off-beat browns and tawnys, burgundys and greens.

Jewels and cosmetics: once a man owned one pair of onyx cuff links, period. Now he has jewel boxes full. Men smell better too. Scent, once considered feminine, comes in a whole range of men's colognes, deodorants, soaps, refreshers.

Spring Trends To Look For

. . .fitted silhouettes, in A-line, princess shapes with no belts or half-belts from sides to backs, many with panel seams.

. . .side closings, on suits, coats and dresses, making coat dresses new, sometimes double-breasted on jackets, or concealed.

. . .the spring colors, many pinks and the new mauves, bright turquoise, yellows and grass greens, the gayest of prints.

. . .hemline interest, in pleated flounces, ruffled flounces, feather and jewel edgings, very short hems and longer ones.

. . .the new look for late day, in skirts at calf-length, generally in white crepe or tinted chiffon, with flirty hems.

. . .the controversy over daytime skirts, whether to be above the knee or a little below, the choice left to women themselves.

. . .the basics of a spring wardrobe: the high-fashion suit, the more conservative coat costume, the several pretty dresses.

MISS ABBY L. KEENAN

Judy Mitcham Becomes Bride Of Clyde Parish

An arch of antique gilt candelabra holding cathedral tapers flanked by palms and baskets of white gladioli and fern formed a setting in the Methodist Church of Bernice for the wedding of Miss Judy Towana Mitcham and Clyde Edwin Parish, on Friday, February 26 at 8 p.m. The bridal aisle was lined with burning candles in hurricane lamps, attached to the pew caps.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Mitcham of Bernice and Mr. Parish is the son of Mrs. Zell Parish of Homer.

Rev. Floyd M. Durham, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony. Traditional wedding music was provided by Mrs. F. M. Walsworth, organist and Miss Judith Goss, vocalist.

The bride was escorted by her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a short white wool ensemble, blouson style featuring a high round neckline and three-quarter sleeves. Her white pillbox hat was topped with white organza petals and short veil. White alabaster shoes and white French kid gloves completed her ensemble and she carried a crescent bouquet of white rosebuds centered with pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. James Conerly served as matron of honor and only attendant for her sister. She wore a blue wool ensemble, fashioned on empire lines, with white alabaster shoes and gloves. Her hat was a blue pillbox, topped with organza flowers in shades of blue and a short veil. She carried a bouquet of long stemmed white rose buds and fern, tied with white satin streamers.

Serving as best man for the bridegroom was Jimmy Moring and ushers were Bill Mitcham, cousin of the bride and Roger Parish, brother of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Mitcham wore a three-piece costume of beige knit with shoes and bag to match. Her hat was of mint green straw, crested with organza flowers in shades of green and she wore a corsage of mint green feathered carnations. Mrs. Parish, mother of the groom, wore a blue crepe sheath with matching accessories and a white feathered carnation corsage.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the church social room where an arrangement of pink and white chrysanthemums interspersed with pink carnations and fern, flanked by crystal candelabra formed the central decor for the table. Miss Rosa Futch served the tiered wedding cake and Miss Vergie Elliott poured pink punch from a crystal bowl.

The couple is at home in Minden where Mr. Parish is employed. Mrs. Parish is a graduate of Bernice high school and attended Louisiana Tech. The bridegroom was graduated from Summerfield high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Mitcham, uncle and aunt of the bride, were hosts in their home the evening preceding the wedding at a rehearsal party honoring the couple, who chose this occasion to present gifts to their attendants.

Abby Keenan Engaged To Donald Moore

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Abby L. Keenan, daughter of Mrs. S. E. Keenan of Clayton and the late Mr. Keenan, to Donald Allen Moore, is announced by her mother. The prospective bridegroom is the son of James Moore of Ferriday and Mrs. Dorothy Moore of Baton Rouge.

A March 28 wedding is planned to be solemnized at 8 p.m. in Clayton Baptist Church. Rev. L. W. Taylor, Methodist minister, will perform the ceremony.

Miss Keenan has chosen Miss Virginia Bruce to serve as maid of honor and bridesmaid will be Miss Regina Moore, sister of the future bridegroom. Mr. Moore will attend his son as best man and ushers will be Clair Keenan, brother of the bride - elect and James H. Moore Jr., brother of the future groom.

Candlelighters will be Jon Garner and Miss Tommie Jean Brownfield, and acting as flower girl will be Miss Rene Wilkins.

Miss Keenan attended Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe. Mr. Moore attended Louisiana State University and Spencer Business College.

TRINITY BAPTIST CHURCH

Major Remodeling Work Is Planned For Facilities

An extensive program of remodeling facilities is being planned at Trinity Baptist Church, 214 Reagan St., West Monroe, as a means of keeping up with the needs of an expanding congregation.

Present church property is valued at an estimated $300,000, a considerable increase from early days of its existence.

Plans for formation of the church took definite shape in the second week of June, 1940, when 21 men met with the Rev. J. T. Hinke at his home on Parker St., West Monroe. They pledged they would start a new church.

STEEL ARBOR

An arbor of corrugated steel was erected on a lot at 114 Reagan St., and formal organization of the church took place on the first Sunday in August, 1940, with Rev. Hinke being called as the first pastor. There were 111 charter members.

Rev. Hinke served the church until September 18, 1946, and was followed in the pastorate by the Rev. Filer J. Seal, now pastor of Highland Baptist Church in West Monroe.

During Rev. Seal's ministry, the present red brick church plant was erected, consisting of an auditorium with a seating capacity of 500, two educational buildings and a parsonage. The old parsonage presently is being used for educational purposes.

FRAME STRUCTURES

The original structures at the present location were of frame.

On June 28, 1950, Trinity Church organized a mission which now is the Brownsville Baptist Church.

Rev. Seal served until January, 1953, and was succeeded in the pastorate by the Rev. H. J. Mott. During Rev. Mott's ministry, a large part of the financial obligations of the church were retired.

Rev. Mott served until Octo ber 14, 1956. In February, 1957, the Rev. E. E. Taylor became pastor there. During his period of service which extended until the early part of 1960, the church build a new parsonage at 100 Dianne St. West Monroe.

The present pastor, the Rev. James White, assumed duties in May, 1960. And since that time a new home has been purchased for the church's minister of music at 106 Debra Lane, West Monroe.

In addition to the pastor, there are three full time members on the church staff, including a secretary, janitor and music director.

PRESENT MEMBERSHIP

Present membership of the church is around 850.

Rev. White is married, and has two children, a daughter, Mrs. George Massingale, a school teacher at Lake Providence, and a son, Larry, a sophomore at Louisiana College, Pineville.

The pastor is a graduate of Louisiana College and New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. He served in several pastorates after entering the ministery in June, 1951, including a rural church near Arcadia; Clayton Baptist Church, and Bon Secour Baptist Church, Foley, Ala. He came from the latter church to his present pastorate.

He is a native of Manfield, La.

The church's schedule of activities includes Sunday school, 9:45 a.m., morning worship, 11 a.m., Training Union, 6:30 p.m., evening worship, 7:30 p.m., and Wednesday prayer meeting at 7:45 p.m.

The church maintains a modern nursery that has been remodeled to provide better accomodations.

The planned extensive program of remodeling will include educational facilities, to improve appearance and provide more space. The entire church plant also will be equipped with air conditioning facilities.

Election Due At Meeting Of Deanery Council

Election of officers will be held at the next meeting of the Monroe Deanery Council, scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday, March 14, at St. Thomas Aquinas School Hall, Ruston, it was announced by Miss Magdalen Amman, president.

The Rev. Cassian Nothbauer is pastor of the host parish. Mrs. Betty Dufour, president of St. Thomas Aquinas Guild and members of her organization will serve as hostesses.

WISHING IS NOT ENOUGH

—Matthew 25: 31-46

Several weeks ago I brought to your memory a song that had been popular many years ago. It was entitled "Let The Rest Of The World Go By." The other night I thought of another song, not nearly as old, but which presents a falsehood in its title. Some of you will remember it. It is "Wishing Will Make It So." This just isn't true. The words go on to tell the story like this, "Wishing will make it so, just keep on wishing, and if you wish long enough, wish hard enough, cares will go." There was another song which presented a like message, and it was titled, "When You Wish Upon A Star." This song went something like this: "When you wish upon a star, makes no difference who you are, anything your heart desires will come to you."

NOT ENOUGH

It would be nice wouldn't it, if the theme of these songs was correct? But there are some things that we could wish for from now until the Lord comes again, and we would never see them come true. If we examine God's Word we find that there were some people who wished for things, but wishing was not enough. One of these was David. His is an example of a wish that came too late.

You will remember that God said of this man David, "A man after mine own heart . . . . ." (Acts 13:22). This was the man who had led the people of God to their highest point, but who committed two very serious acts which brought difficulties not only to him, but to his entire family. Most of you are familiar with the story of David's sin of adultery with Bathsheba, and because of it the sin of murdering her husband, Uriah, the Hittite. You are familiar with the story of Nathan the prophet, who came to call on David, confronting him with his sins, and telling him that the sword would never leave his house. As the days pass we can see this prophecy come true.

DRAMATIC PEAK

The situation comes to a dramatic peak when David's son Absalom turns against him and seeks to take over the kingdom from his father. Absalom's story ended in the forest of Ephraim as his hair was caught in the branches of a tree, and Joab came and drove three darts through his heart. The words of David when he received the message of his son's death are some of the most moving that we find in all of the Old Testament. As he hears the word of Absalom's death we read: "And the king went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept: and as he went, thus he said, O my son Absalom, my son, my son Abaslom! would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!" (II Samuel 18:33). David wished that he could have died in his son's place, but he could not.

CAME TOO LATE

David's wish came too late. If he had only given consideration to the matter of sin earlier things might have been different. This was a man of God who knew full well the fruit of sin, but he went ahead and he came to know the truth of the statement, "Be sure your sins will find you out."

This is the story told over and over again. There have been so many people who have cried out, "I wish, I wish," but have showed concern too late.

Wouldn't it be much better if people would act before it is too late? For it is a fact that wishing will not make it so.

There is another kind of wish which all of us make so often, and that is the wish for what will be. Just about every person is interested in the future. We can see this in the insurance that is sold. We can see it in the planning that goes into the future in many other areas of life. There is an example of this kind of wishing in the New Testament. You remember that the mother of James and John came to Jesus and spoke to him about a place for each of her sons. These did not leave the matter just to chance. They sought to secure the matter by getting their mother to speak a word on their behalf.

Today there are many, many people who are just wishing about their future. It does not have to be this way though. Many times I have heard the question asked of a person, "Are you saved?" and the answer comes back, "I hope so." It does not have to be this way, for a person can be sure. It is possible for a person to do more than wish. This was Paul's position when he said, "For I know Whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day."

THE NEAT, CONTEMPORARY lines of this three-bedroom ranch make it suitable for almost any type of neighborhood, but there's glamour aplenty on the inside, where there are several distinctive features.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Trim Ranch Style Setup Has Lavish Master Suite

By ANDY LANG

An architect who sets out to create individuality in a home has a guard against an excess of enthusiasm. If he gets carried away by the originality of his ideas, he is likely to wind up with a house so "way out" that it may frighten even those who have expressed a desire for special styling.

In designing the latest House of the Week, architect Samuel Paul has achieved a balance. From the outside, it appears to be a pleasant and comfortable contemporary ranch. It has clean lines, a kind of solid, dignified character that would sit well in almost any neighborhood. While maintaining his stolid suburban character on the exterior, the interior bespeaks glamour. There is individuality in several of the features, among them cathedral and very high ceilings, lavish baths and a private patio off the master bedroom. The total habitable area of 1692 square feet is not large, but a lot is packed into it.

CONVENIENT ACCESS

Moving across the covered entrance into the foyer, the resident or guest can see straight ahead to the dinette space of the kitchen as well as the rear entry. This through - circulation passage makes for convenient access throughout.

A cathedral ceiling also highlights the family room which, like the dinette-kitchen, overlooks the rear patio. There is an open-style brick fireplace in the end wall of the family room. The fireplace is flanked by large picture windows. The kitchen includes space for a built-in table.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-73.

Of further note is the basement stairs, located only steps away and also accessible from the front foyer without crossing any rooms.

BEDROOM AREA

The bedroom area includes two bedrooms, a spacious bath and what might be considered the ultra-de luxe feature of the entire house—the master bedroom, with its own separate dressing section, lavish private bath, profusion of closets and private patio. This suite is located at the end of the bedroom corridor. A small vestibule precedes two short steps down to the suite itself. It's almost like entering a separate apartment.

At the front end of the master bedroom is a dramatic window wall with sliding glass doors opening on to the patio, a brick wall at the front, slat fence at the side and an overhead trellis combine to create an intimate outdoor space. On the other side of the patio, the plans call for a large window over the corner tub of the master bath, but this could be omitted if desired.

HELP CUT COSTS

While all these features ordinarily are associated with an expensive home, the straightforward plan, simple framing and front carport help to reduce the over-all cost and place it within the reach of families who ordinarily might not think they could afford a house of this kind. Incidentally, note that the carport itself is an attractive unit. The low brick wall at the front shields the side entry, thus adding to the street view. Exposed beams at the ceiling have been nicely integrated with the structure of the front patio. There is a continuous planting bed in the front of the house wall.

While there is plenty of storage space in this house, there is even more in two large storage closets at the rear of the carport and in the partial basement.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Cotton Show Motifs Clever

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The "King Cotton" celebration in Winnsboro, was a tremendous success in every way. Credit for a part of it's success should be given to one of it's leading garden clubs, The Garden Gate Garden Club, of which Mrs. S. N. Stephens is president. A previewing of six lovely interpreting designs made for displays in the two Winnsboro banks was given on the Fifth District Garden Center's weekly program last Wednesday. The program was entitled, "King Cotton."

The first design, "Cattle Feed," was made by Mrs. Sonny Stephens. She very cleverly interpreted this product. Large yellow mums formed the main flowers used with smaller mums and variegated foliage. Dried roadside grasses formed the tall vertical line. She used the skull bones of a cow for the container. The contrast in materials used proved very interesting.

Mrs. Steve Moore, Jr. chose "Picking," as her title for the design she made using eucalyptus for the line combined with white mums and cotton boles in a brown compote container. The accessories told the story. A "doll" cotton picker and a small cotton sack filled with cotton were placed on the tan earthy base beside the design. This proves the best method of picking is the old-fashioned "by hand" method.

COLORFUL DESIGN

"Fashion Fabrics," a design so colorful that any one would stop and look with interest, was made by Mrs. Paul Price. White mums and cotton formed a vertical design in a tile container (covered with gray cotton material). Flowing from the container was a ribbon of material made of seven or eight color stripes blended together. It was so typical of the lovely cotton fabrics of all colors of the rainbow.

"Planting Time," inspired Mrs. James E. Maxwell to use a plow disc for a container for her all green design. Equisetium and aspidestra leaves formed the overall line. Ivy and variegated euonymous filled in the lower part of the design. Cotton seed flowed from the central part for focal interest.

"Ginning," was the title of the design made by Mrs. Chester Coker. The tall building was represented by tall sections of wooden boards sprayed with silver paint. The metal wheels of machinery followed in the lower part of the design (painted black). A diagonal placement of white glads formed the lower section of the design into which were placed a grouping of white mums and lovely cluster of new cotton boles for focal interest.

"Cotton Seed Meal," was the title of the last design made by Mrs. F. B. Etheridge. Tall roadside grasses of tan color formed the first placement (vertical) followed with bronze mums which massed near the lower part of the design forming a background for a small burlap sack of cottonseed meal. The meal was flowing from the sack in a brown stream — thus forming the focal point for this interpretive design. The container for the material was an overturned brown wooden bowl. A needle cup holder held the plant material. A burlap place mat served as a base for the whole design.

DESIGNS DISPLAYED

The designs were on display throughout the week at the two banks in Winnsboro. Hope you were lucky enough to see them, either on the Wednesday program or in Winnsboro. They were certainly clever, and beautiful.

The theme for this club's yearly meetings is "Getting to Know You." It is a rare experience for anyone to meet the members of this fine club. Their motto is worthwhile mentioning, also. It is: "Vision, without task, is but an empty dream. Task, without vision, is drudgery. Vision plus task is — certain victory."

Flower shows are in the near future. This is the time of year for this wonderful activity which stimulates the garden clubbers, the viewers, and all who take any part whether it is large or small. The flower show leaves the tired members with a sense of well being, accomplishment, and pride. The viewers are inspired beyond words, ready to tackle more garden duties with a sense of new vigor toward getting flowers for the home decorations as well as the landscape. An appreciation of floral art is always revived and, more and more are endeavoring to make designs for the home use as well as public displays. A lot of good comes from a well-planned, balanced flower show. By balanced we mean that half of the show comprises horticulture specimens, while the other half is made up of artistic designs. Each section contains the same number of classes. Of course, there are extra attractions in a well planned show. The Junior sections are important. These encourage our youthful gardeners. The Educational section offers many interesting and enlightening displays. Outside exhibitors (Commercial) bring in new ideas for progress in gardening.

Speaking of flower shows — The Second Tulip Festival Flower Show will be held in downtown West Monroe, March 19 and 20, sponsored by 27 merchants in downtown area there. The show will tie this section into the overall pattern set by the entire Louisiana Tulip Festival which is held annually to attract tourists and encourage the growing of tulips for beauty as well as other colorful bulbs. Mrs. Sidney Swink and Mrs. Cecil Sinclair are the chairmen for this flower show. All of the garden clubs throughout the Fifth District are invited to participate.

Wednesday The Daffodil Garden Club of Wisner will present the Weekly Garden Center program. Mrs. Bob Scott is the president of the club. Be watching.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Roman Type Hyacinths

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

All of the Roman hyacinths are forms of the European sub - species of hyacinthis orientalis which grows in what we used to call the Middle East. People in the eastern countries took their wild hyacinths into their gardens and began to cultivate them from the earliest times. Then, in modern times, the Dutch carried this development further and produced the big fat spikes we know today.

The early Roman gardens seem to have had in them the wild hyacinths from the Mediterannean regions.

TWO KINDS

Roman hyacinths were of two kinds: a white form that flowered earlier than any other kinds and a later kind that was also white. Then, in modern times, French and English gardens began to grow blue Roman varieties and even more.

Old Southern gardens in the Coastal Plains areas have always been full of Roman hyacinths in wide borders and ample beds. These bulbs grow so easily and multiply so readily that they are some of our best gardening material in areas where the soil is at least a bit sandy and not wet.

During the last century, especially during the Victorian period, double flowers were highly esteemed — mostly as novelties — and double hyacinths sold at very high prices. Then the styles changed, and the Dutch stopped offering the heavy - belled doubles. So, if would find the double pinks, whites and blues, you must go treasure hunting in old Southern gardens. When the double hyacinths have only five or six bells to the stem, they are a really artistic production worthy of a lot of searching.

Nothing will add such a note of "period" to a Victorian arrangement as two or three — or even only one spike of an old double hyacinth. The Dutch do still offer a few double hyacinths, but the truly charming varieties are the old ones lost in the South.

Once in a while, one sees in catalogues of bulbs the two Latin names: Hyacinthus amethestinus and Hyacinthus azureus. Unless you are an enthusiast for little alpine plants for rock gardens, you may be disappointed in these tiny flowers. While both of them seem to do very well in Southern gardens, they are not as showy as the Chionodoxas about which we have written so much in the column in past years.

Daylily Club Will Hear Two Guest Speakers

Two speakers from Mississippi will highlight the meeting Monday of the Twin City Daylily Club, President R. C. Pittard said.

Due to address the group are Mrs. Ethel Smith of Yazoo, Miss., and Mrs. Mynelle Hayward of Jackson, Miss. The program will include a slide show of Mrs. Hayward's gardens.

The meeting, set for the Agriculture Building in West Monroe, begins at 7:30 p.m.

In other business, Pittard announced that the local group will host the Louisiana Regional meeting, June 5-6, of the National Hermerocallis Society.

Between 200 and 300 visitors are expected, with reservations already in from New Jersey, Ohio, Missouri, Arkansas and Texas.

Give An Old Room Bright Appearance

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

This is the year to give a tired old room a new and posh lining. The opulent look is back and one way to get it is to dress up the background of rooms, a trick that may be used by those who must watch pennies as well as those with fat pocketbooks.

A dramatic or ingenious treatment of walls may accomplish elegance with one simple stroke. A little bit even of a good thing like a special wallpaper may give a 20-year-old sofa or chair a new lease on life. But whatever is chosen for the background should be special for one reason or another. It the furniture is traditional, the wall pick-up should match the period or at least be in harmony with it. If the furnishings are contemporary, one should be especially aware of the wall treatment that will pull off the effect you seek.

Smash accents, long used by many interior designers for traditional rooms, include elegant backgrounds achieved with wallpaper panels. A dramatic paper is inserted in an area defined with molding to create a panel.

COLOR SCHEME

Some interior designers paint molding and wall surfaces the same color as the background of the paper. Other designers prefer to paint walls in the hue of the pattern. Or pattern is combined with solid color papers that match the background.

Interior designer Elizabeth Matthews did two walls in a corner of a room in a beautiful large-scale red pattern on white, a traditional design taken from the house in which lived John Jay, the first chief justice of the United States. She set the handsome wallpaper into panels on the walls, painting the molding white and using a dark red silk textured wallpaper to match the red in the design on the surrounding wall area.

If rooms lack architectural detailing, and it is desirable, apply molding yourself. It can be bought at a lumber shop in the width desired. If dimensions of the panel areas are supplied to lumber dealers, they will cut it to fit, and miter the molding so it may be put up to outline the panels.

One may wish to do an entire wall of panels. Or a closet door in a foyer or hall with the surrounding area papered or painted in a background color.

STRIKING ENTRANCE

To achieve a striking entrance hall, Miss Matthews used a three - quarter - inch gray and white striped paper on a door and walls around it, contrasting it with black trim and natural wood tones in furniture. Baseboards, door frame and the edge of recessed panels were painted black. Inside the panel, long triangles with stripes going crosswise were fitted with points meeting in the exact center of the door. Empty spaces were then filled with wallpaper triangles cut with stripes running vertically.

The frame of the panel was covered with horizontal stripes on the sides, vertical stripes top and bottom. To complete the picture, a large ornamental door-pull was placed where all stripes come together. And that's a great out for anyone who isn't good at matching stripes. A striking door pull is one way to cover up where they should meet evenly.

Anyone who isn't adept to all the cutting and what not necessary to an effect of this sort, may prefer to do horizontal striped door and vertical striped walls, especially if the door is a flush door as found in many homes built in the '40s and '50s.

'GATORS ARE GONE

Parks Commissioner Dallas L. Thomas announced a $250 reward for information leading to the apprehension of persons who stole 18 or 20 alligators from the City Zoo.

Thomas estimated the city's loss at $1,000 — the cost of replacing the missing saurians. But he said at the going rate of $4.50 per foot for 'gator skins the haul could bring about $3,000.

Pear Trees, Beauty, Fruit

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Gardener, want to add a flowering tree to your yard, perhaps you'd like to add a pear. This will give you gorgeous bloom in early spring, and fruit in the fall.

Warren Meadows, our horticulturist, recommends these varieties for Louisiana: Pineapple, Hood, Garber, Kieffer, Orient and Le Conte. The Pineapple and Orient are the most resistant to fire blight. Warren says that pears will do well on most soil types, but do best on relatively light, rich soil. They are also reasonably tolerant to a high water table and will withstand drought or excessive moisture.

Pears do not normally require large amounts of commerical fertilizer. Where soil is extremely poor it may be necessary to fertilize for rapid growth in the spring. While nitrogen seems to be the most important element required, it is advisable to use a complete fertilizer such as 8-8-8, and not more than one-half pound per year of age of the tree.

DON'T CUT FOLIAGE

Remember to leave all the foliage on the bulbous plants. Do not run the lawn mower over the narcissus after they have bloomed, and don't remove the foilage as it is beneficial for the maturity of bulbs next year.

If you, Mrs. Gardener, plan to add hydrangeas to the landscape, select a shady location and plant them on the north side of the building. If you want blue hydrangeas, add sulphur to the soil; if you want pink, lime will do the job.

If you, Mrs. New Home Owner, have the job of selecting plants, be sure to use plants that are in scale with the house. Large, massive plantings dwarf the appearance of the house. Allow for natural, maximum spread of plants — so don't put them too close to your house.

OUACHITA BEAUTIFICATION

A great big thanks is in order for Curtis Joiner and his committee on the new project "Operation Clean-up, Ouachita Parish." As home demonstration agent for the parish, I know that this committee can depend on all Home Demonstration Club women of all 25 clubs in the parish, to cooperate and participate in this worthy effort.

We will all be rewarded when the job is done by having the opportunity to live in a more attractive community.

SOMETHING NEW

There's a new deodorizer for refrigerators on the market. It is called Flavor - Sure and is made of activated charcoal. It is held securely under the top shelf by a latch lock device. It is also useful for freezer, bread box, cooler and will last for one year.

An unsweetened chocolate product that needs no melting or measuring is being introduced. It is called Redi-Blend. It comes in a carton of eight plastic one ounce packets. Each packet can be used in any recipe calling for one square unsweetened chocolate or one-fourth cup unsweetened cocoa. The product is stored at room temperature and at time of use is simply pressed out of the packet and mixed.

TEENAGERS FIBERS

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have the average teenager in your family, then you will find the cotton is number one in the hit parade of fibers and that wool is placed second, especially for winterwear. The ratings of 3,200 boys and girls were counted. The preferences, of course, varied with the clothes item. Only selected items were included in the survey. Most girls said they preferred cotton for summer skirts, blouses, and everyday dresses. The boys liked cotton for summer sport shirts, sport jackets and slacks.

Wool got the top vote in winter clothes for girls' skirts and boys' sport coats and for both girls' and boys' outer jackets or short coats.

It was a toss up between wool and cotton for winter dress slacks for boys. Wool was second only to girls' everyday dresses for winter. Reasons these teenagers gave for their preferences — cotton is cool and airy and it's easy to wash and iron. Girls liked these features. Boys liked the fact that cotton doesn't irritate or cling in hot weather.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

Everyone loves a mystery, and it is generally conceded that Agatha Christie is one of the masters of this form of writing, She knows how to weave the bits and pieces of plot and counterplot into the seemingly unsolvable mass, which is, of course, always brilliantly solved, and at the same time creates full-sized, are no stereotypes in her stories.

"Ten Little Indians," our next production at Strauss Playhouse, is one of Miss Christie's best. The suspense begins early and continues to mount right up to the last. We are going to enjoy this show, the actors and crew, and the audience.

Executive Director Lonny Fraze heard tryouts for this play on Monday and Tuesday evenings, and hearing some of the diabolical dialogue being read, even under brilliant lights on a bare stage, sent shivers up many a spine.

MANY LISTENED

Many came just to listen. But among those reading were: Steve Parker, Billie Root, Ray Dawson, Kay Harris, Henry Haas Jr., Grace Michele, Jay Michele, Pete Wynn, Charles Cook, Ralph Coleman, Janet Dawson, Pat Fraze, Joe Mangin, Jerry Braud, Brenda Ingram, Dorothy Erwin, Helen Jo George, Jane Bogle, Pat Derrick, Claude Fuller, Beryl Franklin, Hugh Matthews and Barbara McCoy.

At press time, Lonny had not finished casting. We are able to announce the following parts cast, though:

Jay Michele as Rogers, Jerry Braud as Fred Narracott, Frank Swindle as Philip Lombard, Claude Fuller as William Blare, Hugh Matthews as General McKenzie, Henry Haas Jr., as Sir Lawrence Wargrave, Ralph Coleman as Armstrong, and Billie Root as Mrs. Rogers.

Little Theatre's winter musical and Louisiana's camellia bonanza fortunately arrive at the same time. One of Monroe's most gracious women, Miss Lily Harrington, took advantage of this double dividend and brought literally hundreds of fresh blossoms from her garden to Strauss Playhouse on opening night.

Miss Lily pinned one on each person as he arrived and went on to provide fresh flowers for the serving table each night. It is friends like this that make little theater such a rewarding experience.

ENTHUSIASM HIGH

"The Sound Of Music," played to nearly 2,500 people during its 10 performances, putting it in the same class with "My Fair Lady," and "Bye Bye Birdie," in Little Theatre popularity. Had it been possible to schedule a holdover, new attendance records would have been set, as audience enthusiasm for this show has never been exceeded in the annals of Strauss Playhouse.

Little Theatre expresses deep apologies to all those who were unable to secure reservations. As so often happens, there were enough vacant seats at the Sunday and Monday night performances to take care of all who were disappointed later, but it seems to be impossible to spread our attendance evenly over the week.

Many new Green Room tiles resulted from "The Sound Of Music," including ones for Camille Wood as Maria, Charolette Turpin as Elsa, Bill Blythe as Capt. von Trapp, Barbara Addison as the Mother Abbess, Nancy Franklin as Sister Berthe, Anne Hodge as a member of the Nun's Chorus, Bill Herring as conductor, Sunny Meriwether as Brigitta, and Ivan Uttal as guest director.

Nancy and Beryl Franklin also have a joint tile for their appearances as the Michaelsons in "Take Her, She's Mine," and Beryl sports a new one for his role as Arnold Nash in "Send Me No Flowers."

Mrs. John F. Young has reserved a tile for her part as Anna in "The Inspector General," and her daughters, Mary Lou and Pat, will be recognized on tiles for their roles as Frieda Clark in "Mr. Average American," and choreographer of "The Boy Friend." The first two shows make their initial appearance on the Green Room wall and give us representation for 102 plays out of 158. Only about 30 empty spaces remain unless we find a way to expand the tile area.

FLOODS TAKE TOLL

JAKARTA (UPI)—Floods caused by heavy rains in central Java have taken a toll of at least 17 lives, it was reported Saturday.

STAMPS

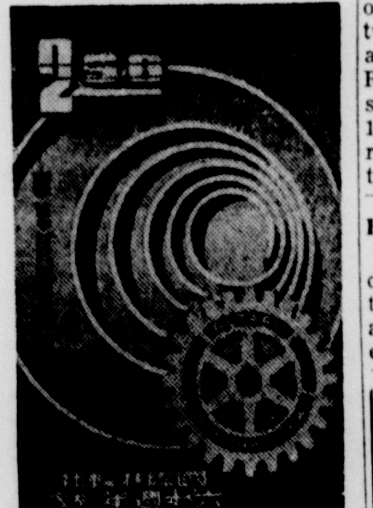
Boundaries No Barrier To Appeal

The universal appeal of stamps crosses all boundaries—language and territorial.

This is noted in the latest stamp issued by Nationalist China honoring the 60th anniversary of Rotary International, an organization founded in Chicago and now in 125 countries. There are three stamps in this set, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The common design features the Rotary symbol of a mechanical gear in front of a tightly wound spring. The values, in Taiwan dollars, are $1.50, $2 and $2.50.

Postmaster General John A. Gronouski announced plans to issue a 5-cent stamp commemorating the 400th anniversary of the first permanent European settlement in the New World — St. Augustine, Fla.

Colonization by the Spanish began in 1559 at Pensacola, Fla. but this settlement was abandoned. A permanent settlement began six years later at St. Augustine which is recognized as the oldest continuous settlement in the U. S.



This stamp is the 13th commemorative announced for 1965. Approximately 15 will be issued during the year. More details will be given in this column as they become available.

The Department of Posts and Telegraphs in Dublin has announced that an air mail stamp in a new denomination soon will be issued by Eire. The new denomination, 1 shilling 5 pence, meets the requirements resulting from the last change in postal rates. It will bear the Rock of Cashel design as used in the 1 shilling 3 pence air mail but will be blue.

CAMERA ANGLES

Distinguished New Arrival Revealed

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Like a birth in a distinguished household, the arrival of a new "baby" in photography's oldest 35mm camera family has long been rumored, secretly verified and finally publicly announced.

To put it plainly: E. Leitz Inc., of Wetzlar, Germany, makers of the Leica camera which, in 1925, created 35mm photography, have unveiled the "Leicaflex," their first single-lens reflex camera. Four interchangeable, bayonet-mounted lenses, especially designed for the camera also made their debut. They range from 35mm to 135mm in focal length.

Because of the years of speculation that preceded the new arrival, it will be subjected to more critical scrutiny by experts and rivals than most new cameras. There will be many highly technical tests and reports, but this is not one of them. Since the Leicaflex was in my posession for just one weekend, I can only tell you how it looks, feels and "handles" as one camera fan to another.

GOOD RESPONSE

First of all, it looks outwardly like many other single-lens reflex cameras with its sealed pentaprism for eye-level operation. It is not a freak and doesn't boast of any revolutionary design appearance. It feels solid, handles easily and responds with the touch of built-in craftsmanship.

When my eye looked through the viewfinder, the scene looked unusually clear and bright. When I turned the lens focusing rim, shifting from distant to close objects, the effect was quite unusual: sharp focus of any selected object is achieved instantly, not gradually, in the central "bulls-eye" area. I learned that this feature of "instant" focus is done by the use of thousands of microprisms in the focusing circle. These exaggerate the fuzzy appearance of unsharp images. These change abruptly when precise focus is achieved and the image becomes sharp.

NEW METHOD BRAKES

Next I pressed the release button and the exposures clicked off smoothly and quietly without the slightest perceptible vibration felt in the fingers pressed tightly against the camera body. This is an important feature because shutter operation in a single-lens reflex camera involves movement of a mirror before the lens diaphragm opens and its return immediately thereafter.

In the Leicaflex, a new patented method brakes the mirror movements so there is no hitting of any internal parts. With the camera vibration-free and with its smooth shutter action, I felt confident enough to shoot at slower hand-held speeds up to ⅛ of a second. (It is not recommended normally to shoot slower than 1-30th or 1-25th with the camera handheld.) In this case, the results justified the confidence.

Other features of the camera include a built-in, battery-powered cadmium sulphide (CdS) exposure meter which is cross-coupled with the shutter speed and lens diaphragm controls. The needle indicating proper exposure and the follow-pointer for setting the camera's exposure controls are both visible in the viewfinder.

The camer's focal plane shutter had a top speed of 1-2000 and synchronizes with electronic flash units at speeds up to 1-100. A novel feature of the clamp-on lens shade is that it is reversible and clamps on the lens mount for storage.

Finally what does it cost to bring Leica quality, ruggedness and reliability to 35mm reflex photography? The answer: $585 for the camera with basic 50mm f-2 lens.

Today will be the last day to visit the Masur Museum until The big day March 14, when the competitive show will open to the public. But first things first . . . now hanging in the museum is an exhibit of prints done by Northeast State College students. I think the one important single factor in encouraging visitors to this show is the fact that though this is student work . . . a great deal of the work is on a professional level, the discipline in the more traditional prints is purely academic and the experimental work worthy of hanging in any museum. It is fortunate that the college could supply the museum with such a fine show since the importance of prints is making news every day. Most of the nation's larger important museums are including an entire "Print Room" as part of their facilities. The Delgado in New Orleans will be making news of this type very shortly. There are many of us who do not know the various methods of printing and for this reason too I think the Masur Museum should be on your visiting list this Sunday, because there is a very informative complete explanation of the various print techniques (with photographs) on the wall as you enter the museum, if you wish to learn about prints and in order to enjoy this show to the fullest be sure this is your starting point.

Print making today is done by the artist purely for expression with only a limited number of prints being reproduced. Print making was born as the necessity of invention. The oldest method being "Block Prints" . . . . the method of printing an image from a raised surface . . . The first books were from block prints with no writing, the oldest printed Bible — Bibliapauperum (poor peoples Bible) — was from block prints. As one thing leads to another block prints led to engraving used as a medium to reproduce pen and ink drawings. For decades it was used for this purpose and is hardly distinguishable from etching — printing from a lowered surface. This medium encompasses about eight various techniques. The quality of this work is quite different from block printing. By comparison etchings make use of an abundance of great tone whereas block prints are harsh . . . etching is more subtle. We hear the term Lithographs used so frequently . . . lithographs . . . are a planagraphic process . . . where drawings are composed on a flat plane . . . based on the refusal of water and grease to mix, thus an image can be drawn on a surface that will accept both grease and water and when the surface is dampened the greasy areas will repel the water and when oil based ink is passed over the surface the water will resist it and the greasy areas will accept it. It's characteristic quality lies in the complete tonal range that can be achieved with grease pencil. Another area of printing is the silk screen process technically known as Seriography. It is a stencil process executed on a silk screen stretched tight over a frame with thick ink forced through open areas to produce an image . . . the characteristic of this process is a flat application of color.

From the simplicity of block printing developed the utilitarian need of printing in it's practical form as a means of reproducing in quantity by mechanical process. So you can see there is a major difference in "prints" used in it's artistic form and "reproduction." The only limitations in the field of experimental printing lies in inadequate knowledge of materials, the use of them, and in one's individual imagination.

The prints on display at the museum are the result of some highly developed techniques. There are traditional woodcuts of excellent quality, experimental works with color any one would be proud to hang in their home and etchings of fine standards. The Masur Museum of Art, 1400 South Grand, will be open today from 2 until 5 p.m. There is no admission charge. On duty as our official hostesses for today will be Mrs. William Bendel and Mrs. H. Touchstone.

AUXILIARY MEMOS

At 5 p.m. today the museum will close its doors to the public until next Sunday when the competitive show will be on display. The next show will run from March 14 until April 4. Check your calendar for your scheduled days. The coming show will be one of the big ones of the year and every day will bring out of town as well as local visitors. Please cooperate with your chairman, Dollie Petrus, and her committee who have worked so endlessly on the auxiliary schedule by being at the museum by 2 p.m. or obtaining a replacement yourself.

HERE AND THERE

HERE: The "r-r-r-really big shew" as Ed Sullivan says will open with a festive preview for associates of the museum, auxiliary members and their guests, members of the press and visiting dignitaries this Saturday night between 2 and 7:30 and 9 p.m. The exhibit will open to the public, I repeat, on Sunday March 14.

To refresh our readers on the intracacy of a competitive show, it begins like this; any interested artist in the Ark.-La.-Miss., amateur or professional, was able to submit two photographic slides in color, to the Masur Museum of Art with an entry fee. On Feb. 10, the slides were sent to Gugmund Vigtel, Director of The High Museum of Art, Atlanta, Ga. who was engaged as juror (judge) for the show. From a field of well over 100 entries, Mrs. Vigtel chose 43 paintings to hang in the museum. On a yet unannounced day during this coming week, Mr. Vigtel will come to Monroe and choose the four award winners from the chosen paintings. Just having a painting hung is an honor that most artists strive for. Many from our immediate area have had one or both of their entries selected. Many are by artists that we have verbally applauded previously in this column. The competition included the finest artists in the three states, people who have had shows and paintings in the most renowned art museums and galleries in America, considering this fact we are most fortunate in having such an abundance of talent in our midst. Among those whose paintings were selected are Carolyn Adair, Ron Alexander, Jack Beard, Ann Eberle, Harry Miller, Ivy Oliver, Mrs. Merle Padgett, Ed Schutz, Ruth Andrues Stone, and Dr. Mack Vaughn.

The express company is contemplating assigning a special truck for deliveries to the Masur Museum as ever since the chosen artists were notified, their paintings have been arriving to be uncrated and hung. This task falls to the members of the Art Center Inc., Mary Anita Lennon, Dottie McKinley, Bess James and Ed Schutz. I saw some of the work arriving and being uncrated, some of the paintings are very large; in fact, if you asked Ed Schutz, who being the only male member of the group is "chief uncrater, in charge of the big, difficult to uncrate paintings," he would probably state by this weekend, that some of the paintings have gigantic proportions, and by the time they are hung next week, he may be seriously thinking about forsaking painting for photography!

GOVERNOR'S TROUBLES

Commissioners Seldom Happy

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Gov. John McKeithen is galloping to the rescue of another board Monday, this time the unhappy State Sovereignty Commission.

He's spending so much time turning from one troubled board to another he wonders if he's governor or referee.

Some—if not all—of the eight Sovereignty Commission members have threatened to resign.

There's been behind - the-scenes complaints about things just sliding along, an irate feeling of lack of communication with the governor, and other inner friction.

"I may have neglected the Sovereignty Commission," the governor said in an interview, when asked about these developments. "I've been so busy."

The commission's job is to promote and publicize state sovereignty.

McKeithen said all members, including Chairman John B. McKinley, Monroe, his longtime law partner, accepted his invitation to the mansion Monday for a breakfast session.

The goveror said he believes everything will be smoothed out.

The governor has been working hard as a troubleshooter.

Not so long ago it was the Sunshine Bridge Authority, then the Legislative Economy Committee and Budget Committee. Finally it was the State Board of Institutions and the controversial resignation of O. C. Sills, institutions director.

McKeithen gave a glimpse of impatience with squabbling board problems in his news conference Friday.

There were reports that relations between McKeithen and his law partner, McKinley, were cool, particularly after an episode several weeks ago when statewide television talks by McKinley on the school compliance issue were called off after Monroe and Shreveport telecasts.

The 39-year-old McKinley, native of Alexandria, joined the Monroe and Columbia law firm of McKeithen and Mouser in 1954. He is personable, easy-mannered, long active in civic and church work.

Questioned about any friction with his sovereignty chairman, the governor said, "John and I have been pretty close a long time—we're good friends."

Political eyebrows raised recently when McKinley, in Monroe, came out with a statement saying he would fight in the legislature the State Board of Education's move to triple college registration fees.

In his news conference, the governor said the question if whether Louisiana can afford a second rate education—because expenses are up.

As for the McKinley college fee blast, McKeithen said his law partner "didn't mean to be critical of me."

British Won't Cut German Force

BERLIN (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson pledged Saturday night that British forces in West Germany will not be reduced without the consent of his nation's allies

The visiting British prime minister made the statement at a news conference a few hours after flying into West Berlin.

"Any decision on a change of force must be made within NATO and must be decided by the alliance and must not be a unilateral decision," Wilson said. "But whatever action is taken, I am sure it will not weaken the alliance."

There have been persistent reports in recent weeks that Britain was about to reduce its 51,000-member Rhine army.

Wilson said there still is a $141-million deficit in the British balance of payments with West Germany.

"We have never expected a payment to tte United Kingdom for our troops in Germany," he added. "We do, though, think that part of their maintenance cost should be offset by the German purchase of British goods made in Britain."

Asked to state his views on a nuclear-free zone in Europe, Wilson said it was only possible if "there is a reduction of nuclear devices on both sides of the Iron Curtain."

"A simple, flat reduction of nuclear devices in a specific area means nothing if there are other nuclear devices targeted on this area."

Wilson laid down two other conditions for a nuclear-free zone:

1. Inspection must show that the balance of strength has not been altered on either side of the Iron Curtain.

2. A nuclear-free zone must be over a wider area, not just covering Germany.

He said he would discuss any possible West German initiatives on the question of German reunification when he meets Chancellor Ludwig Erhard on Monday in Bonn.

He reiterated that German reunification must come about on the basis of free elections.

Wilson was the first British prime minister to visit Berlin since Clement Attlee came here in 1949.

Girl At Ruston Gets Art Award

RUSTON (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. David Pearce Colvin of Ruston have made their third annual $75 purchase award in the senior oil painting show of the art department at Louisiana Tech to Vicki Jones of Ruston.

Susan Schriber of Vidalia was the first winner of the award. Larry Milford of Minden won last year.

Miss Elizabeth Bethea, head of the art department at Tech, has invited all students, faculty members and others to visit the art building to see the prize-winning painting and other paintings in the exhibition.

Tech Students To Take Part In Science Event

RUSTON (Special) — Three Louisiana Tech students in the School of Engineering have been selected to take part in the University of Texas National Science Foundation summer program for undergraduates in materials science research.

The students are: W. C. Flowers of West Monroe, mechanical engineering; M. P. McInnis of Shreveport, mechanical engineering, and T. E. Combs of Ruston, electrical engineering.

The program will consist of instruction in use of technical literature, performing experiments basic to research in the properties of solids, seminars on research techniques and an individual research problem.

Gibbs Lashes Out Again On College Fees

Rep. Lawrence Gibbs Saturday lashed out for the second time in a week at the State Board of Education's proposal to hike college registration fees, and called the proposal "unbelievable."

"The state board of education's recent action which more than triples entrance fees will hurt every parent in the state, who now and in the future, attempts to send his children to college.

"Now, instead of scholarships, the student must borrow from banks, forcing the students to graduate in debt. And now, the unbelievable raise in entrance fees, passed by the State Board, presses the burden deeper into the pocketbook of those least able to pay.

"The recent trend in this state is disturbing. If this trend continues, a college education will be out of reach of most high school and grammar school students of today. The state is erasing the help previously offered our college students.

"I have my attorney studying the whole structure of our educational system and particularly, the action taken by the state board, jumping these exorbitant fees on our people. Upon completion of this study, it is my intent to offer legislation in the coming fiscal session of our legislature to restore the benefits to the people, benefits which they have lost in the past year.

"I am working to form a committee and it will be our plan to call a statewide meeting of all interested parents, students, school officials, and others, who oppose the action of the state board of Education, action which will deprive many of our children of a college education.

"It is most gratifying to hear from many citizens of our state, including school officials and especially our college students, via letters, telephone calls, and personal conversations, thanking me for my stand in opposing the action of the State Board."

Gibbs concluded his statement by saying, "I believe we should be making a college education available to every deserving child rather than slam the door in his face, due to the family's humble station in life. Since 1928, every administration has followed the wise decision of making a college education within the reach of any man's sons and daughters who desire it.

Rep. George Wood Saturday said he would release a statement on the board's action Monday.

Teacher Gets Hay Fellowship

Fellows will study at the University of California, University of Chicago, Columbia, Harvard, Northwestern and Yale.

In making the announcement, Dr. Keller said 70 grants have been made to teachers in 40 states and the District of Columbia. Grants of more than half a million dollars are being made this year.

U.S. Business Upturn Swings Into Fifth Year

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The business upturn entered its fifth year during the week with signs of continued strength.

However, there were a few indications that some of the luster may wear off.

The four years just ended produced unprecedented gains in production and incomes. This was accomplished virtually without inflation.

The current boom has been exceeded only twice. If it lasts until April, and all signs indicate that it will, the 50-month duration of the 1933-37 emergence from the depth of the Great Depression will be equalled.

That would leave as a target the expansion of six years and eight months that began with rearmament in 1939 and ended with the mild recession of 1946 at the end of World War II.

If the upturn is to set a record, it would have to last through 1967.

Whether this is possible is at best uncertain. President Johnson has said that economic recessions are not inevitable. But some elements of the economic community contend that the business cycle is still present and that sooner or later a recession will occur.

Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor discounted the likelihood of an early downturn. He said the economy is marching ahead, paced by huge output of steel and automobiles.

Connor reported that planned industry outlays for plant and equipment this year will be $2 billion to $3 billion higher than previously estimated.

On the darker side, Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, noted three major uncertainties: the threat of a steel strike, the possibility of resurgent inflation and the problems of the balance of payments deficit.

The Labor Department reported that unemployment rose to 5 per cent in mid-February from 4.8 per cent a month earlier. The number of jobless rose 222,000 to 4,218,000. The increase was about double the usual seasonal rise.

Employment increased 500,000 to a total of 9,496,000.

President Johnson outlined to Congress a new goal for attaining full employment. This could be done, he said, through a 4.75 per cent rise in real national output every year through 1970.

He said this rate was achieved in 1964 under the stimulus of tax reduction but it far exceeds any gains the nation has been able to sustain for more than a brief period in modern-peacetime history.

The Commerce Department reported there was little change in January from the high December levels of new orders and shipments by manufacturers.

New orders totaled $39.7 billion against $39.6 billion in December. Shipments dropped about $230 million to $39.1 billion.

Steel production during the week dipped ½ per cent from the previous week to 2,723,000 tons but was 17 per cent above a year earlier. Most of the curtailment was in the Chicago and Detroit areas, where snow hampered operations.

Orders continued to flow into the mills at a record pace as users tried to get enough metal to meet current demands and to stockpile against the possibility of a strike.

MORE INCOME, HIGHER INSURANCE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans who bought life insurance in 1963 tended to have higher incomes and to buy larger policies than in the previous year, says the Institute of life Insurance.

An analysis of ordinary life insurance purchases last year shows 24 per cent of the new policies were bought by people with incomes of $7,500 or more, compared with 21 per cent in 1962.

Stocks Take Mild Setback In Past Week

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market suffered a mild setback in heavy trading last week.

Blue chips, which had been leading the market, fared rather poorly.

With brokers reporting the public coming into the market in increasing numbers, interest was centered in the lower priced stocks.

Of the week's 15 most active stocks, eight were priced under $30 a share.

Despite the heavy trading, movement was a rather restricted. Volume totaled 32,085,770 shares, compared with 25,512,735 in the holiday-shortened previous week. More than 7 million shares changed hands Thursday. It was the third 7-million-share day of the year.

Market enthusiasm again was dampened by the growing crisis in South Viet Nma. Developments in Indonesia also were an adverse factor.

The decision of the United Steelworkers of America to resume contract negotiations with the 11 basic steel companies failed to help the steel issues.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell a point to 335.1 this week.

The Dow Jones average which the previous week topped 900 for the second time this year lost 7.50 last week to 895.98.

Of 1,531 issues traded last week, 643 advanced the 716 declined. There were 242 new 1964-65 highs and 13 new lows.

The international oils led the market in a steep slump early Friday but a rally in the afternoon erased most of the loss.

Bond prices declined in all markets last week, mostly because of nervousness over the nation's balance of payments and gold situation.

Domestic Cotton Futures Reach Firmer Ground

NEW YORK (AP)—Domestic cotton futures moved into firmer ground this week in a somewhat better turnover.

At Friday's close, domestic futures on the New York Cotton Exchange were up $1.70 to $2.90 per bale for the week. Foreign cotton futures were up 75 cents to $2 a bale.

The net changes the week before had ranged from an advance of 55 cents to a decline of $2.90 for domestic futures and from an advance of 50 cents to a decline to $1.75 for foreign.

Strengthening was attributed to short covering and commission house support in the face of light offerings.

Big prices for the more distant months eased temporarily early in the period on the chance that a possible change in farm legislation might result in direct payments to growers.

But later in the week they strengthened again.

Total holdings of the government decreased by more than 100,000 bales during the week ended Feb. 26, because loan repossessions exceeded entries and there were sales under the Commodity Credit Corp.'s cotton programs.

The holdings were estimated 1,898,000 bales, a net drop of 108,000 bales a week earlier.

At the close of February the government owned an estimated 7,729,000 bales and held as collateral against 1964 crop loan notes 6,169,000 bales.

Domestic lint exports for the week ended last Tuesday were estimated at only 17,000 bales, again 113,000 a week earlier and 177,000 a year earlier.

Grain Futures Market Narrow Most Of Week

CHICAGO (AP) — Price changes in the grain futures market were narrow most of the time last week, but gains were more numerous than losses on the Board of Trade.

Most activity was centered in the expiring March contracts and old crop soybeans with actual market factors exerting little more than temporary influence in the trade.

The most one-sided trade came on Thursday and it included the best general demand of the week. Nearly all contracts posted their best gains in several days. The recovery wiped out moderate losses in nearly all grains but attracted some profit cashing and short selling on Friday.

Soybeans closed 1¼ cents a bushel higher to ⅜ lower, March $3.04⅜-½; wheat 1⅛ lower to 1⅜ higher, March $.50⅞; corn 1⅛ higher to ¼ lower, March $1.28½; oats ⅜-3½ higher, March 70 cents; rye unchanged to 2¼ higher, March $1.21¾.

MORE PEOPLE

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — By the end of the year unemployment in India is expected to reach 12 million persons. The government estimate does not include millions of farmers and others who work only two or three months a year.

BETTER BOATS FOR LESS MONEY

Let's Try The TWIST!!

A Boat Twisting? You bet, a lot of them do when inefficiently braced.

TRY IT YOURSELF — Have someone hold the back of the boat down, you grab the front and see if it will twist. If it does — WATCH OUT, you're NOT getting a bargain.

Some boats twist easily, but our OUACHITAS don't . . . LET US SHOW YOU

* 10 ft.	$64.50
* 12 ft.	$75.00
* 14 ft.	$87.50

Rites In Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Funeral services will be held here for Gen. W. E. Brougher, 76, retired former ROTC commandent for Louisiana State University, who died Friday night.

Brougher died in Martin Hospital at Fort Benning, Ga. He retired to Atlanta after serving at LSU.

He was a survivor of the infamous Bataan Death March in World War II and served three years in a Japanese prison camp.

He toured the South lecturing on patriotism and his experiences in the prison camp.

Survivors included his widow, three daughters and a son.

Burial Requested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The body of Roy H. Scogin Jr., of Shreveport, La., a civilian Navy employe killed in Guam last month, may be brought back to his hometown for burial.

Scogin was a crew member of the naval transport Kingsport which put into Guam. He was injured fatally in a motorcycle accident and buried in the Navy cemetery there on March 5.

A spokesman said Mrs. Joan Scogin, the wife, of Calgary, Alberta, had notified the Navy she desired her husband's burial there.

However, the spokesman said, since then the man's mother, Mrs. Roy H. Scogin of Shreveport, requested that the body be brought back for burial there.

Crash Kills Three

SLIDELL, La. (UPI) — The fiery crash of two automobiles on Interstate 59 today claimed the lives of three Mississippi men.

The dead were Hugo Mitchell, 29 and Mackie Mitchell, 23, both of Picayune, Miss., and L. W. Jackson, Laurel, Miss.

State police said Jackson had stopped his car on Interstate 59 near the Mississippi border to repair his transmission. He was under the car when the Mitchell vehicle slammed into his car from behind.

A passenger with Jackson, Toxie Slade of Hattiesburg, Miss., was standing next to the car at the time of the accident. He was not injured.

Fire In Forests

BATON ROUGE (AP)—State Forester James E. Mixon said Saturday, arsonists set fire to 4,877 acres in 141 spots across Louisiana Friday night.

The biggest attack was in southwest Louisiana where forestry agents counted 70 fires which burned 3,186 acres, including 453 acres of pine plantation.

DROPS 14 PUPS

MILAN, Italy (AP) — An Irish setter named Beauty has given birth to a litter of 14 pups — all in good health. "The only problem," says her owner, Dina Parlini, "is whether Beauty will have enough milk to go around."

Repairs Slated For Courthouse

JONESVILLE (Special) — Bids for repairing the parish courthouse roof at Harrisonburg will be opened by the Catahoula Parish Police Jury at their regular meeting on Monday, at 7 p.m.

The jury called for bids to repair the roof which is reported to be in a "leaky condition."

No repairs were included on the roof, it was stated, when general repairs were made to the building several years ago. The building was constructed in 1932.

It was also pointed out that the "leaky roof" affects the jail on the top of the courthouse and the offices of the soil conservation district, the county agent and the ASCS office on the third floor.

Meets Changed For Police Jury

JONESVILLE (Special) — Regular monthly meeting dates for the Catahoula Parish Police Jury have been changed from the first Wednesday of each month to the first Monday night of each month.

This action was taken by the members at their meeting this week. Future meetings will begin at 7 p.m. on the first Monday night of each month.

The change was made to give the public a better opportunity to attend the meetings. It was also pointed out that several members wanted the change because of their work scheduled.

TRAVEL ORDERS

Jakarta To Keep Eye On Yankees

JAKARTA (UPI)—The Indonesian government Saturday issued orders to American diplomats here aimed at keeping track of their travels in the country.

The order demands that all diplomatic personnel report in advance of any plans to travel inside Indonesia—whether the travel is personal or on business. There was no reason given for the new order.

The order came amid disclosure Saturday by U.S. Embassy officials that Indonesian employes of the embassy had been called into the Indonesian attorney general's office and questioned about embassy activities.

The travel order followed the closing down of all United States Information Service (USIS) libraries in Indonesia and came as 19 American families affected by closure made preparations to leave for new assignments in other countries.

Embassy officials said the exit of the Americans here under the USIS program would take place gradually over the next several weeks. The closing of libraries and the take over of American-owned rubber plantations, to be placed under state management, led many American businessmen in Jakarta to wonder aloud if the next travel order of ouster would be aimed in their direction.

The U.S. ordered all of its libraries closed Thursday in the wake of Indonesia's takeover of the physical property and mob actions that ransacked the five library centers.

Meanwhile, it appeared that the remaining 60,000 volumes which survived the book burning mobs would end up on Indonesian university bookshelves.

According to the official Indonesian news agency Antara, the library stocks of the Jakarta Library will be emptied first.

The little American box turtle may live to be about 120.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:
I have four little children, so it's always dirty hands and dirty towels. Just when I'm busy, one of the children needs a hand towel. It usually can be found on the floor in the bathroom or the kitchen. Well, I solved the problem:

I went to the dime store and bought gripper snaps. I put three snaps at the end of each bath towel. When they are snapped over the bar, the rest of the towel hangs down so the small children can reach it. Now I never find a towel on the floor, nor are they wadded up and thrown across the towel bar so they won't dry.

Instead of grippers, big safety pins can be used. I used diaper pins with safety locks until I got around to buying the snaps.

Mother Dickins

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
I don't throw away old socks that have a few little holes or worn-out elastic in the top. I slip these socks over shoes I don't wear often. They keep the dust off so that the shoes are always shiny and ready to wear.

Bachelor Bill

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is a hint for those who live where the water is hard.

I keep water-softener powder for the bathtub in a 48-ounce plastic fruit juice pitcher that has a screw-on lid with a small flip-top opening.

The softener remains dry and can be poured into the tub easily. These plastic containers come in colors to harmonize with most bathrooms.

I'm ashamed to admit that I kept a cardboard box of softener in the bathroom for eight years before I thought of the pitcher idea!

Marion T.

DEAR HELOISE:
When the figures on any kitchen stove control become dim, take a black crayon and just color the whole kaboodle. Rub off the surplus with a soft cloth, and the figures will be just like new again.

Bess Couch

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
For a simple beach barbecue, dig a hole in the sand and line it with aluminum foil . . . put your briquets and wood inside the foil-lined pit and cook away!

The foil will reflect the heat, and the hole will keep the wind from blowing your fire in one direction. Any grate is easily placed on top, will not turn over, and will always be level.

And the food cooks in a hurry!

L. Sierzput

DEAR HELOISE:
Painting ceilings in my home is no longer a problem. I just took my wife's old mop handle and attached it to the paint roller. Now I paint up there while I am still down here!!

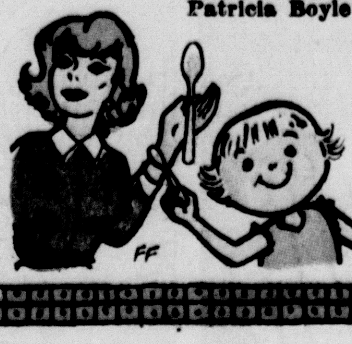
B.D.S.

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
Every time I have to give medicine to my children, the prescription seems to call for a teaspoonful. I almost always spill some before I get it to the child's mouth.

I solved this problem by measuring a teaspoonful and pouring it into a larger spoon. Now I never lose a drop.

Patricia Boyle



POT HOLDER COVERS

DEAR HELOISE:
To eliminate washing my pot holder mitts so often, I made slipcovers for them from scraps of material.

When they get soiled, I just remove the covers and wash them. This not only saves drying time, but protects the mitts.

Florence Hohmann

Heloise

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
I made a pincushion of nylon net and stuffed it with more nylon net. It is perfect for holding plastic pins for hair curlers.

June Almy

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is a delicious idea for using leftover pie crust. The credit for this goes to my mother, who has been keeping us all happy for years.

Roll out your leftover pie dough and spread lightly with margarine or butter. Then sprinkle some brown sugar all over it and roll it up! Slice into little rolls about one inch wide and bake until golden brown.

We always looked for these roly-polys on Mother's baking day!

Mrs. C. L.

DEAR HELOISE:
I wear white canvas tennis shoes and I find that spray starch (not plastic) is ideal. After cleaning the tennis shoes, I just spray-starch them all over. They seem to stay clean much longer!

Helen W.

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
To protect men's hats, put a strip of plastic inside the hatband. This can be cut from a vegetable bag or dry cleaner bag. Perspiration stain will never go through. Try it!

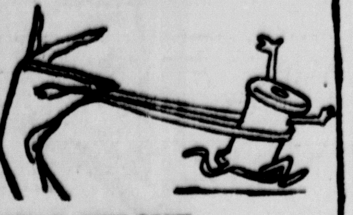
Mrs. Max Harlan

The plastic does work! You can use foil, also. But the liner must be changed every so often.

Another thing I found was that you can also put a piece of soft plastic in the top of your husband's hat or cap.

Heloise

HOME STRETCH



DEAR HELOISE:
I snap all my rubber bands onto an empty thread spool. This keeps them all in one place.

Ellen Berthold

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:
When lint accumulates under the head of my portable sewing machine, I use my vacuum cleaner and the crevice attachment. It gathers the dust quickly and easily.

Kathy Herman

It works, Kathy! For years I used tweezers. Thanks for the tip.

SO DOC AND HIS PACK OF HALF-WOLF DOGS HAVE CAUGHT UP WITH US! BUT HOW STUPID CAN THAT OLD DEVIL BE? I COULD TAKE HIM AND HIS DOGS IN FIVE SECONDS!
BUT MUCH AS HE MAY DESERVE TO BE KILLED, I CAN'T SHOOT HIM IN COLD BLOOD!
ARF!
Y'GOTTA DO SOMETHIN', OR HE'LL KILL SANDY IN COLD BLOOD!
HE MISSED SANDY! QUICK, SANDY! COME BACK, 'FORE HE TRIES AGAIN!
EH? DOC? OH, DOC'S GONE AWAY FOR GOOD, I'D SAY! AMAZING! SANDY WAS GIVING COMMANDS! HARK! HEAR THAT? I'D SWEAR NOW HE'S TELLING THE PACK "WELL DONE"!
ARF! ARF!
LATER, AT DR. LE QUAQUE'S "REST HOME," AS EVENING SHADOWS FALL, DARKER FORMS SLIP SILENTLY BACK UNDER THE FENCE, "HOME" AGAIN, AS IF THEY'D NEVER BEEN AWAY!
JUST HADN'T SEEN 'EM AROUND. THOUGHT MAYBE DOC HAD WENT HUNTIN' WITH 'EM!
BR-R! I'M GLAD Y'DIDN'T LET ME SEE IT HAPPEN. IT MUST HAVE BEEN AWFUL. BUT IF IT HAD TO HAPPEN T'ANYBODY, WELL, THAT IS.....

HOWDY, SI.. CAN YA CHECK MY TIRES?

SAY, FRIEND... WILL YOU WATER MY HORSE WHILE I'M LOOKING YOUR CONTRAPTION OVER?
